WARNING FROM HOOVER ON TAX BOOST IGNORED

Show Strength to Override a Veto.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—Ignoring warnings of a treasury deficit and a possible tax increase, the senate tonight passed the world war veterans bill by a vote of 66 to 6. Amendments to make the bill acceptable to President Hoover were overwhelmingly rejected.

It was the most severe rebuff administered to the President thus far in his administration and pointed to possible passage of the legislation over his veto if final efforts to modify its terms in the house prove a failure. Seven hours of torrid debate in which the President and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon were mercilessly assailed for their letters of yesterday in opposition to the bill preceded final action. The Democrats and radicals made light of the Mellon predictions, pointing to huge surpluses which in previous years have followed treasury savings of deficits. Republicans usually found in the administration ranks were less caustic in their comments but joined in support of the bill.

Half Dozen Stick by Hoover.

The half dozen senators who voted against the bill on its final passage were old guard Republicans. They were Senators Hiram Bingham and C. C. Walcott [Conn.], F. H. Gillett [Mass.], Daniel O. Hastings [Del.], David A. Reed [Pa.], and James E. Watson [Ind.].

As passed the bill is substantially the same as reported from the finance committee and according to the veterans' bureau estimates would cost 80 million dollars the first year and ultimately would add 225 million dollars annually to the present expenditures for veterans amounting to approximately 511 million dollars.

Liberalizes Provisions.

It liberalizes existing legislation by creating a presumption of service incurrence or aggravation for disabilities rated at 10 per cent degree manifest before Jan. 1, 1930, instead of Jan. 1, 1925, the present presumptive date.

It also adds several diseases to the presumptive clause and compensation of $30 a month to veterans while being hospitalized for disability not incurred in line of duty; $30 a month for wives of those veterans without children; $40 for wives and one child, and $6 for each additional child.

Director Hines of the veterans' bureau had estimated that approximately 250,000 men, not now in receipt of compensation, will be affected by extension of the time limit while the American Legion sets the number at 71,000, divided as follows: 23,000 mental cases; 15,000 tuberculosis; 29,000 chronic and constitutional diseases. This, according to Gen. Hines, will add about $50,000,000 the first year and more as new applications, not now on record, come in.

Will Require 13,000 New Beds.

About 68,000 veterans would be affected by the hospitalization provision, according to Gen. Hines, requiring 13,000 new beds, at an initial cost of $45,000,000, and an annual maintenance cost of $19,500,000. Ultimately, Gen. Hines has estimated, 39,400 new beds will be needed at a cost of $137,900,000 and an annual maintenance of $68,950,000.

Upon these calculations Gen. Hines based the estimated immediate annual expenditure of approximately $100,000,000 and an eventual annual cost of $225,000,000.

At present 374,500 veterans out of 3,500,000 are now being compensated at an annual expense of $206,000,000. Other veterans also participate with the other veterans in the benefits of the war risk insurance legislation and the home legislation, which bring up the total annual sum of expenditures of the veterans bureau now to 511 million dollars. Thus, addition of the annual new cost of 225 million dollars by the senate bill, the government would be paying out the sum of 736 million dollars annually to world war veterans.

The war risk insurance, which originally was intended to replace a pension system for world war veterans, will not be affected under the bill

WIND TO COOL CHICAGO TODAY; HEAT IS RECORD

A sudden shift of the wind from the sultry southwest to the cooling northwest quarter last night brought Chicago relief from an intense heat wave which, during the day, had directly or indirectly claimed thirteen lives. From 89 degrees at 10 p. m. the temperature dropped to a comparatively comfortable 80 at 2 o'clock this morning and a fresh breeze was blowing.

Under the scorching breeze and broiling sun the temperature had climbed steadily from dawn to dusk, reaching 97 degrees between 4 and 5 p. m. This mark exceeded by three degrees the highest recorded last summer and was two degrees above the highest previously recorded on June 23.

Except for a few fortunate pent house dwellers, rich and poor alike among Chicago's millions sweltered in acute discomfort. Of the thirteen weather victims —a number greater than the total of last summer's fatalities—nine succumbed to sunstroke or heart attacks aggravated by the heat. The remaining four were drowned.

"Considerably Cooler" Today.

Revising the weather bulletin of yesterday morning, which predicted possibility of thundershowers, Forecaster C. A. Donnel in his bulletin last night said today would be fair. The temperature will be considerably cooler, he emphasized.

The northwest wind which cooled the city after 10 o'clock last night, will prevail all day, Mr. Donnel assured. Tomorrow, he said, will be partly cloudy and continued cool.

Despite the heavy death toll here, the official temperature chart indicated the heat was more intense downstate and in Iowa than in Chicago. A reading of 106 was reported at Centralia, 102 at Pana, 102 at Lincoln and 102 at Ottawa. A thermometer at Edgewood, Ia., when exposed to the sun, jumped to 132 where the mercury burst the tube.

Farmers, harvesting the hay, saw the oats and corn parching for lack of rain and housewives in rural communities saw their gardens withered with the growing drought. Correspondents at Galesburg and Centralia reported concrete highways buckling under the heat.

First Death From Heat.

The city's first heat victim, Robert Cardinell, 55 years old, 1421 North Crawford avenue, was stricken a moment after he entered the office of Dr. A. D. Radcliffe, a dentist at 1156 North Crawford avenue. Mopping his brow and complaining of a toothache, Cardinell dropped into the dentist's chair, slumped over with a sigh and was dead.

Another, Albert Strong, 67 years old, 5243 Strong street, suffered a sunstroke while working on a scaffold at the new addition to the Majestic radio plant at Dickens and Austin avenues, lost his footing and fell 10 feet to his death.

His first day's employment since last winter proved fatal for James Firea, 65 years old, 10737 Burley avenue. Hired yesterday by the south park board, he was mowing a lawn in Jackson Park when he suffered a heart attack and fell dead across the mower.

Invalid Woman Is Victim.

Mrs. Fanny Rosenthal, 48 year old widow and an invalid, found the heat oppressive in her bedroom, rose to go to the porch and fell dead.

Evangelos Lamprinos, 59 years old, 305 East 55th street, was stricken as he walked homeward on the sunny side of the street after eating a hearty meal at a neighborhood restaurant. He died on the way to the county hospital.

Ten minutes before quitting time at the Rosenberg Metal and Iron plant, Dominick Yakas, 60 years old, 1926 Canalport avenue, paused in his work after straining at a heavy beam. He remarked about the heat, clutched his chest and fell dead.

Arriving home from work at 5:30 p. m., Ernest Cuthaill, 49 years old, a clerk living at 2947 Warren avenue, flung himself on his bed, exhausted. Ten minutes later another tenant of the building found him dead.

Sorsen Cook, 60 years old, 1224 North Dearborn street, started out for a stroll to cool off after supper. In front of 1223 North Clark street, a

LINBDERGH SON TO BE "CHARLES"; MAYBE MORROW

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—The Lindbergh son and heir is to be named Charles. What his middle name will be is unsettled. Perhaps it will be Morrow and perhaps Augustus, after his father. Word tonight from Englewood, N. J., the baby's birthplace, indicated that this question may be decided within the next twenty-four hours.

Meanwhile a procession of messengers brought an endless string of notes, telegrams and cables from all over the world to the Lindberghs.

Ambassador Morrow found occasion to repeat his statement of last night that he was the "happiest grandfather in the world," and he certainly looked it.

Mother and babe, it was announced in the customary announcement of medical bulletins having to do with such cases, are "doing well."

Col. Lindbergh today met Rear Admiral Byrd and there were mutual congratulations.

Byrd mentioned the birth of Lindbergh's son and his high altitude coast to coast flight. Col. Lindbergh spoke glowingly of the aerial trip to the south pole. He left his congratulations for Bernt Balchen, the pilot of Byrd's plane on its polar dash.

All this took twelve minutes, behind a closed door at the Hotel Biltmore, where Admiral Byrd arrived this morning from a reception at his home in Winchester, Va., and Col. Lindbergh from Englewood. The latter returned home later in the day.

BROKERS FINED $250,000, GIVEN TERMS IN JAIL

CALGARY, Alta., June 23.—[Special.]—Declaring that the common practice of all brokers to sell short has been a crime for hundreds of years, Mr. Justice Ives this evening sentenced I. W. C. Solloway and Harvey Mills, heads of Solloway, Mills & Co., the largest stock brokerage wire house in Canada, to terms of four months and one month and fines of $225,000 and $25,000 on charges of fraud and conspiracy. The fines were paid and the accused released to bail after notice of appeal was given.

"That it has been a custom I have taken into consideration as extenuating," said his lordship. "Because the other fellow got away with it does it show that I can do it or that I am not guilty?" he asked.

At one stage of the trial it was shown the accused were $7,750,000 short. Similar charges are pending at Toronto.

Strikers Fight Spanish Cops; 150 Wounded

SEVILLE, Spain, June 23.—(AP)—A general strike, attended by violent rioting, gripped Seville today.

About 150 persons were injured in two clashes between workers and police, the latter hammering the rioters with the flats of their sabres and the butts of their rifles and firing many shots.

Fourteen labor leaders, heads of different unions, were arrested when the rioting began to get out of hand this evening. A dozen policemen were treated for injuries.

The situation was under control tonight, but the city was tense and awaiting developments. Few people were in the streets, which were patrolled by heavy detachments of police and civil guards. Strong reinforcements were mobilized.

Riot Caused by Death of Woman.

The death of a woman olive worker, Antonia Vargas Bravo, laid to police who suppressed a partial strike Saturday, precipitated today's labor crisis. The strike was sudden and virtually complete. Workers thronged the streets and started to assemble in various quarters.

The Society of Olive Workers had certified the woman's death had been caused by wounds and a committee of agitators had circulated inflammatory literature.

The governor of Seville issued a statement that the woman had died June 21 in childbirth in a Seville hospital and that she had taken no part in Saturday's olive workers' strike.

Assumes Revolutionary Character.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HENDAYE, France, June 23.—According to dispatches from Seville tonight which leaked through the censor, the rioting there today assumed a revolutionary character and resulted in a bloody all day fight through the streets of the city. Uhtil late in the evening when cavalry reinforcements dislodged the insurgents from barricades, the city was virtually in possession of the revolting workers.

Forty thousand workers staged a simultaneous walkout and every means of transportation was stopped, while the terrified citizens barricaded themselves in their homes. The casualties are reported to be heavy. One is known to be dead and dozens, including many children, were seriously wounded.

The strikers closed the bakeries, and when the government tried to bring in a supply of bread the food caravans were beaten back by the rebels. The police tried to break up the mobs who shouted "death to the king."

STATION THRONG THREATENS TRIO WHO ROBBED 25

A near mob scene was enacted last night at the 12th street station when occupants of one Pullman of a 20 car special train about to depart for a turnverein convention at Buffalo suddenly discovered three pickpockets had cleaned them out of purses, money, and watches.

The delegates, nearly all athletes, numbered around 600. A thousand friends and relatives had assembled to see them off. Songs were being sung and good-bys shouted when the 25 victims interrupted with cries of "We've been robbed." Immediately special agents of the Michigan Central railroad, reinforced by Sergts. James Fitzgerald and Richard Coulter of the South Clark street station, rounded up William Carey, 58 years old; James Meyers, 65, and John Evans, 38, all with aliases and long records, the sergeants say.

Word of the arrests flew around the train and the delegates stormed the second floor, where the three were being held for the patrol wagon. They would have been badly pummeled if the special police had not intervened. Altogether the pickpockets garnered close to $1,200.

8 LIVES LOST ON EAST-WEST ATLANTIC HOPS

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

New York, June 23.—The flight of Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and his comrades is of particular interest because it involves a westward flight.

Excepting dirigibles, the only westward flight across the north Atlantic to achieve even partial success was that of the Bremen in 1928, carrying the late Baron Von Huenefeld, Hermann Koehl and Col. J. C. Fitzmaurice. The Bremen, an all metal monoplane with a single water cooled motor, took off from Baldonnel airdrome, Ireland, at 5:38 a. m., April 13, and was forced down 34 hours and 32 minutes later on Greenly island, near Labrador, far off its course.

The difficulties of the westward flight were first impressed upon the public by the tragic attempt of Capts. Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, in the spring of 1927.

Three months later Capt. Leslie Hamilton, Col. E. F. Minchin and Princess Lowenstein-Wirtheim took off from Upheaven, England, and headed westward. Not a trace of them was ever found.

Miss Elsie Mackay and Capt. Walter G. P. Hinchcliffe took off from Cranwell, England, in 1928. Since then no trace of either of them has been found.

Last year Majors Kasimir Kubala and Leon Idzikowski of Poland, tried to fly from Paris to New York. Maj. Idzikowski was killed in a forced landing at the Azores.

Woodcock to Succeed Doran as Dry Chief

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—Amos W. W. Woodcock, United States district attorney at Baltimore, will become federal dry chief on July 1, when prohibition enforcement is transferred from the treasury to the department of justice. His selection as director of the bureau of prohibition in the justice department was announced today by Attorney General William D. Mitchell.

Mr. Woodcock will come to Washington at once to begin the task of setting up new enforcement machinery, but will not take over the work now being performed by Dr. James M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, until the first of next month. As director of prohibition Mr. Woodcock will be the chief aid of G. A. Youngquist, assistant attorney general in charge of dry law and income tax prosecutions, in the latter's initial drive to better dry law enforcement.

Also to Eye Tax Frauds.

With the transfer of the bureau of prohibition to the department of justice, responsibility for dry law enforcement will be more centralized than ever before. Mr. Youngquist will have under his direction the investigation, detection, and prosecution of dry law offenders. He will have under his control the enforcement of income tax violations and, according to justice officials, a wider use of the laws against income tax frauds will be made against criminal gangs in the larger cities.

Closer coöperation between the federal dry enforcement personnel and local authorities is listed as one of the major planks of the new enforcement policy.

Mr. Woodcock is forty-six years old. He is a lieutenant colonel in the reserves and served as a captain, major, and lieutenant colonel during the world war. He is a member of the American Legion and has served as department commander for Maryland. Col. Woodcock has been identified with the National Guard since 1907 and served on the Mexican border in 1916.

Will Coördinate Duties.

"The experience of Col. Woodcock as United States attorney and as assistant attorney general of Maryland qualifies him to perform the important function of coördinating the duties of investigation and detection with the duty of prosecution, and to work toward more effective coöperation of state and local governments in the enforcement of liquor laws," the department of justice stated today in announcing the appointment. "Since enforcement activities culminate in prosecutions in courts the work of direction will involve numerous legal problems, and it is with this in mind that a man of wide legal experience has been chosen.

"Col. Woodcock is a graduate of St. Johns college, Annapolis; received the degree of bachelor of laws from the University of Maryland in 1910, and the degree of master of arts from Harvard university in 1912."

MAN WHO FLEW PACIFIC TRIES ATLANTIC JUMP

Kingsford-Smith, 3 Aids in Plane.

[Copyright: 1930: By The Chicago Tribune and the New York Times.]

New York, June 24 [Tuesday].—[Special.]—Three hours and one minute after the wheels of the Southern Cross left the ground the listening radio operator of the short wave station in the office of the New York Times caught the first message from the fast traveling flyers. At 2:31 a. m. a message from the plane crakled into the receiving station:

"All O. K., but strong headwinds. "V M Z A B [Kingsford-Smith.]"

2:55 a. m.—"Southern Cross just passed over a number of trawlers. Very cheerful to see other people out in this waste. Everything going O. K. Air speed, 100 miles an hour. Revolutions, 1,730 per minute. Altitude, 500 feet. Air temperature, 48 degrees. Estimated ground speed, 75 miles an hour."

3:21 a. m.—"Have just been having look at chart with Paddy. Seems everything is breaking our way. Plenty of ships on course from which to confirm our position by direction finder."

PORT MARNOCK, near Dublin, June 24 (4:35 a. m., Tuesday.)—Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and his three companions hopped off at 4:20 o'clock this morning (10:20 p. m., Chicago time Monday) in the Southern Cross bound for New York. The takeoff occurred without hitch and followed weeks of preparations and days of unfavorable weather for the westward flight. Capt. Kingsford-Smith was in the same plane he used in his Pacific flight from California to Australia.

The Australian and his crew, after a few hours sleep, had arrived on the beach and were ready to take off as soon as the light was adequate.

Uses 3½ Mile Runway.

Kingsford-Smith started tuning up the motors a half hour before the take-off. Others of the crew, Capt. J. P. Saul, navigator; J. W. Staunago, radio operator, and M. E. Van Dyk, radio operator took their places.

The Australian piloted the big ship down the three and a half mile runway at a dizzy speed. Ten thousand Irish cheered as the plane gradually took the air without mishap. Ahead of him lay about 3,364 miles. Kingsford-Smith expects to reach New York in 34 hours.

Every precaution was taken to prevent the Southern Cross from sinking into the sand, which was fairly hard despite an all day rain. Heavy wooden planks were placed under the machine, which weighed over seven tons. The runway was guarded by Irish Free State troops.

Take Gold Shamrock Along.

Mrs. James McNeill, wife of the governor geperal of the Free State, who had arranged the flyers' meagre food supply, presented the airmen with a gold shamrock, Ireland's good luck emblem, inscribed with a Gaelic motto, before the departure. Kingsford-Smith himself is carrying a photograph of the Australian actress, Nell Stewart, which he has had since he was 18. This is the only thing he is superstitious about and he has carried it on every flight he has made.

Early last night Capt. Saul motored from Dublin and brought his fiancée, Miss Zena Marchant, an Irish girl, to the beach for the takeoff. Capt. Saul's little daughter, Pat (he is a widower) told her father good-by before she went to bed.

The devotion of Kips, a retriever, to his master was one of the touching things of the takeoff scene. The dog, who had accompanied Capt. Saul on many flights, seemed to sense not going along on this one and stationed himself beneath the plane until forcibly removed.

FIGURES ODDS 25 TO 1

BY CHARLES KINGSFORD-SMITH.
(Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times and Chicago Tribune.)

PORT MARNOCK, Ireland, June 23.—Before setting out on an east-west crossing of the Atlantic in the Southern Cross I wish to say that I have not the slightest desire to lose my life, nor have I any intention of doing so, I regard the odds as 25 to 1 in our favor of getting across safely—surely a better chance than any horse had to win the Derby.

There is enormous interest in all Atlantic flights, much more so than in Pacific flights, because Atlantic flights are undertaken for the purpose of linking the great races and people of Europe and America. I regard it as less strenuous than the flight in the same machine from California to Australia, the reason being that I know now what our plane can do and have the benefit of all previous experience and known factors entering into the project. It is simply a job of work and I have no qualms about it. I have a motto. It is "Hope for the best and prepare for the worst."

I think people attach too much importance to the difficulties of a westward crossing of the Atlantic because of previous difficulties. Not that there are not difficulties—on the contrary. But to my mind those failures in the past have been largely the result of insufficient organization and inadequate preparation.

It has been too much a matter of simply hopping off and trusting to luck. You trust to luck altogether in backing other sorts of winners. But before starting an Atlantic flight you have got to know what you are doing and be prepared for whatever emergency may arise.

There is no doubt about the fact that crossing the Atlantic from this side is far more difficult because of the prevailing westerly winds. I think we can overcome these difficulties by our large quantity of fuel, sufficient for 37 to 38 hours at a cruising speed of 100 miles an hour—an ample margin because the journey is less than 2,000 miles over water.

Taking 1,300 Gallons of Gas.

Although our three engines have done more than 73,000 miles, we have increased their speed seven miles an hour. We are taking 1,300 gallons of gas. Fully loaded, the plane will weigh 15,460 pounds. Certainly it is not far wrong if our machine is described as a floating gasoline tank.

It is nothing but foolhardy to set out across the ocean in a single-engined plane. Three should be used, as we are doing.

In the event of a forced landing on the water with the empty tanks available as ballast the plane should remain afloat for hours. Next is the matter of blind flying. A navigator is as essential as having a wireless along, and vice versa. If the plane is forced down messages can be sent until the last minute.

Ice forming on plane's wings, however, is the most ticklish question of all. There is nothing you can do to avoid ice formation. My plan, if ice forms seriously, is to bring the machine down to warmer altitudes to melt it off. We plan to detect ice at night by using flashlights.

Wind Greatest Menace.

However, the main difficulty in any attempt to fly from east to west across the Atlantic is wind. The prevailing winds blow from the west to the east. These winds vary considerably in intensity; sometimes blowing with hurricane force. During May, June, July, and part of August opportunities arise often when these winds are at a minimum and even upon occasion nonexistent. These headwinds, of course, reduce one's true speed by their force, thus handicapping the fuel supply.

Apart from headwinds the Atlantic presents another difficulty—fog; this is particularly true on the western side, where heavy fog banks prevail. Fog at the end of a flight, where there is the possibility of gas tanks being low, creates a landing hazard.

An International Crew.

As to the crew accompanying me, there is Capt. Saul of the Free State army and one of the best men in the world for the job. And a better equipped co-pilot you could not find than Van Dyk, who has had so much experience in Holland's airway. Our wireless operator, John W. Stannage, held the same post on the rescue machine Canbera when we were lost in the Southern Cross for twelve days in Australia.

Surely an international crew—Irish navigator, Dutch relief pilot, South African radio operator and myself, an Australian.

Van Dyk and I, as pilot, will sit in the forward cockpit. Behind us our main fuel tank fills the space except for an inch or so on either side of the fuselage. Behind the tank sit Saul and Stannage. When we take off neither of these two groups will see one another again until the end of the flight. We will communicate each with the other by means of electric light signals and using a long stick with a clip on it bearing written messages.

The navigator has an excellent view through the windows on each side of the plane and can take bearings by opening the top hatch. The rest of the fuselage behind the navigator and wireless operator will be empty.

No Sleep for Kingsford-Smith.

Twice an hour I intend to make entries on our log. I never sleep on these long flights, but lie back and relax now and then.

We are taking the usual emergency rations of concentrated foods such as chocolate, malted milk and some sandwiches, coffee in a vacuum bottle and an emergency flask of brandy—which I suppose they will take away from me when we land in the United States if we do not drink it.

We are going to follow the great circle, thereby following to some extent North Atlantic steamer routes. We expect to be in communication with ships all the way across.

Two Wireless Sets.

We are taking along the short wave wireless set used on the Australian flight, with which we once transmitted as far as 14,000 miles—at night. Besides the short wave, which is 32 meters, we have a medium wave set to work between 600 and 800 meters.

We shall send out reports of the flight's progress to the New York Times, through its own radio station WHD, continually. After completing this flight my next aim is to go on to Oakland, Cal., where we started in 1928, thus completing the 35,000 mile trip around the world. I hope to be back in Australia by the end of August, because I am engaged to marry a Melbourne girl, Miss Mary Powell, out there in September.

SENATE GROUP REPORTS NAVAL TREATY, 16 TO 4

G. O. P. Starts Revolt Over Special Session.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] reported the London navy limitation treaty to the senate today from the foreign relations committee which recommended its ratification by a vote of 16 to 4.

The treaty was placed before the senate without the customary written report explaining and commending it either by Senator Borah, chairman of the committee, who does not conceal his lukewarmness, or by Senators David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] and Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark], who helped negotiate it, or by any other committee members supporting it.

An Incipient Insurrection.

Incipient insurrection showed its head on the Republican side over the prospect of the senate being compelled to return to Washington after July 4 to ratify the treaty. Late in the day a canvass of Republican senators was in progress on the proposition of calling a Republican caucus to depose James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.] from the majority leadership because he fell in line with President Hoover's proposal of a special session of the senate to ratify the treaty.

The insurgents who included a number of Republican old guardsmen, were rallying around Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], for successor to Watson. McNary frowned on the movement as did Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.], president pro tempore of the senate, and it is unlikely that it will come to anything.

The assertion is frequently heard in cloak room conversation that the treaty will be ratified only because of administration influence on the Republican side and the influence of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic minority leader.

It is evident that there will be plenty of fireworks when the senate takes up the treaty in special session. Unless ratification is accomplished within four or five days there will be a motion to postpone further consideration until after the fall election.

There also is on foot a movement to cause the senate to make a formal demand upon the President for all the correspondence with London and Tokio and other documents pertaining to the negotiation of the treaty. The President withheld certain documents from the committee on the ground that their disclosure would be incompatible with the public interest. The committee then declared its right to the documents, but when they were not forthcoming gave up the fight. Several senators are planning to move that the senate itself assert its right to the documents as the co-equal of the executive in treaty making.

When the foreign relations committee adjourned today there was pending a motion by Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rep., Wis.] that the committee make public such documents as the President has furnished under the seal of secrecy.

How Committee Voted.

For favorable report: William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.], Frederick H. Gillett [Rep., Mass.], David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.], Simeon F. Fess [Rep., O.], Guy D. Goff [Rep., W. Va.], Robert M. La Follette [Rep., Wis.], Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], Claude A. Swanson [Dem., Va.], Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.], Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.], Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.], Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.].

For unfavorable report: Hiram W. Johnson [Rep., Cal.], George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.], Arthur R. Robinson [Rep., Ind.], Henrik Shipstead [Farm-Labor, Minn.].

Senator Johnson will file the principal minority report assailing the treaty on numerous grounds. Minority reports on special points will be filed by Senators Moses and Shipstead.

Shipstead's Minority Report.

Senator Shipstead made public his minority report tonight. In this statement he asserted the right of the foreign relations committee to all documents touching on the negotiation of treaties submitted to the senate for ratification. He said:

"The treaty making powers of the senate, as of the executive, extend to every stage of the negotiation—prior thereto and during negotiation, and culminate advice and consent for purposes of ratification.

"Power over the subject matter included full and free access to all pertinent and relevant papers—note exchanges, diplomatic understandings, letters, memoranda, all collateral evidence defining the meaning, the concrete application and ultimate purpose of the negotiation.

"These principles have been crystallized in the practice of the executive and senate from the day of Washington and Monroe down to the present time. No precedent can be cited wherein the executive hitherto, as a member of the coördinate treaty making power, has refused his co-equal in treaty making, the senate of the United States, a request for papers pertinent to the consideration of a proposed treaty.

Respects Stimson's Chivalry.

"I do not attempt to define the scope of the secretary of state in having 'confidences abroad.' I respect the chivalry which he cannot 'in honor' divulge the secrets of his relations with the 'mistress of the sea.'

"In my judgment the great issue before us is not whether we shall be limited to build 8 inch cruisers or 6 inch cruisers, but whether or not the constitution as understood by those who framed it shall be maintained as a living force."

Calls Fleet Inferior.

Rear Admiral George R. Rock, chief of the bureau of construction and repairs of the navy department, testified before the house naval affairs committee today that the American battleship fleet was inferior to that of Great Britain and would remain in that condition until all American ships were modernized. The present British ships, he said, are speedier, can fire at greater ranges, are better protected against submarines and aircraft and in general are more up to date.

Eight remaining American battleships must be modernized at an estimated cost of $70,000,000, the rear admiral said, to give parity.

KINGSFORD-SMITH'S MOST FAMOUS EXPLOIT, U.S.-AUSTRALIA FLIGHT

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

New York, June 23.—Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith has already had a distinguished career in aviation. The flight of the Southern Cross from California to Australia in 1928, which has been called "the finest yet recorded in the history of aviation," is his most famous exploit.

"I was born in Brisbane," Capt. Kingsford-Smith said in New York recently. "I started flying with the Australian imperial forces. In 1917 I went to France with the flying corps, shot a few enery planes and got shot down myself. After I got out of the hospital I was an instructor and after the war I did commercial flying in England, America and Australia."

Various records have been established by Capt. Kingsford-Smith; in 1927 he set up the fastest time for a flight around Australia, 8,000 miles in 10 days 5 hours. While in America in 1928 he and George Pond tried twice to establish an endurance record in the Southern Cross. They completed approximately 50 hours of sustained flight each time. In the same year the captain made the first flight from Australia to New Zealand, over the Tasman sea, and the first return flight, and he made the first nonstop flight across Australia, a distance of 2,000 miles. Last year he established the fastest time for an Australia to England hop—12½ days.

JOHNSON IN ELEVENTH HOUR FIGHT TO GET ALIEN LAW PASSED

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—In an eleventh hour effort to obtain some kind of legislation at this session restricting Mexican immigration, Representative Albert Johnson [Rep., Wash.] today submitted in the house a resolution to reduce by half all immigration during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Representative Johnson, as chairman of the house immigration committee, has sought for several weeks to secure right of way in the house for the senate bill applying the quota system to Mexico, but has been blocked by the house administration leaders.

Representative Johnson hopes that the resolution presented today might be rushed through both houses before adjournment, thus securing the objective of the Mexican immigration bill although the bill itself apparently is sidetracked.

Women of Many Lands Meet at Rotary Clubs' Convention

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Seventeen hundred women from such widely separated places as Antwerp, Belgium, and Blytheville, Ark.; Clear Lake, Ia., and Colon, Cuba; and Sapulpa, Okla., and Calcutta, India, are meeting in Chicago this week. They have come with their husbands, who are attending the silver anniversary convention of Rotary International.

A reporter investigated to learn what 1,700 women from various corners of the earth find in common. When they meet at tea or observe Chicago's lake and parks from a sightseeing bus, what does the woman from San Salvador, for instance, say to the woman from Fulton, Mo.?

Home a Common Interest.

"We have one common interest, the home—but we don't all have the same ideas about it," said Mrs. Eunice L. McClure, Chicago, chairman of the women's committee of the host club, the Rotarian executive committee in charge of arrangements for the convention.

"The women from other countries tell us that they are surprised to see American women so efficient in business and in clubs. They say they rarely go out of their homes at all. Surprising, isn't it?"

"The thing which surprised me most," put in Mrs. Oscar W. Rosenthal of 8500 Longbeach avenue, in charge of the tea to be given to the visiting Rotarians' wives in the Edgewater Beach hotel today, "is this: One of the women from abroad, a charming, stunningly dressed woman, said to me, 'Your husbands give you everything but their business itself, don't they? Why you American women have without asking things which we would never venture to ask for.' I hardly knew what to say to her."

Mrs. Yvonne Willems, wife of Prof. Edouard Willems, anthropologist, of the University of Brussels and second vice president of Rotary International, said:

"I don't think the American women are spoiled — although they have that reputation. They are charming and intelligent, I find. I do think the young girls may be; those, that is, who begin to go to dances when they are 14 years old. But I do not understand why you see women of my age on the streets or at parties here, and they do not look happy or contented.

"I wonder if American women are not getting tired of emancipation. While our women, who do not yet know it, are eager for it!

"We are beginning to have women's clubs in Brussels, but I regret to say that all that they seem to do in clubs is to chatter, chatter, chatter. We are just beginning there what you American women have had for years. You are tired of working and of doing things outside your homes."

Women from Many Lands.

Among the women who are registered at the Stevens hotel are: Mrs. I. B. Sutton, Tampico, Mexico, wife of the immediate past president of Rotary International; Mrs. Carlos Sanchez Mejorada, Pachuca, Mexico; Mrs. H. E. Watson, Calcutta, India; Mrs. Joseph S. Vallis, Hamilton, Bermuda; Mrs. Cenobio Donoso, and Miss Ines Rivacoba of San Felipe, Chile; Mrs. Herbert Coates, Montevideo, Uruguay; Lady Mary Mander Wolverhampton of London; the viscountess de Casa Aguilar, Madrid, and Amalita de la Rosa, Barranquilla, Colombia.

U. S. TO ACCUSE OLIVER OF TAX FIXING INCOME

Defendant Asks Judge to Try Case Without Jury.

Counsel for Gene G. Oliver, member of the board of assessors, under indictment for evasion of income taxes, requested Federal Judge Woodward yesterday to try the case without a jury. During the hearing on the motion, it was brought out that the government would introduce evidence that tax fixing was a source of Oliver's income.

Although there were intimations at the time of the indictment of William E. Nichols, alleged tax fixer, said to have been associated with Oliver, that the government would seek to prove tax manipulations on Oliver's part, yesterday's disclosures were the first of a definite nature.

Sees "Prejudicial" Defense.

State Senator James J. Barbour, Oliver's attorney, informed the court that a trial without a jury was desired because of the prejudicial nature of the proposed defense. The request was made on the basis of a recent decision of the United States Supreme court that a jury may be waived by a defendant in a felony case "within the discretion of the court." Judge Woodward promised a ruling this morning.

"Your honor," said Mr. Barbour, "this defendant is a member of the board of assessors, and receives a salary of $9,000 a year. As a committeeman from his township, he handled considerable sums contributed for campaign expenses. In addition to these sources, he was given to gambling on the races.

Fears Race Bet Prejudice.

"The fact that a public official played the races is likely to prejudice the minds of the jurors, particularly at this time, when the matter of assessing property is of such public concern. We feel that this case should be tried by one person, one who is learned in the law and who will not be prejudiced."

Judge Woodward asked whether the question of knowledge and intent would arise, and whether there would be conflicting testimony. He was informed by counsel for both sides that this would be a major question.

"I am reluctant to assume the responsibility of a jury," said the court. "When the evidence is of a conflicting nature and the question of knowledge and intent must be decided upon, it is proper for a jury to try the case."

"We are not asking leniency, your honor," said Senator Barbour.

Assistant United States Attorney Cassius Poust then stated that the government would show evidence of income other than that announced by the defense.

"Tax Fixing" Evidence.

"There will be evidence of income from tax fixing," he said. This was brought out, Mr. Poust explained, in order that the court might understand the expected conflicting testimony.

"The question of tax fixing will not be an issue. The only thing to consider is income," said Senator Barbour. He then stated that Oliver's alleged income on which taxes were not paid was simply "a matter of computation," and that Oliver lost as much as he won on the races.

Oliver's trial is set for Thursday. Four indictments charge evasion of some $70,000 in taxes, interest, and penalties on income estimated at $272,000 for 1926, 1927, and 1928.

ENDURANCE TEST AVIATORS PASS TWO-THIRDS MARK

With the two-thirds mark passed, John and Kenneth Hunter, in their endurance plane City of Chicago last night were soaring above Sky Harbor in high hopes of establishing a new world's record. At 2:40 a. m. they had been aloft 298 hours. They dropped a note, reading:

"The first 100 hours were the hardest."

They ended their twelfth day in the air at 4:40 p. m. They told their brothers, Walter and Albert, who handle the refueling contacts, they were not worried about the thirteenth day being a hoodoo.

It is a family affair, with Miss Irene Hunter, a sister, cooking the meals for the four. All are from Sparta, Ill. The record they hope to beat is 421 hours, established at St. Louis a year ago.

SIMON REPORT URGES "UNITED STATES OF INDIA"

Proposals Show Britain Must Keep Control.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 24.—[Tuesday.]—Running like a red thread through the warp of the recommendations of the Simon commission on India, is the ever recurrent idea that though liberty is good, order is of greater importance and that the chariot of Hindustan can only gradually be led onto the high-road of self-government.

The recommendations were published today in the second part of the Simon commission's report. The first part of the report, consisting of a survey of the Indian problem, was published a fortnight ago. The report is the result of 2½ years study by Sir John Simon and six other members appointed by the British parliament.

The report will be the basis of conversations at the round table conference on India matters to be held in London in October, at which the future of India will be discussed.

Based on Three Principles.

The commissioners base their recommendations on three basic principles, which they believe necessary to apply to the "stubborn facts which no amount of rhetoric or appeal to abstract principles can alter."

The three principles, which they call the "mechanism of advance," are applied in detail to every branch of government in the Indian empire in over 300 pages of recommendations and warnings.

The chief of the principles laid down is that the structure of India must be altered into a federal organization, embracing not merely British India but all the Indian states.

The second principle is that the new constitution should, as far as possible, contain within itself provision for its own development. It should not be based upon too rigid or uniform a plan, but should allow for natural growth and diversity. Constitutional progress should be the outcome of practical experience, says the report.

Britain Would Control Army.

The third principle is the paramount necessity of securing that throughout the period during which India is progressing on the road to complete self-government, there must be full provision made for the efficiency of the fundamentals of government.

It must be recognized, says the report, that there are grave dangers in India that must be provided for. The report says that it is absolutely important that the gateway of the northwest be held and that, therefore, "the army must be strong enough for its task. We hold that for many years the presence of British troops, and British officers serving in Indian regiments, will be essential."

"While we are prepared to recommend a considerable advance towards self-government, and while we believe that a sense of responsibility can only be taught by making men responsible for the effects of their own actions, we desire to secure that experience is not bought too dearly. There must be in India a power which can step in and save the situation before it is too late. There must be provided, as far as may be, safeguards to ensure the maintenance of essential services."

Urges Separation of Burma.

An exception is made in the comsion's proposal to unite British India and the Indian states in a federation in the case of Burma, which the report recommends should be excluded from the new policy. The report recommends immediate separation of Burma and India, because of racial, geographical, and financial differences, and proposes that the seat of Burmese government should be not at Delhi, but in London.

The essence of the federal India idea would be the creation of a central authority, with self-government in each of the provinces, "to afford to Indians the opportunity of judging by experiment in the provincial sphere how far the British system of parliamentary government is fitted to their needs and to the natural genius of the people."

Following the three main recommendations come detailed recommendations embracing the executive and legislative reforms thought desirable for the central and provincial authorities. It is proposed that, in place of the present legislative assembly, there should be constituted a new body, to be called the "federal assembly."

Retention of the present council of states is recommended.

The report recommends total abandonment of the principle of diarchy now in force, a system under which responsibility in government is divided. The report implies that every published decision of the government of India is a decision for which the governor general, no less than his colleagues, takes responsibility.

The commissioners recommend that the powers of the governor general over a provincial government should be in the following categories:

1. Safeguarding of administration of central subjects.
2. Matters which may, in the opinion of the governor general, essentially affect the interests of any other part of India.
3. Supply of information on any subject.
4. Raising of loans.
5. Employment of all India services in the provinces.
6. Safeguarding of imperial interests.
7. Questions regarding India and the rest of the empire.
8. Implementing international obligations.

Urges Boundary Readjustment.

Readjustment of the present boundaries of the provinces is regarded as an urgent matter. The appointment of a boundaries commission is suggested.

Much space is given to the question of the police, which the commissioners recommend should come under the control of the provincial authority and not under that of the central authority.

The controversial subject of communal representation is discussed. The Hindus object to separate electoral representation, upon which the Mohammedans insist, and in face of the continued disagreement nothing but a continuance of the present system is foreseen by the commissioners until the particular communities involved agree to discontinue separate communal electorates.

Would Enlarge Franchise.

The present franchise, the commission reports, is too limited in its scope to provide the material from which to build any adequate scheme of representative government. At present there are about 6½ millions enfranchised. It is proposed to enlarge the franchise to 10 per cent of the total population, which would more than trebie the present number of voters and make an electorate of about 20 per cent of the adult population. The creation of a franchise committee is recommended.

As the proposed enlargement of the franchise does not ensure the depressed classes getting adequate representation until they reach a higher level, the commission proposes that there should be some reservation of seats for the depressed classes. They form 17 per cent of the Indian population.

"We desire to see a substantial increase in the present ratio of women to men voters," says the report.

At present Indian women are entitled to vote on the same terms as men, but this produces very few women voters, so the following changes are recommended so as to produce more women voters:

In addition to the present qualifications, two others are recommended: [1] Being the wife, over 25 years of age, of a man who has a property qualification to vote, and [2] being a widow, over that age, whose husband at the time of his death was so qualified. In addition the educational qualification should apply to women over 21 as well as to men.

Although it is possible for women to be members of the councils, and several have been made members by nomination, no woman candidate, so far as the commission knows, has ever been elected. The report discusses various methods of facilitating the inclusion of women, but holds that it is undesirable to "reserve" seats for them. They hold that the proper course is to leave women candidates a fair field and no favor.

Raise in Income Tax.

Both in the recommendations for the reform of the central government and in a special survey of India's finances is the question of taxation taken up. The gist of the recommendations is that, though the average income per capita is exceedingly low, taxation, which amounts to about 8 per cent of the total income, as against 20 per cent in Britain and 20 per cent in Japan, can be increased, without becoming intolerable by the initiation of taxation on large accumulations of wealth on which the present burden of government rests but lightly. The insufficiency of India's revenues is touched upon and blamed as a factor of the native dissatisfaction.

Near the end the report comments: "Federations come about only when the units to be federated are ready for the process, and we are far from supposing that the federation of India can be artificially hastened, or that when it comes it will spring into being at a bound. The principal question is whether at the present stage there are many definite but modest steps which might be taken by way of tentative advance."

Police Shoot 100 Villagers with Machine Guns in India

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, India, June 23.—Using machine guns, a force of Indian policemen led by British sergeants and supported by airplanes, today attacked natives in a village near Lahore after the villagers had refused to sell them food. According to dispatches, 100 natives were wounded and 50 arrested.

The situation in the Lahore region is regarded as critical, inasmuch as Gandhi followers have planned a mammoth demonstration tomorrow, including the burning of effigies of Simon commission members. Police are prepared to suppress the civil resisters. A huge bundle of papers, representing the Simon report, will also be set afire, according to plans.

Protest Bombay Police Attack.

Bombay, as well as other cities, are vigorously protesting the police attack on Nationalists in the Maidan esplanade last Saturday when 500 natives, including women, were wounded by a force of 500 policemen wielding bamboo sticks.

The reaction is so pronounced that F. W. Wilson, British editor, under the heading, "Alienating the Nation," tonight published an open protest letter to Viceroy Lord Irwin. He wrote in part:

"The recent government policy has been accompanied by police excesses of most revolting brutality. There are hundreds of Britain's subjects nursing wounds from police lathis, and there are thousands who have turned away disgusted from support of the government because they are unable to detect benevolence behind lathi blows."

Fear Riots Over Simon Report.

An even stronger denunciation is contained in the Indian press such as are still unsuppressed.

Everywhere authorities are preparing against Nationalist demonstrations expected to arise with the publication of the Simon report. John Ernest Buttery Hotson, member of the council of the governor of Bombay, today conferred with Maj. Gen. Alexander Weir to curb any uprising here.

Pandit Nehru, acting president of the All-India national congress, today appealed to school boys of India to throw away their books and join the revolt.

LABOR ORGAN CALLS SIMON REPORT ON INDIA AN "EVASION"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 23.—The Simon report met a mixed reception in the press here this morning. Most of them editorialize in a strain admitting that an agreement on some such sort of proposal is necessary for the solution of India's future, but refrain from outstanding comment.

The labor organ, the Daily Herald, is frankly critical and disappointed, asserting that the commission has "evaded the main problem," adding, "there is no self-government proposal, or, as hoped, even a provision of a means by which the present order may be gradually but definitely transformed. The proposals concerning the powers of the viceroy and governors are a negation of the machinery of self-government. Here is the fatal weakness of the report."

"A death blow to dominion status," Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail said in its comments. "One of the strongest arguments in favor of the proposed scheme of federalization is that it will virtually eliminate the mischievous cry for a 'dominion status.' The report shows the immense risk of setting up anything like home rule in modern India and the necessity for a strong British army there to assure internal peace and defense from external attack."

ALDERMEN TO LET POLICE ALONE IN WAR ON GANGDOM

Decide Not to Hamper Alcock with Quiz.

$55,825 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,825 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter. The information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 303, Temple building, 77 West Washington street, telephone State 1739.

Three outstanding factors in the gangster situation following the killing of "Jake" Lingle, a reporter for THE TRIBUNE, were these yesterday:

1. A committee of the city council which had gathered for an investigation of the police situation decided to place matters in the hands of Acting Commissioner John Alcock.

2. An unofficial report from police headquarters as well as from the state's attorney's office that progress is being made in the secret inquiry into the identity and whereabouts of the killer and that it is hoped the public patience will eventually be rewarded.

3. Acting Commissioner Alcock is devoting himself to a selection of the personnel of the detective bureau. These detectives are to be picked after a thorough scrutiny of their records.

Alcock Gets Assurance.

Members of the council police committee told Alcock they saw no need of putting the police department on trial at a time when such action would be giving aid and comfort to the enemy—organized gangsters. The aldermen said the police should be turned loose in its war on gangdom, unhampered by an investigation.

The committee, however, is scheduled to meet this morning because of a resolution aimed only at forcing the removal of Commissioner Russell and Chief of Detectives Stege after the murder of Alfred Lingle. The aldermen, too, had talked of a reorganization of the force, and Ald. Arthur F. Albert [43d] wanted to inquire how some police captains acquired summer homes and large automobiles.

Alcock Works on Order.

Acting Commissioner Alcock was at work during the day on an order taking 700 men from plain clothes automobile riding duty at the detective bureau and restoring them to uniform patrolman duty.

Alcock had many other problems, he explained, necessitated by his assumption of the command of the 4,000 crime fighters after seven years spent in inspection work as first deputy commissioner. He knew what he wanted to do with the police department, how to make it function at its best, and he wanted to be let alone to do it, but he owed a courtesy and a duty to the aldermen, it was explained in his behalf, and he told the city fathers he was at their command.

"We decided he was more capable of reorganizing the department than any one else and we think we ought to give him a free hand," said Ald. James B. Bowler [25th]. "As to the committee session tomorrow we haven't any plans through which we can now see how any good may be accomplished."

Defends the Department.

"The police department has been placed in a false viewpoint," said Ald. Frank Konkowski [31st]. "The department is neither crooked nor in league with criminals. It is unfair to assume now that any investigation would disclose graft or corruption. I think the other aldermen realize that we should be giving encouragement to Commissioner Alcock and his men and not have them think we are suspicious of them."

"I am sure Commissioner Alcock will get 100 per cent results from the department," said Ald. Thomas F. Byrne [15th], chairman of the police committee. "I'm for helping him and the whole department rather than having them come before us defending themselves."

That attitude was reflected by others of the committee which included Ald. Thomas J. Bowler [41st], Ald. John Toman [23d], Frank Landmesser [38th], Ald. Robert H. Jackson [3d], and Ald. T. F. Moran [16th]. Acting Commissioner Alcock, given some assurance that after today's meeting the department will not be in need of character witnesses to prove its good reputation, expressed the hope the police as a whole will justify the good faith shown in them by carrying the war to the criminal element.

Alcock Is Optimistic.

Alcock was keenly interested in learning what all his visitors thought about "conditions in Chicago." His own views were that there is little crime compared to other days and trouble may be expected only from gangs which resumed open warfare a few weeks previous to the murder of Lingle.

On the subject of beer the police boss was interested but not communicative. It was the concensus that the warm days had disclosed a considerable thirst in the city for the foaming brew, but that oases are hard to find.

The reports were that beer drinkers were complaining that "conditions" made them go out into the country for their beverage or drink whisky or alcohol in lieu of the milder stimulant. Another complaint was that owing to soft drink parlors being "without" the proprietors of upstairs beer flats or moon parlors were reaping the financial benefits and the roadhouse proprietors were hoping Alcock will drive Chicago business to them.

Wants to Perk Up Force.

Alcock's present thought is to perk up the department morale, and in exacting strict observance of all rules, major or minor such as prohibiting smoking while in uniform, having coats unbuttoned, leaning against posts or walls, he said he felt he is merely establishing the proper esprit de corps.

One present hardship of the department was noted. Pay day was eight days overdue and, as one policeman explained: "That means we lose the discount on our gas and electric light bills, have to stall off the telephone collector, the grocer, the butcher, and milkman."

"What progress are you making in the Lingle case?" an interviewer asked Alcock. "We're not talking about it," came the curt reply.

Both Alcock and Chief of Detectives Norton admitted they had little to complain of about gangsters at the present time, excepting the fact that they have all made themselves scarce. The murder of Lingle drove the big gangsters far out of Chicago — "till the heat dies out."

Not a sight of a Moran gangster, a Capone gangster, a Klondike O'Donnell gangster has been reported in the last two weeks, with a few exceptions, and not a word has been heard about them. (Machine Gun Jack) McGurn, one of those under the necessity of remaining here, was on trial yesterday before Judge E. I. Frankhouser in Criminal court on a gun toting indictment.

Churchmen Will Hold Crime Inquiry Behind Closed Doors

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

A full study of Chicago's crime situation will be made by the special investigation committee of the political action commission of the Chicago Church federation. The earlier sessions will be held behind closed doors, but public hearings will be held later. This was announced yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Frank E. Jensen, pastor of the Mount Zion Lutheran church and chairman of the new committee. The committee's second meeting was held yesterday afternoon in the Marshall Field tea room.

The personnel of the investigating committee has not yet been revealed. A meeting has been called for this afternoon at the La Salle hotel. The resolution of the federation commission on political action calls for a committee of five ministers and five laymen.

Dr. Jensen's report, which was unanimously adopted, asked for power to extend the membership of the committee to churches not represented in the federation, and to the universities. It also asks the right to solicit confidential information from various sources before the public hearings begin. Invitations will be extended to any who have information bearing on the crime situation. It is planned to study these reports before public officials, politicians and newspapermen are called in for public hearings.

While the Jensen report says the early meetings of the committee will be secret, it specifically states that the inquiry will "proceed not as an inquisition nor in any way accusatory, but rather in a friendly Christian spirit to ascertain the facts."

The investigation committee's meeting yesterday was attended by virtually all the members of the commission on political action, together with specially invited guests, George Gilday, head of the Englewood Law and Order league, and the Rev. A. M. Pennywell, pastor of the Ravenswood Methodist Episcopal church and chairman of the Methodist committee on the study of Chicago's crime and its political situation.

DAWES LEAVING TODAY TO RETURN TO LONDON POST

His Task for Promotion of Fair Finished.

Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, American ambassador to the court of St. James, will leave Chicago this afternoon en route to London, putting an end to rumors that he intends to resign. The announcement was made by Gen. Dawes at a dinner given by his brother, Rufus C. Dawes, president of the World's Fair organization, at the Chicago club last night.

The dinner was in honor of Gen. Dawes and the South Park commissioners. Rufus C. Dawes presented to Edward J. Kelly, president of the park commission, a surety bond for one million dollars to guarantee the Century of Progress exposition in 1933. The bond guarantees the presentation of the fair, insures the south park commission against any possible suit for damages incurred during the building or presentation of the exposition, and guarantees the demolition of temporary structures at the end of the fair.

Coördinates Fair Work.

Gen. Dawes, who is chairman of the finance committee of the fair, came to Chicago last Wednesday to coördinate the fair activities. He said last night that he had intended to remain in Chicago for two weeks, but found the fair organization so good that his presence was not needed.

The ambassador will leave on the Capitol Limited over the B. & O. railway at 1 o'clock, will spend Wednesday in Washington, Thursday in New York, and will sail on Friday on the Majestic.

Guests at Dinner.

Those present at the dinner besides Gen. Dawes, Rufus C. Dawes, and Mr. Kelly were: Daniel E. Burnham, secretary and director of works for the fair; Maj. L. R. Lohr, manager of the fair; Charles S. Peterson, city treasurer and vice president of the fair; Sir Henry Cole, manager of European exhibits; Prof. Faye Cooper-Cole of the University of Chicago; Stanley Field; Supt. George Donoghue, and Commissioners Lindheimer, Igoe, Bain, and Graver of the south park board.

Ends One Forgery Term; Faces New Charge Here

Herbert L. McClair, 36 years old, who claims to be a graduate of Yale, was brought back last night from Thomaston, Me., charged with having passed forged checks totaling $4,700 on the Bowmanville National bank, 4806 North Western avenue. He had been serving a year's sentence for a similar offense, and Sergt. Thomas Baynes was waiting for him when it expired last Saturday. McClair said he spent the money on a Chicago girl, to whom he posed as a rich man's son.

LANE TECH BIDS FOR STEEL HELD UNUSUALLY HIGH

Further investigation of bids for work on the new Lane Technical High school disclosed what appeared to some officials to be unusually high bids for the contract on iron and steel work.

The awarding of the contract for this building is now under fire in the board of education. The buildings and grounds committee last week refused to recommend acceptance of all bids save those necessary for the starting of construction. The low bids for the building total $5,061,285. Paul Gerhardt, the board's architect, had set the cost at $6,500,000.

One board member said yesterday he understood that $200,000 could be cut from the low bid on the steeel and iron work. He pointed out that another school could be erected for this saving. The bid was submitted by the Hansell-Elcock company and was for $725,500.

Mr. Gerhardt denied that the $6,500,000 figure, which was 28 per cent higher than the total bids, was an estimate.

"I never make estimates," the architect said. "Of course we attempt to get a rough idea what the buildings will cost. We take the cost per cubic foot of a building previously erected and multiply by the feet in the new building."

"Isn't that virtually an estimate?" he was asked.

"Yes, you might call it that," he said.

OWEN B. JONES MARRIES IN N. Y.; DIVORCED MAY 21

Owen Barton Jones, son of the late David B. Jones, Chicago financier, was married last week in New York to Miss Barbara Burns, of Nassau, Bahama islands, it was learned yesterday. They are spending their honeymoon in Atlantic City, and are expected to return to make their home in Lake Forest this week.

Jones was divorced by Mrs. Constance Bridges Jones, who was granted a decree on May 21 by Judge Edward D. Shurtleff in the Circuit court at Waukegan. She charged desertion. A financial settlement, made out of court, was reported to be in excess of $1,000,000.

Miss Gwethalyn Jones, Lake Forest, sister of Jones, declined to supply any details of her brother's marriage, except to say that it took place on either Friday or Saturday, in New York. She said he had expressed a wish to avoid publicity.

FRANCHISE FOES CHALLENGED TO GET BETTER ONE

Accused of Obstructing City's Progress.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

"The indeterminate transit franchise, on which the people will vote next Tuesday, promises both transportation and sorely needed employment," reads a statement of E. H. Burke of the Property Owners' Traction association.

"The critics of the ordinance do not promise transportation. They can't. They have no agreed plan. They disagree among themselves on what should be done. They question whether $200,000,000 will be spent for extensions and improvements; but they do not promise $20,000,000 or $2,000,000 worth of extensions.

"None of them have charged that the surface and elevated lines will not be consolidated and universal transfers given. They have not promised a merger of the surface and elevated lines with transfers. They have no feasible plan for consolidation, to say nothing of having it accepted by investors.

$200,000,000 Aids Workers.

"The critics say that it may be several months after the ordinance is passed before actual construction starts. Assume the charge is true, whether it is or not. It is certain that $200,000,000 cannot be spent without creating an enormous amount of work. That is bound to relieve the unemployment. Let the workers follow the advice of the critics and see how long it will be before they find work. Adopt the policy of the critics and it will be several years before they create work for the unemployed—if they ever do.

"Look over the opponents of the ordinance and select, if possible, a man or a group likely to evolve a constructive transportation program in which investors will put $200,000,000 for extensions and improvements.

"The ordinance pledges transportation and employment, while the opponents promises neither. Chicago wants and needs both."

New Endorsers Listed.

The nonpartisan committee headed by Ald. McDonough made public yesterday the names of eleven more civic and business organizations which have indorsed the ordinance.

"This group makes a total of 161 organizations which have taken favorable action on the ordinance," said Ald. McDonough. The new indorsements are from the following:

Northwest Lions Athletic club, Moreland club, Addison Heights Betterment and Protective association, Grand and Armitage Business Men's association, the Midwest Chicago Business association, Park View Improvement association, Auburn Highlands Improvement association, West Auburn Park association, Chatham Fields Improvement association, Progressive Improvement association, and Addison Heights Improvement association.

Gen. Milton J. Foreman, former alderman and former chairman of the council local transportation committee, urged support of the ordinance last night at a meeting of the Wage Earners' league in the North Side Turner hall.

MAYOR BOWLES LOSES FIRST ROUND IN FIGHT AGAINST RECALL VOTE

Detroit, Mich., June 23.—[Special.]—Mayor Charles Bowles lost the first round of his fight to prevent a vote upon his recall today, when Judge Arthur Webster, presiding jurist of the Wayne Circuit court, ruled that Walter B. Cary, chairman of the recall committee, be made a co-defendant in the suit started by Bowles' supporters to restrain Richard W. Reading, city clerk, from calling the recall election.

Judge Webster also ordered Bowles' attorneys to be ready with their briefs by 2 p. m., Wednesday, and gave them to understand that the case must proceed not later than Thursday.

Final figures announced by Reading showed that of the petitions filed by Cary, 94,346 were found to be valid, 19,696 were rejected because of inaccuracies, and but 1,793 signatures appeared to have been written in by persons who signed more than one name. The clerk rejected 989 signatures because no affidavit was attached.

JENKINS FIGHTS TRANSIT BILL AS INSULL MEASURE

Opposes 'Perpetual Grant' of City Streets.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Newton Jenkins yesterday gave four reasons for his opposition to the transportation ordinance:

"First, it is an Insull ordinance and I am opposed to giving the traction system of Chicago to Samuel Insull.

"Second, it provides for an indeterminate franchise, and I am opposed to giving any private interest the control of the streets in perpetuity.

"Third, the real public interest has been represented at no stage of the two years of negotiations in the ordinance. On the contrary, at every post where the people rightfully should look for vigorous representation of the people's rights, the traction interests have planted one of their paid representatives.

"Fourth, I think there is a better traction program for Chicago than that contained in this Insull ordinance. I favor public ownership and operation of the traction system with a down payment of $60,000,000 now in the traction fund, which was accumulated for that purpose."

Predicts Higher Fares.

Rodney L. Mott of the political science department of the University of Chicago issued a statement predicting there will be an increase in fares after the first three years, if the ordinance is approved by the voters next Tuesday. Relying upon the court decision in the recent Baltimore case, Prof. Mott argues that a "just and reasonable return" means an eight per cent return.

"Those who drafted this ordinance knew that the people would reject it if an eight per cent return was specified," reads the professor's statement. "No wonder they tried to disguise their gift to the traction barons. They were afraid that the people might learn that an average return of 8 per cent will mean a return of over 12 per cent on the common stock, since the bonds and preferred stock will not receive more than 6½ per cent.

Gives Record of Earnings.

"With the present rates of fare the company cannot earn 8 per cent on the capital value fixed in the ordinance. Even in the boom year of 1929 their earnings were $2,278,451 less than this. The new company will have a number of new burdens to bear as operating expenses. Among these is the three per cent to the city's traction fund. The company hopes that the loss in revenue due to free transfers will be offset by economies by joint operation, but this is only conjecture. If the extensions are built according to the plans listed in the ordinance, the company will need to earn a return on nearly double the present capitalization. Does any one think that these extensions will double the amount of traffic?

"There is only one answer to these considerations. The company will need more revenue and it will turn to the only source possible, the strap hangers.

"A vote for this ordinance is a vote to increase the transportation bill of every wage earner at least $18 per year."

David Rosenheim, chairman of the committee against the traction referendum announced yesterday that he had sent a letter to Ald. McDonough, head of the committee favoring the ordinance, asking ten questions about the franchise.

FALLS TO DEATH FROM PORCH.

Philip Spiegal, 61 years old, 3113 West Roosevelt road, was killed when he fell from the third floor porch at the rear of his home last night.

WOMAN LEADS FIGHT TO MODIFY VOLSTEAD ACT

Indianapolis, Ind., June 23.—[Special.]—Under direction of Mrs. Eleanor Dole, Washington, a city-wide canvass was begun here today to obtain signatures to a petition requesting congress to modify the Volstead act in the name of the congressional districts modification league.

Thousands of the petitions have been obtained in northern Indiana from where the staff of canvassers arrived today, she said. In South Bend 85 per cent of the persons interviewed favored the petition, Mrs. Dole said.

"In East Chicago, several known bootleggers refused to sign, giving the frank admission that modification of the Volstead act would be disastrous to their business."

When the congressional campaign opens, she said, workers of the league will stump the state in behalf of congressional candidates favoring modification.

LET DRYS BE DRY AND WETS BE WET, IS PLEA TO WOMEN

Volstead Misfit Called a Peril to Nation.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Attorney Ralph Shaw, made an audience of fifty prominent north shore women forget the soaring mercury yesterday as he discussed the eighteenth amendment. The gathering, under the auspicies of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, was held at the home of Mrs. Dudley Cates, 1190 Westmore road, Winnetka.

"Did you ever consider what might happen" propounded Mr. Shaw at one point "if present congressional sentiment with regard to liquor were reversed? Suppose that most of the congressmen believed that a drink of alcohol each day were beneficial. If it is legal for a dry majority to say to a wet minority, 'Thou shalt not drink,' why would it not be just as legal for a wet majority to say to a dry minority, 'Thou shalt drink'? And how do you think the fantastics would like it if they were compelled to drink liquor each day?"

A Misfit Regulation.

"The eighteenth amendment is nothing more, in effect, than a national police ordinance, regulating the private and widely divergent social code of conduct of a heterogeneous population. This country was founded by groups of people whose opinions of life varied greatly. The rigid Puritans settled in New England. The Catholics colonized Maryland. The cavaliers Virginia. In setting up a government for these divergent groups, our forefathers realized it would have to be one rigid enough to cope with foreign nations, yet elastic enough to permit each group to live as it wished to live.

"Under such a government, the Puritans enacted their strict Sabbath observance. The Maryland group and the cavaliers made their own regulations. This form of government functioned satisfactorily until the adoption of the eighteenth amendment imposed upon all the people the will of some.

The Right to Revolt.

"We are asked to obey this law merely because it is a law. Yet there are things higher than law. What would the clerics and the zealots at Washington have said to the early martyrs about obeying the laws of Trajan? If they had, there would have been no Christianity. What would they have advised the revolutionary heroes who turned against George III?

"It is the eighteenth amendment that is financing crime. It pays a huge per cent of profit to bootleggers and gangs. It is big enough to fight for it, it's big enough to murder for, it's big enough to bribe with. If we keep this law on our books, we are erecting a juggernaut that will in the end destroy us."

Mrs. George Brennan, Democratic woman leader, made a preliminary talk.

Among those attending the meeting were the cochairman of the Illinois branch of the organization, Mrs. William Mitchell and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler; Mrs. Clifford Rodman, Mrs. Stanley Field, Mrs. R. R. Stern, Mrs. Alice Cudahy McCormick, Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. Donald McPherson, Mrs. Arthur Cable, Mrs. Ezra Warner, Mrs. E. V. L. Brown, Mrs. Edwin Clark, and Mrs Daniel Burnham.

N. JERSEY G. O. P. TO VOTE DRY LAW REPEAL DEMAND

20 of 21 Counties Go on Record to Act Today.

Trenton, N. J., June 23.—[Special.]—With twenty of the twenty-one counties of New Jersey pledged to a plank in the state platform, demanding the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, the Republican state committee, in session in Trenton, today prepared for the vote on the repeal plank tomorrow.

The single voice of dissent came from Salem county, one of the eight counties of southern New Jersey. All those counties voted overwhelmingly for Dwight W. Morrow in Tuesday's primary, although until that time they were known as solid bone dry counties.

Salem's refusal to support the plank was revealed during a preliminary canvass.

Ambassador Morrow, who is not a member of the state committee, and who has declared that he had no deside to force his views upon the party, will address the party's representatives at noon tomorrow. After the conference he will go to Washington. There he will get in touch with affairs between this country and Mexico.

Party leaders declared that the repeal plank would carry out Ambassador Morrow's views to the letter. Those views call for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the substitution of an amendment giving the states control over the liquor traffic, with federal protection against bootleggers for such states as wish to remain dry.

At the same time State Senator Emerson L. Richards of Atlantic county will introduce a plank repealing the Hobart law, New Jersey's dry enforcement act.

FATE OF CRIME BOARD AT STAKE IN SENATE TODAY

Jones Moves to Provide $250,000 for Inquiry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—With the fate of the Wickersham commission at stake, the senate tomorrow is scheduled to vote upon conflicting proposals to permit the commission after July 1 to continue its criminal law investigation unrestricted or to confine its inquiry strictly to the problem of dry law enforcement.

The issue as to what the commission shall or shall not do was sharply drawn today, when Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.], a leader of the senate drys, supporting the Hoover administration, submitted an amendment to the pending second deficiency bill which would give the commission the $250,000 it wants during the next fiscal year to carry on its studies into various phases of crime and law enforcement, including prohibition.

At the same time a majority of the senate appropriations committee submitted its report to the senate, calling for an amendment allotting only $50,000 to the commission and with the proviso that it shall study nothing but the problem of prohibition enforcement.

The situation whereby the activities of the Wickersham group has been singled out for separate action was brought about in the house Friday. As started in the house the deficiency bill contained the $250,000 item without restrictions, but on a point of order, the item was stricken out. When the bill, minus an appropriation of any kind for the commission, reached the senate appropriations subcommittee, a majority of 6 to 1 voted to put in the $50,000 restricted item while Senator Jones held out alone for restoring the full, unrestricted $250,000 appropriation.

Senate drys appeared today to be distinctly divided upon the question and it was impossible to predict what will happen although the prevailing view was that Senator Jones, with the backing of the administration would win.

RAINIER NATIONAL PARK, "THE MOUNTAIN THAT WAS GOD"

"Lo, it is the spell of the mountain!" Visitors to Rainier National Park, Washington, talk about it. They define it as that intangible "something else"—a constant feeling of the mountain's presence in daylight or darkness—which adds its fascination to the scenic delights, the exhilarating sports and restfulness of the region.

Sensing this ever-present "personality" of the mountain, the aboriginal Indians bowed before it and called it "Tahoma—the Mountain that was God."

Today Rainier National Park attracts visitors, from every state and from foreign lands, who come to enjoy the rare experience of winter and summer sports at the same time.

Up the road to Paradise from Seattle or Tacoma, on a Northern Pacific Railway tour, park motors carry you into the strange spell of the mountain. Then you begin to understand the secret of its compelling charm.

Almost three miles high towers the massive white dome, once the largest volcano in America. Among the snows, volcanic red and purple streaks appear. Meadows and forests of rich green rival in depth of hue the whiteness of the snow and the blueness of the sky. Patriotic flower fields of red, white and blue seem to label it a great national playground and the forests shelter deer, bear, elk and mountain sheep.

Rustic, chalet-type Paradise Inn and the other hotels are modern and hospitable.

What a place to play! While some folks are climbing mountains, others are horseback riding, loafing, taking a refreshing dip in a mountain pool, fishing, skiing, fighting snowball battles or catapulting down snowy slopes in paraffined pants. And, over all, lies the spell of the mountain.

For only $90.30 round trip you can travel from Chicago to Rainier's mountain-forest playground via the Northern Pacific—the route of 28 mountain ranges!

If planning a trip please ask us to tell you more about a Rainier tour. We'll gladly arrange all details. Call personally at our conveniently located office, telephone or write.

He thought:
"You're the brightest girl in the office. Too bad 'B.O.' makes it unpleasant to be near you."
Yet, to be polite,
He said:
"Don't wait. I'll send the papers to you later."

Clever...hard working...but couldn't get ahead till she ended 'B.O.' (Body Odor)

A VERY capable girl, everyone agreed. A nice girl, too. Yet she didn't advance. Raises were slow and small. Promotions passed her by. People liked her personally, but seemed to avoid her.

Then Mrs. Carey, the new office manager, had a talk with her. Gave her a tactful hint about "B.O.", the polite term for something people dislike even to mention—body odor. Suggested a simple way to avoid offending . . . From that day on, her "luck" seemed to change. She's popular with everyone now—has twice been promoted within six months. "B.O." no longer cheats her of friendship or success.

Hotter weather no excuse for "B.O."

We perspire more freely these sultry summer days. We have to in order to endure the heat. And though we don't notice "B.O." in ourselves, the slightest hint of it annoys others.

But perspiration can be kept odorless by a simple safeguard millions of particular people have adopted. It's Lifebuoy, the delightful toilet soap that lathers so abundantly—even in hardest water. Refreshing, mildly antiseptic, this rich, creamy lather penetrates deeply into the pores—removes all odor. Its pleasant, extra-clean scent—that vanishes as you rinse—tells you Lifebuoy purifies.

Fresh, glowing beauty

Lifebuoy helps complexions renew their loveliness. Its searching, deep-cleansing lather gently frees clogged pores of impurities—freshens dull skins—promotes healthy, radiant beauty.

Groundless

The word means "without foundation"—baseless—not founded on fact—in other words, without ground!

Ground, land, is the basis of all that is solid, substantial, real. A land-owner's position in a community is equally solid, substantial, real. Land inspires confidence in others, but, even more important, it inspires confidence in self.

VIKINGS ASTRIDE PONIES RIDE TO ICELAND'S FETE

Sale of Rum Barred at 1,000 Year Celebration.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, June 23.—From the most remote corners of Iceland farmers yesterday started riding as their ancestors did 1,000 years ago to the "Great Thing"—the assembly—which opens at Thingvellir, where the Iceland parliament sat for 900 years, next Thursday and continues for three days.

Twenty thousand persons, including 3,000 or 4,000 foreign visitors and returned Icelandic emigrants and their descendants, are expected to be present. Many tents have been erected in which the visitors will live as the old Icelanders lived when the "Thing" was in session.

Ride to Assembly on Ponies.

Some of the Icelanders will cross dangerous highlands, barren of vegetation, and most of them will carry their own food and supplies.

Every man has two ponies at least, one to ride on and one on which to pack food and blankets. The stages are so arranged that the travelers may sleep at farms and in barns along the way.

The "Great Thing" is being held to celebrate the thousandth anniversary of its foundation in 930 by the hardy Norse chiefs who a few years before had left Norway rather than submit to the rule of King Harald the Fair Haired. Before long they found the need for some national organization and called the "Great Thing," at which it was decided there would be no king of Iceland, but that all men were equal and would meet as equals as the "Thing," which was named Althing to distinguish it from local assemblies.

Will Speak from Rock.

On Thursday afternoon representatives of foreign governments will deliver addresses from the Logberg—the rock from which the laws were proclaimed in the old days—and Senator Peter Norbeck of South Dakota will deliver a message of greeting from the United States. Senator Norbeck and Representative O. B. Burtness of North Dakota yesterday were guests at an Icelandic picnic given by Siguard Puetursson, leading Icelandic woolen manufacturer, at the Alefoss mills.

The government today forbade the sale of alcoholic liquor of any kind until July 1.

SEARCH MOUNTAIN TOP FOR LOST BOY SCOUT MISSING SINCE FRIDAY

Riverside, Cal., June 23.—(AP)—Over the rugged, snow-draped crags of Mount San Jacinto, 10,000 feet above the southern California desert, searchers led by veteran alpinists hunted tonight for 13 year old Harold Johnson, Boy Scout, son of R. J. Johnson, postmaster at Corona.

Harold strayed from a company of Scouts on a hiking expedition last Friday. He had bedding and was versed in mountain and timber lore and known to be resourceful. But the fact he has a foot ailment and virtually no food caused friends to doubt he might survive until found.

An army aviator yesterday spied a boy he thought might be Harold, but no trace of him was found by the land searching party. The chief fear was that he may have fallen over a cliff.

FIND 100 CASES OF CHAMPAGNE ON SCUTTLED SHIP

Cape May, N. J., June 23.—(AP)—Scuttled on its trial voyage, with a jagged hole in its port side and its crew missing, the Daisy T., a 45 foot cruiser, was found foundered today in Delaware bay, midway across the bay from Cape May.

The cruiser was launched at a New York shipyard last week. Divers who examined the crippled craft expressed the opinion it had been rammed by a hi-jacking vessel. They reported finding more than 100 cases of champagne aboard the cruiser.

Ship bags filled with clothing found on the sunken craft led investigators to believe it carried a crew of six.

MONTREAL, June 23.—[Special.]—The appointment was announced today by McGill university of Dr. Kiang Kanghu as professor of Chinese studies and head of that department at McGill. Dr. Kiang Kanghu is regarded as one of the foremost scholars among the Chinese. He early acquired an active interest in western civilization, receiving his modern education first in Japan, then in Belgium, and last in America.

BANDIT BINDS WOMAN TO POST, SETS HER AFIRE

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—Enraged because he had obtained no loot, a young thug made a murderous attempt on the life of Mrs. Rebecca Hirsh, 35, in her apartment in the Crown Heights residential section of Brooklyn, today.

After binding her hands and feet and placing a gag in her mouth, he tied her to a post and set fire to her skirt. He then fled, leaving her to her fate.

Mrs. Hirsch succeed in ejecting the gag and smothering the flames. She then knocked the telephone over and shouted for help. Her cries were heard by the operator, who notified the police.

Jury Commends Special Cop for Killing Robber

A coroner's jury yesterday commended Mitchell Boland, a special policeman, for killing William Kravanek, 5825 South Troy street, when he attempted to rob Boland and another special policeman, Joseph Koler, at Fair Oaks avenue and Iowa street, Oak Park, Sunday night. John Schouida, 5146 West 22d street, Cicero, and E. T. O'Brien, 193 Marion street, Oak Park, both victims of recent robberies, identified Kravanek as the man who had held them up. Police said Kravanek had a record for burglary and auto stealing. Two companions escaped.

SCIENCE TREATS WOOD TO RESIST FIRE FOR HOURS

Holds Back Heat 6 Times as Long as Metal.

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.
[Associated Press Science Editor.]

New York, June 23.—(AP)—A safety wood which exhales its own fire extinguisher was exhibited here today by Prof. Albin H. Beyer of the Columbia university testing laboratories.

A two inch thick door of the wood held back smoke and flames six times as long as did a metal-covered door. The protective moisture is a secret chemical preparation, Dr. Beyer explained, which is produced on the skin of the wood. It is like glue and is made by the touch of the flames combining with chemical soaked into the wood.

A Charred Black Film.

The wet skin retards fire, which, however, eats it off slowly, leaving a charred black film. As soon as this top skin is eaten through, a new layer forms underneath because the chemicals impregnate the wood. Only the topmost layer of molecules, said Prof. Beyer, are affected at any one moment. They explode at touch of flames, throwing out tiny sprays.

The test was conducted for Henry Klein, manufacturer, who invented the process. The metal covered and the wooden doors were set in the sides of a large furnace, the flames sweeping their interior faces.

The metal covered door quickly became untouchably hot, passing 100 degrees in about three minutes and passing the boiling point of water in about 15 minutes. The wooden door's exterior reached 100 degrees after about 30 minutes, and 150 degrees at about 45 minutes. It did not rise much above 200 until near the moment of burning through.

Holds Back Flames.

In the metal covered door after ten minutes smoke poured through the joints in heavy clouds and flames appeared. The wooden door held back both smoke and flames for a full hour until it was less than one-eighth of an inch thick.

Prof. Beyer said the duration of fire resistance depends partly on the amount of chemical absorbed, and that within one to two hours, resistance to flames may be fixed quite accurately in advance by gauging the amount. He said the door used today came from wood processed for about four and a half months, first by air drying, then kiln drying, soaking and finally air drying.

SECOND MORTGAGE ON LAMBS' CLUB; ACTORS IDLE AND DUES UNPAID

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—So many actors are out of work and unable to pay their dues or house bills that the Lambs' club has been compelled to borrow money to meet its obligations, Arthur Byron, acting shepherd of the club, and Oscar Shaw, the recording secretary, declared today in a petition submitted to Supreme Court Justice Lydon for permission to place a second mortgage of $100,000 on the club house property. The petition was granted.

Mr. Shaw explained that the success of the motion picture, particularly the talkie, had virtually done away with road shows, while the contraction in the production of plays here in New York had left scores of actors with no prospect of getting work. As a result, he said, many actors have been unable to pay dues or house bills.

Tear Gas Fails to Foil Burglars in Rockford

SUBURBS LEAD CITY IN WAR ON NOXIOUS WEEDS

Warn Property Owners of Penalties.

Enforcement of the state weed law, which requires the cutting and destruction of Canada thistles, is being taken care of much better in Chicago's suburbs than in the city itself, according to Albert C. Wilson of the division of plant industry of the Illinois state department of agriculture.

The state law provides that county or township weed commissions may be set up and enforcement pursued under state authority, but it does not make such weed control mandatory.

Officials Pledge Action.

Mr. Wilson recently inspected areas in the north half of Cook county and announces that the Cook county forest preserve and the sanitary district authorities promise to cut and spray to kill thistles and other noxious weeds this summer.

Subdivision owners have been warned that weed cutting on idle acres in the metropolitan area will be undertaken soon by weed commissioners. The last legislature raised the pay for this work from $3 a day to $6 a day, but it specified that assessments for cutting the weeds where land owners do not do the work should go into township, town or county treasuries.

Owners Liable to Fine.

Any property owners refusing to destroy weeds are liable to fines of from $5 to $100, but the law also provides that enforcement measures can be set up whereby the property owner is notified to cut or destroy weeds; that if this notice is not heeded the work shall be done and an assessment billed to the owner.

A standard formula announced recently makes a simple job of eradicating thistles. It is made with sodium chlorate, applying one pound to every gallon of water used in the spray.

Dorothy Carman, Writer, Is Granted Reno Divorce

Reno, Nev., June 23.—[Special.]—Dorothy Walworth Carman, authoress, was granted a decree from Allan Carman, New York publisher. She was awarded custody of a child and $50 a month for its care. The agreement said to have been made was not a part of the decree.

Mr. Chapin came to Chicago in 1876, organizing the grain commission firm of Chapin & Edwards, with which he remained until 1912. He then joined Rumsey & Co. and was a member of the Board of Trade until his retirement two years ago.

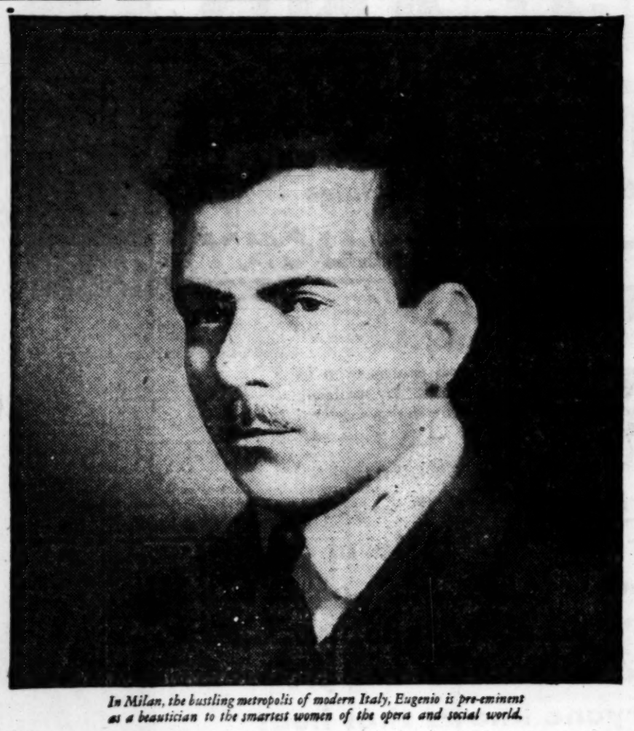
"Why do I advise vegetable oils in soap? Because—as embodied in Palmolive—they get down into the pores where ordinary soaps do not reach."

Eugenio
CORSO VITTORIO EMANUELE
GALLERIA DEL CORSO 2, MILAN



In Milan, the bustling metropolis of modern Italy, Eugenio is pre-eminent as a beautician to the smartest women of the opera and social world.

"These fine cosmetic oils as embodied in Palmolive Soap protect your skin against irritation"

says EUGENIO

distinguished beauty specialist of Milan

"ORDINARY soaps," warns Eugenio, of Milan, "are likely to irritate the skin, particularly if your skin is sensitive."

Eugenio speaks with authority. He has one of the most celebrated beauty shops in northern Italy . . . a shop which receives the patronage of aristocrats, stars of the opera, women of wealth and social distinction. To them his word is beauty law.

Why you should use Palmolive

Today, Palmolive Soap is recommended by a total of more than 23,000 beauty specialists throughout the world. Here is a vast group of men and women, every one an expert in the profession of beauty culture . . . every one advising the twice-a-day use of Palmolive. Why?

Because, in Eugenio's own words, "The vegetable oils in Palmolive lather remove dirt, face creams and powder without irritating the skin and they leave the complexion fresh, glowing, lovely."

These two beauty oils, famous since the days of Cleopatra, are most beneficial when used in the following treatment: with both hands massage Palmolive lather into the skin. Rinse it off, and with it dirt, make-up, impurities. A final rinse with cold water (almost icy in temperature) is a fine astringent. This celebrated treatment, so easy to perform, is today the world's most popular home facial treatment. For Palmolive is not only unique in its effect but it costs so little that other soaps seem extravagant in comparison.

Palmolive, as you probably know, is a fine vegetable oil soap. It is made of the oils of palm and olive . . . and owes its natural, green color to these beauty oils alone. Their natural odor makes unnecessary the addition of heavy perfumes. The result is a soap of refreshing fragrance and rare blandness.

Eugenio's salon is large and his experts are kept busy all day long in the treatment booths which line the corridors of his Milan establishment. This view of one of the halls indicates the size and scientific equipment of Eugenio's shop.

You should use a soap made for the sole purpose of safeguarding beautiful complexions—a soap containing nature's finest cleansing agent—olive oil.

Consult your beauty expert

Get into the habit of consulting your beauty expert regularly. And take her advice: use Palmolive Soap twice a day. Use it for the bath, too. You'll soon discover that it is, indeed, as Eugenio, of Milan, says, "your best protection against skin irritation."

SENATE PASSES VETS' BILL OVER HOOVER'S PLEAS

Ignores Warning of Tax Increase.

which deals entirely with the care of disabled veterans.

Amendments by Senator Reed which would have reduced the first year's cost of the bill to $35,000,000 were rejected. Senator Reed was unable to muster enough support to force roll calls on his amendments, so one sided was the sentiment in favor of the provisions of the bill as reported from the finance committee and as favored by the American Legion.

Amendments Brushed Aside.

The Reed amendments were understood to be acceptable to President Hoover and thus to insure enactment of legislation at this session. Supporters of the bill were so confident of their ability to get it on the statute books, even though to do so they must pass it over the President's veto, that they brushed aside with scant consideration all suggestions for compromise.

Although the odds appear against them, administration leaders have not given up the fight but will make a last stand in the house.

Republican members of the house have been called to attend a caucus tomorrow night at which administration leaders will attempt to obtain a pledge for a program involving sending the bill to conference for amendment and, failing in that, to stand together in opposition to passage over the President's veto.

Legion Asks Concurrence.

Friends of the bill, including the American Legion, will try to have the house concur in all senate amendments to the original house bill, thus avoiding difficulties and delays involved in the conference method of adjusting differences between the senate and house bills. The original house bill would cost 181 million dollars the first year and ultimately 400 million dollars annually, according to the veterans' bureau estimates. No effort is being made to go back to the house bill provisions.

The house at the time of the original passage of the bill showed the same temper exhibited today by the senate and prospects for amending it to meet the administration's wishes are not bright.

There continued to be talk that the President might "pocket veto" the bill if he is able to do so, but congress may refuse to adjourn until he acts. If the President promptly vetoes the bill the two houses may be able to act on its passage over the veto by Thursday or Friday and adjournment may come by the end of the week. The program will remain uncertain until the veterans' bill reaches the White House.

Proposed Pension System.

The Reed amendment proposed what was in effect a pension system which would take care of all disabled veterans whether their disability was due to war service or not, but at lower rates than provided under the committee bill. For a 25 per cent disability there would be a monthly compensation of $12; for a 50 per cent disability, $18; for a 75 per cent disability, $24, and for a total disability, $40. Under the committee bill a veteran qualifying under the presumptive date system might receive up to $100 a month.

An important difference between the two proposals was that the Reed amendment provided that no claim for disability due to the veteran's own misconduct could be made while the committee bill permits compensation to a veteran "suffering from a venereal disease contracted not later than the date of his discharge or resignation from the service during the world war." Senator Reed, besides meeting defeat on his main amendment, failed to obtain adoption of an amendment striking out the venereal disease clause from the committee bill.

Compensation would have been granted under the Reed proposal only to those whose incomes were not in excess of the income tax exemptions.

Administration Criticized.

In the all afternoon debate which preceded action President Hoover and Secretary Mellon were harshly criticized.

Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rep., Wis.] said that "if we can give 160 millions back to the wealthy to psychologize the stock market it is time we give something to the veterans."

"Secretary Mellon has never been ton was 900 millions out of the way in his predictions at the time of the passage of the soldiers' bonus bill. I'm not concerned about these pitiful thimble rigged statements given out at psychological moments to defeat soldier legislation."

Quote Other Expenditures.

There was applause in the galleries in violation of rules following the La Follette speech.

Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] said that no one is paying a burdensome income tax at present and there will be no great injury if higher tax rates of last year are restored.

Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.] said there was no talk of deficits when ship subsidy legislation was proposed or when foreign debts were funded with a virtual cancellation of part of the principal.

Senator Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.] defended the venereal disease provisions.

"The government's long arm reached out and took these men from home influences, church influences, and moral influences," said Senator Copeland. "I believe there is an obligation on the part of the government to care for suffering veterans whatever the cause of their disability."

Reed Takes Issue.

Senator Reed took sharp issue with Senator Copeland.

Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.] said that Secretary Mellon "says there isn't any money in the treasury when a soldiers' bill is up, but when there are enormous tax refunds to war profiteers there is plenty of money."

"INGAGI" PRODUCERS SUE HAYS AND OTHERS —DEMAND $3,365,000

Los Angeles, Cal., June 23.—[Special.] — Backers of the independent motion picture "Ingagi," which depicts gorillas, giraffes, and Congo thrills, today filed suit asking $3,565,000 from Will Hays and others of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors' association. They claim damages through an asserted ban laid against exhibition of "Ingagi." The gorilla picture producers set forth that their product is "an authentic record of African adventure" into which 15 per cent of footage was made in Hollywood studios. "The same license granted to and taken by every one who produces a wild animal picture."

block from his home, he collapsed. He was pronounced dead at Henrotin hospital.

Other heat victims were Herman Deutsch, 58 years old, 1318 North Western avenue, who died at his home, and an unidentified man about 50 years old, apparently a laborer, who collapsed in a doorway at Congress and Morgan streets.

Swimming in the Jackson Park lagoon, as yet unprotected by life guards, Robert Bales, 18 years old, a senior at Hyde Park High school and living at 5106 Kenwood avenue, was seized with cramps. A companion, trying to rescue him, was almost pulled under. Coast guardsmen recovered Robert's body.

An unidentified young man about 21 years old, six feet tall, with black hair and whose fifth finger on the left hand was deformed, became exhausted while swimming with five other youths to the breakwater 300 yards off Oak street beach. Thousands heard his cries but no one reached the spot before he sank for the third time. Lifeguards recovered his body.

A 12 year old colored boy, Marvin Miller, 4952 South Dearborn street, lost his footing as he waded into deep water in the Washington Park lagoon. Two policemen of the Wabash avenue district recovered his body and applied artificial respiration, but without result.

Chicagoan Is Drowned.

Spending a vacation at Slocum lake in western Lake county near Wauconda, Otto Pfister, 27 years old, 4241 North Leclaire avenue, was drowned while wading. He stepped into a deep hole near shore, struggled with his sister-in-law, Miss Victoria Dropp, who had seized his hair, and compelled her to let go to avoid being dragged down also. His body was recovered three hours later.

SPECIAL SESSION OF ASSEMBLY TO END TOMORROW

Leaders Move to Hasten Relief Bill Action.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Efforts to wind up the special session of the Illinois general assembly tomorrow were reported to have become general yesterday following the final Chicago meeting of the special senate committee which has been surveying the financial needs of the local governments in Cook county.

A morning session of the committee was confined to consideration of a constitutionality question raised in connection with some of the pending relief bills. There was no vote taken but an understanding was reached that the committee, because of the shortness of time, will not submit a written report but its members will state their personal opinions based on testimony at the hearings here.

Seek to Cancel Big Hearing.

The committee will meet just before the senate convenes today but, because of the expressed attitude of its members, there was an effort begun to call off the big hearing scheduled before the full chamber.

Word was sent to Lieut. Gov. Sterling as president of the senate that the committee saw no necessity for the presence in Springfield of Mayor Thompson, President Cermak and others invited after the adoption of the Mason resolution last Thursday. The committee heard the important witnesses here, the lieutenant governor was told.

If the senate hearing is called off it is believed easily possible that this chamber will act speedily on the Strawn committee bills, advancing them to third reading when it convenes today and passing them tomorrow, possibly before noon.

Shore Bill to Die, View.

Under this arrangement the house is expected to take final action on the Camp Grant artillery range bill, but it is expected the Lincoln park $1,000,000 shore protection bond bill will die on the calendar, as its passage would require at least two additional days' meetings of the senate.

The legal question before the Mason committee was raised by one of its members, Senator Adolph Marks. He challenged the validity of the "working cash fund" bond bills, but three attorneys who discussed his contention Hayden Bell, Fran S. Righeimer, and and W. F. Struckmann—supported the contention of Walter F. Dodd, William H. Sexton, and other counsel for the Strawn committee that the bills are sound.

NAB PAROLE VIOLATOR.

Russel Mineard, sought by police for 14 months for violation of parole, was arrested in Chicago yesterday and returned to Grand Rapids, Mich.

Builders Attack Coughlin's Plan to Allow Larger Towers

Architects and real estate men appeared yesterday before the council building and zoning committee in opposition to the proposed amendment to the zoning code advocated by Ald. John J. Coughlin [1st] to allow the erection of larger towers on loop buildings. The opponents declared the amendment is economically unsound and that its adoption would result in the destruction of the Chicago skyline.

The Coughlin amendment proposes an increase in the tower area from 25 per cent of the base of the building proper to 40 per cent, and an increase in the tower volume from one-sixth of the volume of the entire structure to one-fourth. Proportionate increases in height would be allowed.

White Opposes Proposal.

"Chicago has a beautiful skyline now," said Howard White, member of the architectural firm of Graham, Anderson, Probst and White. "Property owners can utilize their land to the best advantage under the provisions of the 1923 ordinance and if we go beyond that we are not getting anything."

In answer to a questionnaire a majority of the Chicago members of the Illinois Society of Architects, according to Mr. White, replied that the present allowable height is sufficient. Three other questions asked and the general answer given to them follow:

Q.—Would an increase in the height and volume of buildings increase congestion in the loop? A.—Yes.

Q.—Would the proposed change affect land values? A.—Yes.

Q.—Should the zoning ordinance be changed as proposed in this amendment? A.—No.

Sees Danger to Builders.

"Millions of dollars have been invested in building in the loop since the old ordinance was passed," Mr. White said. "This amendment would place at a disadvantage the man who has built in good faith, believing that the present code would stand for some time."

"We can't penalize the man who has already built," interposed Ald. Albert J. Horan [29th].

Ald. Coughlin explained that the owner of "inside property" is discriminated against under the present law. He declared that corner property is given special privileges in the erection of towers.

Building Managers' View.

"The inside property is not penalized under the present code," stated John T. Redmond, president of the Building Managers' association. "Buildings can be erected on inside lots to the same height as on corner, lots. But 99 times out of 100 it is not economically sound." He then had read a letter which he had sent to Ald. William R. O'Toole, chairman of the building committee.

"After a careful study of this proposed amendment and after consultation with architects and others concerned in this matter," read the letter, "we have reached the conclusion that the provisions relating to building heights in volume 5 [the central business district] should not be changed at this time.

"The amendment now before you and your committee merely makes a change in the arbitrary restrictions imposed by the zoning ordinance as adopted in 1923.

Plea for Present Rules.

"One of the principal advantages of the ordinance of 1923 was that it was regarded as a more or less permanent settlement of the much discussed question of building heights.

"Adoption of the amendment now before you would be a return to the practice of periodically disturbing the standards by which large structures could be designed and built. Its only purpose is an increase in bulk, which is by no means the only important factor to be considered in the development of our city."

A statement of the Chicago Real Estate board, given to the aldermen by P. W. Jones, declared "the necessity for this amendment has not been made clear to us and no adequate reasons have been presented which seem to justify it." Byron H. Jillson of the architectural concern of Jillson & Pierce also spoke against the proposed amendment.

F. J. Thielbar, an architect, who was the only one besides Ald. Coughlin who spoke in favor of the amendment, said the present ordinance places a burden on the owner of small lots and that the change would stimulate building on small lots. The committee decided to hold another public hearing on the amendment on June 30.

SET BAT INQUEST FOR TODAY.

An inquest will be held today into the death of Theodore Schmidt, 40 years old, 838 East 38th street, who died yesterday of injuries received Sunday when his foster son, Rudolph Olsen, 30 years old, 1304 East 72nd street, struck him with a baseball bat. Olsen is being held.

TRAIN BARRAGE OF LAWSUITS ON BOULDER DAM

Opponents Also Plan an Attack in Senate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—The Boulder dam controversy was rushed the courts simultaneously with notice of a fight on the floor of the senate against the grant of the initial appropriation for the project.

A suit to enjoin Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur from the expenditure of government funds was filed in the District of Columbia Supreme court by Fred Coulter, former Arizona state senator, on behalf of the irrigation districts in that state, as a citizen and taxpayer, Mr. Coulter charges fraud in the negotiation of water power contracts, disputes the validity of the contracts and contends that the sovereignty of the state of Arizona is infringed upon by the Boulder dam act.

The petition was received by mail, and as no fee was inclosed a summons was not issued.

State Also Plans Suit.

This suit is distinct from one to be commenced officially by the state of Arizona in the District of Columbia Supreme court after the second deficiency act carrying $10,000,000 for the starting of construction work at Boulder dam has been passed. The state of Arizona suit also may be filed in the name of a taxpayer and it will be an injunction suit. Later on it is understood that the state of Arizona plans to commence proceedings in the Supreme court of the United States to contest the validity of the entire Boulder dam act.

Renewal of the controversy over Boulder dam on the floor of the senate was promised by Senator Carl Hayden [Dem., Ariz.], who in a minority report from the senate appropriation committee on the second deficiency bill, opposed approval of the item as carried in the house bill.

Says Promise Has Been Broken.

"A solemn promise made in order to secure the passage of the Boulder canyon project has not been kept," said Senator Hayden. "Congress was repeatedly assured that the city of Los Angeles would be the principal guarantor for the return of the money advanced by the federal government for the construction of the Boulder canyon project. That city has guaranteed nothing.

"Something alleged to be 'just as good' has been substituted. Its bureau of power and water has made a contract for the lease of power privileges which it is freely confessed cannot be enforced against the city of Los Angeles. There is also good reason to justify the opinion that this contract cannot be enforced against the bureau. Congress should beware of substitutes and insist that no appropriation of money will be made until the original pledge is redeemed in every detail.

Questions Act's Fairness.

"This requires an immediate decision as to whether it is advisable for congress to appropriate public money collected from taxpayers throughout the United States to produce cheap electric power which will be distributed at rental to consumers in one section of the country by private agencies for profit."

Senator Hayden said that California has refused to carry out a provision of the Boulder dam act which authorizes an agreement among the states of Arizona, California, and Nevada, for an equitable division of the waters of the lower basin of the Colorado river.

"There is not enough water in the Colorado river to completely serve the various states," said Senator Hayden. "Water is the chief factor which limits the growth of population and wealth in both Arizona and Southern California. Arizona wants to be assured of a fair share."

GREAT GRANDCHILD OF HENRY CLAY SELLS HIGHBOY FOR $45,000

Lexington, Ky., June 23.—Miss Henrietta Clay, Lexington, a great-granddaughter of Henry Clay, has sold a Surry highboy, a family heirloom, for $45,000 to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The mahogany antique of rarely beautiful workmanship is said to be one of three similar pieces in this country. It was made in Philadelphia nearly one hundred years ago by Surry, the noted cabinet maker, and was sold to Michael Gratz, member of the Philadelphia family. It was inherited by Miss Annie Gratz of Lexington, a great-granddaughter of Michael Gratz. She married Thomas Henry Clay, son of the commener. A relative of Miss Clay, who visited here recently, saw the highboy and recognized its value. He spoke to an eastern dealer who communicated with Miss Clay and later bought the piece of furniture for the museum.

U.S. Sailor Stabbed in Back as He Tries to Stop Fight

CHERBOURG, France, June 23.—(AP)—An American sailor from the battleship Arkansas today was in a critical condition following a stabbing affray ashore last night. The bluejacket, whose name was said to be Plec, was stabbed in the back when he tried to stop a fight between French and Polish seamen. The blade penetrated his lung.

SWANSON TO ASK GENERAL ATTACK ON BOND RULING

State's Attorney Swanson said yesterday he would enlist the aid of the 101 other state's attorneys of Illinois in an effort to upset the ruling of the Supreme court last week, which gives the county boards the sole right to compromise forfeited bail bonds. The high court in the original decision said that the county board did not have this right but in a new opinion on a rehearing changed the ruling.

The case at issue was that involving a $10,000 bond, which the county board had settled for a few hundred dollars. Prosecutor Swanson objected and appealed.

"This is a very serious situation," said the prosecutor. "It is encouraging to the criminal element. For instance, a criminal is freed on $10,000 bond and becomes a fugitive from justice. Several months later the county board can accept a small payment as a compromise. This most certainly will not act as a deterrent to stop criminals from forfeiting bonds when they know that they are in danger of going to the penitentiary."

Why can't Electrolux grow noisy with age?

IF you want to make a real test of how quietly an automatic refrigerator operates, don't go to the display room where it is sold.

Visit the home of some friend who has owned that refrigerator a year or more. Then you'll get the true answer.

One of the unique things about Electrolux is that it can't grow noisy with age. No matter how long you operate this refrigerator, it can't make a sound.

Here's the reason why. In Electrolux there is no machinery, not a single moving part to wear, to vibrate, to make sound. A tiny gas flame, a slight trickle of water, do all the work. They circulate the refrigerant that actually produces cold—endlessly, noiselessly.

There is no stopping and starting. The process of making cold goes on all the time. Consequently the temperature inside your Electrolux varies scarcely at all from the ideal point.

Electrolux works absolutely without attention. The refrigerant is hermetically sealed in a rigid one-piece steel unit for a lifetime—never needs renewal. Even the little gas flame is equipped with an automatic shut-off. This prevents the flow of unlighted gas.

The only way Electrolux announces its presence is by the good service it renders. When you put food in it, you notice the refrigerator is always cold, that it keeps things perfectly. When you need ice cubes there are always plenty there. Desserts freeze perfectly. Salads are chilled to perfection.

But quietness and efficiency aren't the only things you get when you have Electrolux. You have all the advantages of automatic refrigeration—plus a reduction of your refrigeration bills to a fraction of their former cost. Electrolux costs less to use than any other system of refrigeration—not more than a few pennies a day even for the largest size. The exact amount depends upon your local gas and water rates. Figure up how much extra money such savings give you for other things.

And when you buy an Electrolux, you don't have to pay a higher price for its extra advantages. It costs about the same, size for size, as other automatic refrigerators—$195 to $430, f. o. b. Evansville. Various models and colors to choose from. Liberal purchase terms. See Electrolux at the display rooms listed below, and to get complete, illustrated information by mail, send the coupon below.

THE TRACTION ORDINANCE.
IV. GOOD SERVICE AT A FAIR PRICE.

There are only two ways by which Chicago can obtain the tracks and cars required to give the people adequate local transportation.

The city might borrow the money to buy the lines and several hundred millions of dollars besides to modernize them. That is the way of municipal ownership. Under existing limitations on the city's right to borrow money, that way is closed for the present and for an indeterminate future. There is no slightest reason to suppose that the people of Chicago want to employ this method or that the legislature would let them if they did. Certainly everything that is known about municipal government in Chicago—and it is a great deal—argues against iptrusting any further financial power to it. A government which prostitutes almost every public service which it controls cahnot be trusted to operate a half-billion dollars' worth of transportation property with anything approaching competence.

The alternative is private ownership and management. That is the method which is pursued in the ordinance to be voted upon by the people of Chicago on July 1. Private investors are to contribute the money to build the extensions and in return are to receive interest or dividends on the money they put up.

There are two possible weaknesses in this method. The first is that fares will be boosted in order to earn larger profits. The danger is met in the ordinance by limiting the return to the company to a reasonable profit upon the capital actually invested in the enterprise. Anything above that minimum goes to the city and can be used either to reduce the capitalization of the company and thereby force a corresponding reduction in fares, or it may be spent for extensions and betterments of the service without increasing the capital account of the company on which profits may be earned.

The determination of what is a reasonable rate of return belongs in the first instance to a commission of three appointed by the mayor with the approval of the city council, and if the city is dissatisfied with that finding an appeal may be taken to the courts.

The other danger is that the company's bonds will not be sufficiently secure and the company's stock will not earn enough to attract the money of private investors. In such a situation the car riders would suffer for lack of adequate facilities, exactly as they do today. The investment must be made sufficiently attractive to get all the money needed and get it at a low rate.

The ablest financial brains in Chicago have said that the ordinance will enable the company to raise all the money it may need. The bankers are on record as saying that they will underwrite the securities. Mr. Walter Fisher is on record as saying that the interests of the car riders in having fares held to a minimum consistent with good service are protected. The men who drafted the ordinance have sought to steer a safe course between inadequate and excessive profits and they have succeeded, in our judgment.

As far back as 1927 the elevated and surface lines together carried more than 1,000,000,000 fare-paying passengers. An increase of only a tenth of a cent in the fare would have added $1,000,000 to the company's income. An increase of 1 cent in the fare would have added $10,000,000. With many of the costs of operation coming down, as the result of a general lowering of commodity prices, there is little reason to fear any increase in fare now and very little reason to fear a substantial increase in the future. If fares are raised, the car riders will have the satisfaction of knowing that they are getting something for their money. Under present conditions fares have been raised on both elevated and surface lines without improvement in service to compensate for the increase.

The ordinance is designed to enable the company to make money, but not too much money. It is designed to give the car riders improved service and to keep fares as low as is consistent with good service. Any voter who expects good service on any other terms is reaching for the moon.

SENATOR GLASS AND HIS DIAL PHONE.

A few of the more advanced senators tried to save their dial telephones from the order ripping them out. Senator Tydings of Maryland, Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, Senator Norris of Nebraska and Senator Barkley of Kentucky said they thought they knew how to use them and liked them. With Mr. Norris it was his radical blood which in this instance intervened to keep his prohibition instincts from working. Senator Glass of Virginia, another dry, was truer to form. He didn't know how to use the dials, he didn't like them and no one in the senate should have them even if any one could use them.

So admirable a doctrine so admirably delineated by the Virginia patrician, of course, must prevail in the United States senate, and Senator Glass was not required to make any compromises with his feelings in the matter. He wants his dial instrument ripped out and Senator Tydings must submit to losing his own. Occasionally some of the Fathers want to call up the Man in the Green Hat and they cannot spend half the afternoon trying to get Coldwater 1920 by experimenting with alphabetical combinations beginning with K. Moreover, they are likely to get their fingers or their hair caught in the machinery or become so engrossed in their struggles with the unrelenting instrument that they will not hear some scoundrel enter their office to paw over their correspondence.

Above all there shines through the controversy and the bewilderment and anger of the senators the effulgence of the serene principle that no one shall have what a prohibitionist does not want.

THE WATERWAY FOR 1931.

The state division of waterways anticipates that the federal government will require three years to complete the Illinois waterway when it takes charge under the act of congress, it being assumed that no construction will be begun this summer. With such a schedule the traffic would not be in the canal until 1933. There is no reason why the waterway cannot be opened in the fall of 1931 unless it is to be found in bureaucratic indifference and inefficiency. Chicago knows from its post-office experiences what the bureaucratic blight can do, and with the waterway the influences which have tried to keep water out of it will aid anything which delays construction. The bureaucratic instinct must be overcome. The other influences must be suppressed.

THE CUNEO DECISION.

The Illinois Supreme court has affirmed the decision of Judge Thomas Taylor of the Circuit court of Cook county in the Cuneo case. Mr John F. Cuneo sought to erect a 60 story building at Randolph street and Michigan avenue. It was to rise 440 feet from the street before a setback was provided. A permit to erect such a building was granted by the building commissioner in accordance with an ordinance slipped through the zoning committee of the city council and the council itself without debate or even explanation. The issuance of the permit was upheld by the zoning board of appeals, from whose finding neighboring property owners appealed to the courts. The Supreme court of the state has now decided that the ordinance amending the zoning law is illegal.

The decision will be welcomed by the public. The court has upheld a building restriction which has given Chicago architectural distinction. Under the provisions of the law limiting the height at the street line to 264 feet before a setback, a type of building has been devised which has given Chicago leadership in skyscraper design. The Cuneo ordinance, as it came to be called, threatened to upset the established proportions of our buildings.

The decision is welcome, also, as a warning to public officials and property owners that efforts spent in attempts to whittle away the restrictions in the zoning ordinances are likely to prove costly failures. The manner in which the ordinance was presented to the council and passed did much to consolidate public opinion against it. The conclusion that something was being slipped over was inevitable. We may hope that the decision of the court will discourage further attempts of the same sort.

SAFEGUARDING FUTURE ROAD PROGRAMS.

Officials of the country towns in Cook county have been slow to coöperate with the state highway department in its program of road widening. The department wishes the towns to pass ordinances forbidding building within 50 feet of the center of the state highways. A 100 foot right of way is not required at present, but it will be needed in the future, and the department is correct in insisting that the cost of acquiring the right of way in future be held to a minimum. If buildings are erected on land to be needed in future for roads, the cost of those roads will be increased needlessly.

Officials of the villages have met with the highway officials and agreed to pass the desired ordinances. It is plainly in their interest to do so. The desirability of these suburban towns as places of residence or for industry depends largely upon their accessibility. Adequate automobile roads leading to them will mean enhanced real estate values. The suburban towns can assure their own future by coöperating promptly with the highway department.

Editorial of the Day

THE ADAMS "DYNASTY."

[Boston Herald.]

Says James Truslow Adams, the New England historian, in his book now just issued on the Adams family: "In America there is one family, and only one, that generation after generation has consistently and without interruption made contributions of the highest order to our history and civilization." The author of this new volume is at pains to make it clear that there is no blood connection between his own family and the one to which he devotes his book.

John Adams defended Capt. Preston in the Boston massacre case, nominated Washington for commander in chief of the colonial forces, eloquently advocated the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, was our first minister to England, and became the second President of the United States. John Quincy Adams, his son, was a diplomat, United States senator, professor at Harvard, secretary of state in the Monroe Doctrine time, sixth President of the United States, and then, the most remarkable period in his career, a member of the house of representatives for years.

Charles Francis Adams was minister to England during the civil war, holding that lonely outpost with most remarkable success, and American commissioner for the Alabama claims arbitration. Of the four sons of Charles Francis, John Quincy was a vice presidential nominee and a leader in civic affairs; Brooks was author of the "Emancipation of Massachusetts"; Charles Francis was a railroad expert, chairman of the first Massachusetts railroad commission, and a voluminous writer, especially gifted in the exposure of chicanery, and Henry was a historian, founder of a celebrated salon at Washington, author of the famous "Education." He inspired Saint Gaudens to create that wonderful bronze memorial in Pine Rock cemetery. The Charles Francis of today is the son of "John Quincy's grandson, John Quincy," for thirty years was treasurer of Harvard, served on the naval pact committee in London and is now secretary of the navy and head of the family.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

ANTHONY TROLLOPE— WHAT A MAN! WHAT A MAN!

Our "I Will Not Pay Two Bucks for a Modern Novel Club" is doing fine. The secretary is besieged hourly by members demanding badges. The club also requires its members to refuse more than is implied in the club name, for the rest of the title is, "Nor cough up two bucks and four bits for a detective story." We scared the booksellers into starting the dollar book thing, but that isn't enough. At the next meeting the club's president, the Rev. Reada Owfullot, is going to speak to the club on the subject, "Anthony Trollope—What a Man! What a Man!"

That very phrase, "What a man!" is taken from Trollope's Framley Parsonage, published in 1861, although lots of people think it's the very latest slang. Here is the way Trollope did it:

"And he," Mrs. Proudie was saying to Miss Dunstable, "was obliged to leave Barchester in utter disgrace. He has since married the wife of some tallow chandler."

"The wife!" said Miss Dunstable. "What a man!"

"The widow, I mean," exclaimed Mrs. Proudie, "but it's all one to him."

So, because he invented the phrase, President Reada Owfullot is going to entitle his paper, "Anthony Trollope—What a Man!—What a Man!" He will point out that Trollope's stories are just as readable and enjoyable as they were seventy-five years ago. They are very human stories; nobody is so very bad or very good in Trollope's books; just a mixture of both, even as you and I. And they're interesting enough to keep you reading all night unless you are very firm about such things. And they're even cheaper than the dollar books, because they can be had in the various library editions. Of course some people will say if you're going as far back as Anthony Trollope for your reading, why not take up Charley Dickens. Well, nobody reads Dickens any more, according to the Rev. Reada Owfullot—not even the Dickens club, which has become a religious cult devoted to curing sickness and removing billboard advertisement from the highways. But Trollope reads well right in the midst of all our weird novels of the jazz age. And if you have never read Trollope nor heard of him, try The Warden, or Barchester Towers, or Framley Parsonage, Dr. Thorne, The Small House at Allington, or The Last Chronicle of Barset. "Because the proof of the bread pudding," as the Rev. Reada Owfullot will say in his paper, "is the eating of the damn thing."

ANSWER TO A FAMILIAR QUESTION.

You ask if I've forgotten you. Why, no . . .
I think about you sometimes, as one will,
And wonder how, some little time ago,
You seemed of weight and worth enough to fill
A season in my heart. I must admit
That if I loved you once, I cannot now
Find either reason or excuse for it.
Indeed, I've not forgotten you . . . between
The odds and ends that go to make my day—
A book, a hat, bills, letters, lunches, money—
Your face is apt to flicker, and I say,
"I loved him once. How funny!"

AND YOU GOTTA GET A LOT OF GOOD LAFFS IN IT, CAL.

Cal Coolidge has become a column conductor turning out 150 words per day for a New York paper. Welcome, Cal, to the Associated Colyum Conductors' Mutual Protective and Benevolent association. As long as you don't run a contributors' column and stick to the personal idea you'll be all right. If you run a personal column 150 words will be plenty, but if you go into the contributors' column business you'll have to put out a column every day, rain or shine, that is full a column long and a column and a half wide—ah, that is filling the insane asylums of this country with column conductors. But a personal column is a cinch; so long as you say nothing about love, hate, politics, religion, prohibition, the drys, the wets, racketeering, life, death, congress, war, peace, eminent statesmen, common people, hijackers, radio, rum runners, society people, preachers, aeroplanes, railroads, dry enforcement, Bishop Cannon Jr., cigarettes, candy, men, women, boys, girls, flowers, animals, the weather, the seasons, and books, you will get along great. And when you get letters telling you what a perfectly horrible mess you are as a column conductor toss it lightly to the ceiling, Cal. If it sticks you can read it or even print it. If it doesn't stick to the ceiling, Cal—WASTEBASKET! WASTEBASKET!

HOW LONG TO LIVE?

THE bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company is responsible for a table of life expectancies of people at different ages. Using such a table, any person can tell how much longer the average person of his age can expect to live. The table supplies life expectancies for the years 1928, 1927, and 1926, based on the total population in the entire registration area in 1920. It applied to all sections of the country and to all persons, regardless of sex and race.

The Glover tables, issued by the census office several years ago, covering only the New England states and a few near by, were based on the 1910 census and grouped the population by sex and race.

In 1920 a baby at birth could expect to live about 58 years, 2 months, and 5 days. The babies one year of age had a life expectancy of 60 years, 6 months, and 6 days. Those two years of age 60 years, 2 months, and 1 day. Three years of age, 59 years and 6 months. Four years, 58 years, 8 months, and 16 days. Five years, 57 years, 10 months, and 11 days. Six years, 57 years and 14 days. Seven years, 56 years, 2 months, and 2 days. Twelve years of age, 51 years, 7 months, and 17 days. Seventeen years, 47 years, 2 months, and 8 days. Twenty-two years of age, 43 years and 4 days. Twenty-seven years of age, 38 years, 10 months, and 20 days. Thirty-two years of age, 34 years, 8 months, and 26 days. Thirty-seven years of age, 30 years, 8 months, and 1 day. Forty-two years of age, 26 years, 8 months, and 1 day. Forty-seven years of age, 22 years, 11 months, and 15 days. Fifty-two years of age, 19 years, 3 months, and 25 days. Sixty-two years of age, 12 years, 9 months, and 25 days. Sixty-seven years of age, 10 years and 2 days. Seventy-two years, 7 years, 9 months, and 25 days. Seventy-seven years of age, 5 years, 11 months, and 16 days. Eighty-two years of age, 4 years, 5 months, and 8 days. Eighty-seven years of age, 3 years, 4 months, 1 day. Ninety-two years of age, 2 years and 6 months. One hundred and two years of age, 1 year and 8 months.

The average person thirty-three years of age has lived up half his life. Every one will understand that each living person cannot expect to live as long as these averages indicate, nor that he can plan his life on that basis. It does mean that insurance companies and business enterprises can plan on that as the average for all persons in his group. By adding the expectancy to the age we get the expected average age at death of the group. For instance, the average age at death of men sixty-two years old in 1928 will be seventy-four years, nine months, and twenty-five days.

NO DANGER TO EARS.

A. B. writes:

1. I have been told that babies fed on lactic acid formula—a scant teaspoonful to a pint of milk—are apt to develop ear trouble and other complications. Is this true, and if so, why?

2. Is is harmful to keep a baby on this until a year old, or would the sweet milk be better?

REPLY:

1. Lactic acid milks have no tendency to cause ear trouble.

2. Keep the baby on lactic acid milk as long as he thrives on it.

TRY TOE DANCING.

L. A. S. writes:

1. What exercises should one take to develop the calves of the legs?

2. Also exercises to slenderize the waistline and keep it slender?

REPLY.

1. Dancing, particularly toe dancing.

2. Bending exercises are somewhat effective, provided they are combined with the exercise of restraint in eating.

NOT NATURALIZED.

Chicago, June 13.—[Friend of the People.]—My father took out his papers when I was 20 years of age, but thought I was older, so my name was not mentioned on the papers. Now I would like to know the following questions:

1. Am I a citizen of the United States?

2. If not, would I have much difficulty in getting papers?

3. About how long would it take, and what's the fee?

4. If I marry an American girl, does that mean that she forfeits her right as a citizen? H. B.

1. Yes, if the writer was under 21 years of age and dwelling in the United States when the father was naturalized.

2. If the writer is a citizen and desires a certificate of naturalization for himself he may apply for a certificate of derivative citizenship through this office.

3. The fee for a certificate of derivative citizenship is $15 and it usually takes three to six months to get such a certificate.

4. Since Sept. 21, 1922, an American girl who marries an alien does not lose her citizenship status unless she goes to a foreign country and gains citizenship there.

If the writer cannot prove documentary evidence [birth certificate] that he was under 21 years of age when his father was naturalized, he may file his own naturalization papers, taking first a declaration of intention [first paper] and two years thereafter apply for citizenship.

H. L. ROETHE,
Acting District Director of Naturalization.

WORD IS SUFFICIENT.

Chicago, June 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I would like to know whether or not there is any way I can collect money loaned to a certain person whom I did not make sign any kind of a note as I thought he would pay it back. I have no witnesses only my wife. Part of the money has been paid back. W. S. C.

We see no reason why your oral testimony should not be sufficient.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—An official bulletin issued by Secretary of War Stanton announces the occupation of Brownsville and the surrender of Galveston and its harbor forts to the United States forces. In the same connection and consequent upon this news President Johnson issued a proclamation raising the blockade on ports west of the Mississippi river to foreign commerce on certain conditions.

CHICAGO.—Saved from the commonplace by an astounding display of wealth and fashion, the thirteenth American Derby was run at Washington Park yesterday. Sidney Lucas, unconsidered and friendless, won in the slow time of 2:40¼, beating the idolized Lieutenant Gibson and the fancied Sam Phillips. Local pride and local purses were hard hit. The betting on Sidney Lucas was 20 to 1, while the money was even on Lieutenant Gibson, Chicago horse, and the heavily played local favorite. The winner was ridden by John Bullman, who won because his mount could slouch along in the mud and make better time than his more graceful rivals. Society was out in force. Some of it came in victorias, some in breaks, some in landaus, others in drags, stanhopes, and spider phaetons, some with two men up and some with one. The liveries of the men, the mountings, cloths and trappings were resplendent. Few came in automobiles. Society's part in the Derby was continued at night by a dance in the clubhouse.

CHICAGO.—The Democrats nominated a county ticket in part as follows: State's attorney, Julius Goldzier; recorder of deeds, William E. Schlake; coroner, John E. INTERESTING LETTERS

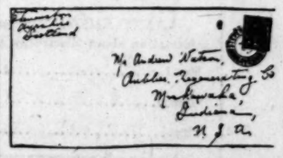
If you have received a letter from an interesting or little known place send the envelope to The Tribune, stating name of place where it was mailed and some information about the writer of the letter.



Letter received by Andrew Watson, 1444 Lincolnway East, Mishawaka, Ind.

"I received this letter from my wife, who is visiting her people in Stevenston, Ayrshire, Scotland." Mr. Watson writes. "Stevenston is situated on the Firth of Clyde some twenty miles from Glasgow and quite near Ayr, the birthplace of Scotland's national bard, Robert Burns.

"Stevenston has the following industries: Iron foundries, coal mines (the coal is mined at the edge of the sea and there are also workings under the sea) and a large powder mill, Nobel's. Alfred Nobel, inventor of dynamite, started the foundation of his large fortune here and lived in Stevenston for many years. Nobel is the donor of the famous prizes for peace, physics, literature, etc.

"Stevenston was the ancestral home of Alexander Hamilton, first secretary of the treasury of the United States. Robert Louis Stevenson, in one of his letters, speculates as to the probability of his family having had some connection with the parish."

GOOD FOR THE EYES.

Chicago, June 20.—I want to commend THE TRIBUNE on the adoption of the new and better grade of paper which made its advent in this morning's issue.

With the clear and easily legible type which you have been using for some time the use of this heavier paper makes reading a comfort to the eyes. The illustrations on this new paper stand out clearer than in any metropolitan newspaper with which I am familiar.

Your enterprise in this direction means much toward the conservation of good vision.

A poor grade of paper and illegible print are doubtless important factors in the production of defective vision, and it seems to me that you have fully overcome these objections in the new TRIBUNE. I congratulate you.

WILLIS O. NANCE, M. D.

BETTER PAPER.

Chicago, June 23.—May I congratulate you upon the new use of a better grade of paper in your issues? It surely has lessened the eye strain of the reader, and increased the joy to be found in the perusal of your columns.

AMBROSE WYRICK.

UNEMPLOYMENT OF NURSES.

Chicago, June 12.—As a registered nurse, I feel qualified to make a few statements regarding the unemployment of nurses, a subject raised recently in your columns.

Perhaps, if hospitals would employ a sufficient number of nurses in order to adequately care for the patients, the problem might be helped a lot. It seems so unreasonable that in a matter of life and death hospitals try to get along with the least number of nurses possible.

And another phase of the situation. Why don't nurses have an eight hour day just like every other group of workers? Because—it is the general trend of the hospitals and public to get as much out of a nurse as is humanly possible. They don't stop to think that we are human and would enjoy shorter working hours. And, believe me, the hours on duty for a nurse are not wasted either.

No wonder there are a lot of unemployed nurses. The ones that are employed [in nearly every instance] have entirely too much work to do. Why not divide it up a little and in that way help solve the unemployment problem? HELEN K. BORGE.

MILK PRICES.

Chicago, June 18.—Your correspondent, Mrs. A. Warsaw, would like to know why the milk prices in Chicago are not reduced as in the east. One of the many reasons is that the consumers in the east are paying from 17 to 20 cents per quart where the citizens of Chicago are paying from 12 to 14 cents for the same milk if not better.

Milk producers shipping to the Chicago district are receiving more for their milk than ever before in history, not less, as stated by Mrs. A. Warsaw. Since when are Chicago milk dealers quick in raising prices? The milk price in Chicago has not been changed for the last seven years.

Instead of kicking about the price of milk thanks should be given to the Chicago milk dealers, Dr. Kegel and the Chicago health department. Chicago citizens can boast that they have cleaner and better milk available than almost any other city in the country.

MAXWELL RIFFKIND.

AN ATTRACTION FOR THE FAIR.

Chicago, June 20.—Perhaps some one can explain why one of the seven guns which bombed Paris has not been turned over to the allies, in accordance with the terms of the armistice.

Such an instrument exhibited at the Chicago fair, I believe, would attract more people than any other one thing.

Col. H. W. Miller, ordnance corps, in his book, "The Paris Gun," says the Germans had seven of these giants, which fired shells 75 miles. Three hundred and sixty-seven shells, each weighing about 260 pounds, were fired from these guns, he says, the projectile leaving the gun at a speed of one mile a second, traveling 24 miles into the air and reaching its destination in 188 seconds.

LEWIS LYLE SANFORD.

THE FREIGHT TUNNELS.

Chicago, June 17.—Now that the tra[n]sition ordinance seems in a fair way [to] being approved by referendum vote a[nd] the companies given assurance that t[he] will be warranted in going the li[ne] to provide the best possible system a[nd] every necessary extension in service, [it] seems equally interesting to consi[der] another utility having a semi-pub[lic] standing—namely: the tunnel compa[ny]. Above ground we are near agreem[ent] that we want and will get the be[st] service we should have by taking tra[ns]tion out of politics. Below ground [we] have an equally interesting problem [in] the transportation of freight.

Very few people have any concept[ion] of what is going on below the stre[ets] of downtown Chicago. It has be[en] stated in the newspapers that it w[ill] require six or seven thousand [ton] trucks on the streets every day to m[ove] the business that is handled by the tu[n]nel, that more extensions are desira[ble] and that the company is unable to ex[pand] because of the excessive compe[n]sation for the use of the tunnels, wh[ich] have cost the city not a penny a[nd] have to date lost a very large sum [of] the original investors.

No doubt a committee such as work[ed] out the traction problem would be equ[al]ly successful in suggesting equitab[le] plans for adjusting the differences be[-]tween the city and the tunnel company. The business of handling the freight [in] Chicago without creating more a[nd] more congestion on the streets is a se[-]rious and necessary problem to be solved. We need adequate airport fa[-]cilities, we need more through street[s] for surface travel, and we should [not] permit politics to hamper a project that does so much to reduce vehicle congestion and serves so efficiently.

This may be a poor effort to call [at]tention to a tremendously importa[nt] matter, but the thought is worth wh[ile] and something should be done about it.

GEORGE H. BENEDICT,
Secretary Chicago Photo-Engravers' Association.

AT THE RACES.

Chicago, June 20.—Horse racing [in] Illinois is being seriously harmed in re[pu]te by the flagrancy of touting [at] Washington Park. It would be asking too much to eliminate this ancient sucker game entirely, but surely it can be greatly reduced from its present scale.

Every day the same three carry [on] with their sucker game with astounding freedom. One fellow will pick out a likely looking dupe and engage him in conversation. He will complain of his hard luck and ask the stranger if he "knows anything good." Then he (the tout) will point out a "big hoss man from Kentucky." "Boy, O boy, that is the fellow who really is in on the 'know.' Why, I have seen that bird bet two thousand cold smackers right on the nose." Just then the big "hoss man," like an angel from heaven, comes right up and asks for a match. "Why, boys," says he, "how are they treating you?" "What, not so good. Well, just leave that to me and I'll put you some real winners." By the end of the day the poor old dupe is "gone" and he doesn't even know what it is all about. W. S. K.

A BIRD RESCUED.

Chicago, June 21.—What was [the] most thrilling bird rescue? Here's mine.

Some time ago I was walking through Jackson park; coming to a somewhat secluded pathway, I heard a great commotion in one of the tree tops. Upon investigation I found that a motherly grackle had become entangled in a fish line. Presumably the fish line was found in a nearby lagoon and was to form a part of a nest in the building.

The bird was hanging head down and a swarm of other grackles was flying around, crying at the top of their voices. It was about 20 feet from the ground, but I immediately climbed the tree and cut the string, which tied one of the bird's legs to the limb in a perfect knot. The bird surely was doomed, but not helped arrived. The leaves around it were all wilted, giving evidence that it had been there a long time. C. H. F.

DOCTORS TOLD STATE MAY SOON GRAB THEIR JOBS

Medical Assn. Head Asks Cheap Clinics.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., June 23.—[Special.]—The socialization of medicine and its subjection to the state was predicted today at the opening session of the five day meeting of the American Medical association, unless "some definite effort is made to break the siege."

This was the warning of Dr. M. L. Harris of Chicago, president of the national body, who strongly advocated the formation of medical centers by the county societies where all classes of persons unable to pay regular practitioner rates could receive the best of treatment at prices within their means. These would take the place of free clinics.

"Medicine is being besieged on every side by forces that are constantly growing stronger and stronger," Dr. Harris said, "and unless some defensive effort is made to break the siege the profession must eventually capitulate, become socialized and employés of the state."

Outlines His Idea.

The county medical centers advocated by President Harris would be incorporated and organized for business purposes, and controlled and managed by the profession.

"The establishment by the profession of these medical pay centers for the class of patients already mentioned," he said "and the development of these centers to their fullest possibility, based on the full recognition of the principle of coöperation and collectivism in matters pertaining to the welfare of the profession as a whole, will do much toward maintaining professional independence of thought and action, and it is infinitely better to do these things voluntarily than to be forced to yield to coercion.

"It is unwise to put this matter off from year to year while the siege of medicine is drawing its lines tighter and tighter."

Sees Peril in England.

The establishment during the year of the Public Service Medical Association of England, which aims at providing a governmental medical service available to the entire population, irrespective of their ability to pay, was the specific alarm which aroused the president.

"The idea is," explained the prominent Chicago physician, "that health is of such vital importance that the question of one's ability to pay should never arise. A bill to this effect has already been introduced in the house of commons, and it is admitted by the secretary that the movement will be opposed by the medical profession; but when the legislation has passed, the profession will have to bow to the inevitable, as it did when the national health insurance act was passed. It is a direct attempt to extend socialism and would result in a complete socialization of the medical profession."

President Elect Speaks.

Dr. Harris' message was presented to the house of delegates at the morning session. He was followed by Dr. William Gerry Morgan of Washington, the president elect.

Concluding an address dealing with the change of opinion in the public attitude toward the hospital and dispensary, Dr. Morgan announced that an important part of his remarks, those dealing with industrial alcohol, would be left for the executive committee of the association—in effect, the house of delegates—in secret session, tomorrow.

This aroused some dissatisfaction in the section occupied by the New York delegates and a motion was made that the rules be suspended and Dr. Morgan complete his remarks. This required a two-thirds vote and was lost.

Change in Prescriptions Urged.

Later, during the time allotted for presenting resolutions, Dr. J. N. Vandeveer, representing the New York State Medical society, presented one which would eliminate from the physicians' liquor and narcotic prescription blanks the spaces for the patient's name and the nature of his disease. This was referred to committee and will be reported upon tomorrow morning, when the house of delegates is again in open session.

Because of its rule that discussions dealing with the dry law shall be held in executive session, it is not expected that much prohibition fireworks will reach the open floor. If action is taken upon whatever suggestions the incoming president may care to make tomorrow, it is likely that a statement will be issued containing the substance of it, but the debate, if any, will be denied the reporters.

Dr. Morgan's address included a discussion of the public attitude toward hospitalization and the proneness of a patient to regard his hospital bill as of more importance than that of his physician.

He argued that a doctor contributes his bit to charity like any other citizen and taxpayer and society has no right to expect him to do more for the ailing poor than any one else.

4,000 Doctors Attending.

Bringing almost 4,000 physicians to Detroit, the convention is located in the spacious Masonic temple, which it nearly fills. Long rows of exhibits, equipment, and doctors' necessities occupy a part of the space, while the scientific booths contain many new instruments.

One exhibit, presented by the United States bureau of mines, is of especial interest to Chicagoans. The bureau has been experimenting with detectable gases to be mixed with the vapor used in some mechanical ice boxes.

A tear gas has been experimented with which would warn householders that their ice box is leaking. The gas is composed of acrolein and cortonaldehyde, and, if successful, may eliminate the danger which has brought death to several persons in Chicago.

Held for 9 Year Murder After Attending Funeral

Columbus, Neb., June 23.—(AP)—Frank Jones, 43, Kansas City, Mo., was in jail today in connection with a nine year old double slaying at Douglas, Wyo. He was arrested Saturday after he attended funeral services for his brother, P. V. Jones. Sheriff Ed Kavanaugh said extradition papers were being forwarded by Wyoming officials.

INTO A DITCH!

"My wheels struck a culvert, and I crashed into the ditch. Of course, I thought my insurance covered me, but I found out that the insurance company did not consider sliding into a ditch a collision, and, as a matter of fact, that the policy expressly excluded such accidents."

A complaint such as this will never be uttered by the member of the Chicago Motor Club who has placed his insurance with the Inter-Insurance Exchange. The policy issued by the "exchange" considers sliding into a ditch a collision and the claims department handles it as such.

Another feature of the policy issued by the "exchange" is that it is the valued form which, in the event of total loss, pays the face value of the policy.

GIRL, 10, ACCUSES FATHER AS KILLER OF HER MOTHER

Child, Witness at Trial, Describes Shooting.

CRIMINAL COURT.
Joseph Stabulak and Fred Rosh, assault to murder, sentenced to 1 to 14 years each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge John P. McGoorty.

Andrew Belak, 40 years old, sat in the defendant's chair in Judge Harry B. Miller's Criminal court yesterday afternoon and heard his youngest daughter, Harriet, 10 years old, accuse him of killing his divorced wife, Mary. The child, who looks much younger than her age, told the things which might send her father to the electric chair or the penitentiary, while she refused to say the things which might have helped him to escape.

Frances, the oldest daughter, who is married, was the first prosecution witness. She was called to prove the technical part of the corpus delicti. On cross-examination by Attorney Thaddeus C. Toudor, for the father, she said her mother sold home brew and wine and that not long before the murder threatened to burn out her father's eyes with acid. She also named "George," the mysterious alleged paramour of the mother, as a frequent visitor at her mother's home at 840 Holt street.

Tells Story of Shooting.

Harriet has lived at the home of her older sister since the killing occurred and it was assumed by Assistant State's Attorneys Logan Hachtman and Jack Baum that the attitude of the older girl, who was inclined to defend her father, would also be reflected in the testimony of the child. They were surprised, however, when the child took the stand and told of the shooting on March 17. She was the only eyewitness.

"I saw my father when I woke up," said the girl. "Mother was at the telephone hollering help. My mother dropped the telephone and then my father started shooting. When my mother fell on the bed he shot her some more. Then he pulled out the old bullets and put in some new ones. He shot himself in the wrist and then laid down on the floor."

Claim of Defendant.

Defense Attorney Toudor had told the jury in his opening statement that his client would claim that he was defending his former wife from her alleged paramour and was himself shot in the wrist. He named the man as a "mysterious George."

"Didn't you say at the inquest that George was there when the shooting happened?" Attorney Toudor asked Harriet.

"I said so because my father told me to say it," was the reply.

Representative O'Brien Posts New Trial Bond

State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien, under indictment on charges of evading income taxes, yesterday surrendered to a bench warrant issued by Federal Judge Woodward and posted a new $15,000 bond. O'Brien's original bond was found to be defective.

ALLAN HOOVER, SON OF PRESIDENT, GOES TO WORK IN FACTORY

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—Allan Hoover, whose father is President of the United States, became a workingman today at the Bayonne, N. J., plant of the American Radiator company. He and the company announced he was learning the manufacturing business from the bottom, but that seemed to depend on what you considered the bottom. He is toting no radiators about and swinging no paint brush. He's a white-collar worker.

Young Hoover spent his first day on the job touring the plant under the escort of B. N. Greenlau, general manager, and talking to newspaper reporters.

25 COPS SEEK LAMBERT TREE HEROISM MEDAL

Twenty-five policemen appeared before the civil service commission yesterday as candidates for the Lambert Tree medal which will be awarded to the policeman who has the most heroic deed to his credit for 1929. Five of the candidates, including Sergt. Frank Reynolds, who had four stories of bravery to relate, last year won the $100 award given by THE TRIBUNE monthly for bravery.

Those who appeared beside Sergt. Reynolds included Lieut. P. B. O'Connell, Sergts. Michael Burke and Joseph J. Murrin, and Patrolmen Dennis Nelligan, John Stanton, Leonard Knudson, Matthias J. Mandernach, William Hansen, Walter Thompson, Patrick Fox, James E. Corcoran, William Simpson, George Mankowsky, A. Schied, John Flannery, William Ryan, John S. Condon, Michael Glon, Thomas A. McCaffrey, Richard W. Braithwaite, George L. Schert, and Zigmund Warchalowski.

From these policemen the commission will recommend one to Mayor Thompson and City Controller Schmidt, who are trustees of the funds used to award the medal. The selection will be announced later this week.

Growing Evanston Feels Need of Another Ward

A proposal for a new ward and two additional aldermen for Evanston was made last night by Charles B. Fullerton, chairman of the judiciary committee of the city council, at its weekly meeting. Citing that the population was now 61,766, as against 37,400 in 1920, he said he believed the city should be redistricted. He offered a resolution, which was adopted, referring the matter to his committee and to the corporation counsel.

21 GUN SALUTE FOR BRITISH AT MILITARY SHOW

Scandanavian night will be celebrated this evening at the military show in Soldiers' field and thousands of Scandanavians of Chicago and the central states are expected to attend. Among those who have been invited to review the show tonight are Judge William Helander and United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson.

Last night the Union Jack was hoisted beside the reviewing stand and as it was pulled atop the flagpole opposite the American flag, a salute of 21 guns was fired. Godfrey Haggard, British consul general in Chicago, acknowledged the salute. British war veterans paraded. Gov. and Mrs. Fred W. Green of Michigan sat in the reviewing stand as guests of honor. Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding the sixth corps area, and Rear Admiral W. S. Cresley, commandant of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, also were in the stand.

One of the features of last night's show was the semaphore signal drill given by three companies of Great Lakes sailors.

NEW YORK CITY'S BIGGEST GAIN IS SHOWN IN BRONX

Parks, Trees and Low Rents Are Reasons.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—Up in the Bronx and out in the Borough of Queens, where there are parks and trees and comparatively moderate rentals is where New York City has registered its greatest population gains and boosted its total to an estimated 6,942,584, according to figures made public today. It was a district in the Bronx, however, that led all the rest, the Borough of Queens as a whole showed the largest gain.

The prime population increase in the city—294.4 per cent—took place in the Sixth assembly district, the Bronx, which includes Pelham Bay Park, City Island, Harts Island, Clason Point and the Zoological Garden. The figures for the district are, 1930—274,669; 1920—70,482.

The second largest increase also indicates the trend of the city dweller toward green grass and the waterfront, for it was made in the Fourth assembly district in Queens out in the edge of the city. There the gain was 58.17 per cent, the figures being, 1930—58,575; 1920—82,175.

Revised Figures Show Gain.

With official figures compiled in four of the five boroughs of the city—three districts in the Bronx remaining to be tabulated—census officials now place the city population at 6,941,584, an increase of 1,499,305, or considerably more than one-half million greater than early figures indicated. The population by boroughs is:

Borough—	1930.	1920.	Gain
Brooklyn	2,596,154	2,018,356	577,798
Manhattan	1,850,588	2,084,588	234,268
The Bronx	1,257,845	732,016	525,829
Richmond	154,785	138,277	16,508
Queens	1,082,212	469,042	613,170

Included in the large area of the Sixth district in the Bronx, which made such startling gains, is also what is probably the most sparsely settled population area. In the 719.12 acres of the Bronx park there were recorded only five residents in the census tabulation. These were the superintendent, his wife, two chefs and the wife of one.

Experts' Estimates Upset.

This influx of families into the open areas upset the calculations of the census experts. Only two days ago Dr. Walter Laidlaw, executive secretary of the cities census committee, estimated the city's population at 6,746,583, which was in itself more than 60,000 greater than the earlier estimates.

In commenting on the city's growth Dr. Laidlaw said it could not be attributed to increase from immigration. "If the present census," he said, "when it eventually is tabulated, does not reveal a smaller foreign born population than in 1920, students of the subject will be greatly surprised."

Dr. Laidlaw said he believed New York state had contributed 700,000 or more of the new inhabitants, 150,000 had come from other areas of the country, and the remainder of the gain was due to the superior supervision of the present census compared to that exercised in 1920.

Minneapolis' Population.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 23.—(AP)—The population of Minneapolis, according to revised census figures made public today, is 464,674, an increase since 1920 of 84,692, or 22 per cent.

PLYMOUTH, ILL., BOY DROWNED.

Centerville, Ill., June 23.—(AP)—Edgar Fuller, 16, of Plymouth, Ill., was drowned Sunday afternoon while swimming at Bartlemew beach on the Illinois river bank, near here. The body was recovered twenty minutes later, but attempts to resuscitation failed.

SCHROEDER IS BEING TAKEN TO INDIANA TO FACE MURDER TRIAL

Mobile, Ala., June 23.—(AP)—Harold H. Schroeder, charged with the murder of an unidentified man found burned to death in Schroeder's automobile near Indianapolis, Ind., May 31, left here late today in custody of officers for the Indiana city.

Attorneys for the prisoner, who is also charged with arson, agreed not to fight extradition after the arrival of requisition papers.

The Mobile radiator repairman left in custody of Sheriff Winkler of Marion county, Ind., in the latter's automobile.

In his cell at the county jail, Schroder reiterated his story that an unidentified young male companion whom he believed to be from Massachusetts suffered a broken neck when his car plunged into a ditch and that he set fire to the machine and fled because he feared he would be blamed for the youth's death.

Dispatches from Indianapolis said the county prosecutor there indicated an indictment charging first degree murder would be asked.

PARLIAMENT OF EGYPT BATTLES POLICE TO MEET

CAIRO, June 23.—(AP)—Defying a government order against a parliamentary session, members of the chamber and senate broke through a cordon of police this afternoon and forced open the barred doors to hold a sitting.

The government had ordered a scheduled session postponed when parliamentary leaders were not able to give assurances that no speeches would be made after the reading of a decree suspending parliament for one month.

The session lasted only half an hour. The sole business transacted was the reading of decrees forming the new cabinet and renewal by the members of their oath to defend the constitution.

Tinkham Again Accuses Cannon of Law Violation

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—In a short statement issued today Representative George H. Tinkham [Rep., Mass.] again charged that Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, was guilty of "shameless" violation of the federal corrupt practices act. The Massachusetts representative indicated after issuing his statement that he would have nothing more to say in the controversy unless Bishop Cannon accepted his challenge to sue him for libel.

MAY USE BLIMPS TO SPEED MAIL TO POSTOFFICE

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—Blimps may be utilized to carry air mail from the government landing field at Chicago to the roof of the projected new postoffice building, it was learned today.

Inquiry disclosed that while the postoffice department has no intention at present of installing an airplane landing field on the roof of the new federal building, the building will be constructed so that a landing field for small airships, or even planes could be fitted up at some later date. Officials now believe it would be impracticable to attempt to land planes on the roof of the building.

One official said that while the use of airships for this work had aroused the interest of officials the subject had not been investigated thoroughly.

Study, it was said, will be given in the future to the possibility of utilizing the blimps as carriers to take the place of trucks between the field and the postoffice.

LIVE STOCK BOARD WILL MEET THIS WEEK IN CHICAGO

Problems of the live stock and meat industry of the United States will be discussed at the seventh annual meeting of the National Live Stock and Meat board at the Chicago Athletic Association building on Thursday and Friday.

R. C. Pollock, general manager of the board, said the organization is engaged in a national program of education and research on the subject of meat in coöperation with the United States department of agriculture, state agricultural colleges, and other agencies. A review of the work of the last year and the outlining of a program for the next are scheduled.

Representing the packers will be Thomas E. Wilson and F. Edson White, Chicago, American Meat Packers' institute; commission men representatives, Everett C. Brown, Chicago, and W. B. Tagg, Omaha, Neb.; retailers, John T. Russell, Chicago, National Association of Retail Meat Dealers, and C. H. Janssen, St. Paul, Retail Grocers' National association.

HOOVER DELAYS VOTE ON HARBOR BILL FOR A DAY

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—Action on the rivers and harbors bill in the house was delayed today as a result of a request by President Hoover for a conference with Representative H. W. Dempsey [Rep., N. Y.], chairman of the house rivers and harbors committee, and Representative W. E. Hull [Rep., Ill.], a member of the committee.

Following the conference of Representatives, Dempsey and Hull, with the President, it was stated that it is still the purpose to ask concurrence by the house in all senate amendments. This will be done probably tomorrow and the bill will be sent to the White House.

While the President is understood to feel that the total of 125 millions in the bill is somewhat high, it is not believed that he has any intention of vetoing it.

NILES CENTER TO PROHIBIT SALE OF FIREWORKS

Fireworks stands along the roadways leading through north shore villages to Chicago are experiencing their last days, it was indicated yesterday in an announcement from Niles Center, the only village still permitting the sales. Chief of Police Charles Holmes said the stands would probably be prohibited in the future because of the increased population and the greater danger to small children.

For at least a decade the sale of firecrackers and other noise makers has been forbidden in other northern suburbs, with strict enforcement in Evanston and Winnetka. William Moulton, president of the Winnetka village board, recently mailed a request to all residents for coöperation in this matter. Of late years the evasion of the ordinance has been greater than previously, he declared, adding that "firecrackers may be obtained as easily as bootleg liquor."

"I AM BUILDING THE GREATEST CONCENTRATION OF RESPONSIVE FARM DOLLARS the publishing business has ever known"

GREATEST CONCENTRATION—because all of the resources of these two successful farm papers will be devoted, each to the sole interest of the farming industry in the state in which it is published. An Illinois Farm Paper for Illinois farmers. A Wisconsin Farm Paper for Wisconsin farmers.

Responsive—because in Illinois and Wisconsin farm intelligence is at high level. Progressive thinking, modern living, advanced methods are already here. The manufacturer with a message for the farmers of Illinois and Wisconsin has an understanding audience.

Dollars—1½ billion of them, and more are paid each year to the farmers of Illinois and Wisconsin for their corn, their dairy products, their livestock and the other things they raise.

These men and women have money. They are awake. They have learned to convert the product of their industry into better living and into improved methods which are insurance of future growth and success.

Their advancement is the one and only mission of ILLINOIS FARMER and WISCONSIN AGRICULTURIST AND FARMER. No outside influence—the interest of no neighboring state—however unconflicting—shall swerve these papers from this simple policy. Protection of the homes and property of Illinois and Wisconsin farmers, enhancement of their success and happiness, development of their children into outstanding American citizens is the platform to which these publications are devoted.

It is not a new creed. Since they were founded 44 and 82 years ago, respectively, it has been the foundation of their growth. Farmers of Illinois and Wisconsin know this. They recognize and appreciate it. They have been loyal in their support, accordingly.

I merely take this occasion to reaffirm the editorial policy that has guided Illinois Farmer and Wisconsin Agriculturist and Farmer and to pledge its continuance in intensified degree.

Translated into cold figures, this concentration of interest means that eight of every ten of the best farmers in Illinois read the FARMER. Nine of every ten of the best farmers in Wisconsin read the AGRICULTURIST AND FARMER. These calculations are based on actual circulation in counties where wealth and income are greatest.

It is a concentration of responsive interest which can match most successfully with a like concentration of selling and promotional effort by any manufacturer seeking the farm market of these two states. Here he gets advertising coverage of the desirable farmer prospects of Illinois and Wisconsin alone. His message is addressed to them, and to no others, in terms they understand best.

Alive to the farm needs, the rural characteristics of the states which are our home, we place at the disposal of the manufacturer, expert analysis of the market from the standpoint of his particular product. We are doing this for manufacturers almost every day.

To the Sales Manager, we can and do, give figures which enable him to cut wastes in his selling and promotion, to direct his attack at the points where sales can most economically be made.

To the Salesman, we supply territorial data, by towns, which enable him to show his prospects the exact possibilities of his product in their stores. We are doing this for salesmen right along.

These services to manufacturer, Sales Manager and Salesman are essential parts of the complete platform of ILLINOIS FARMER and WISCONSIN AGRICULTURIST AND FARMER. They are added values resulting from the localized nature of the publications themselves.

Thus, by concentrating editorially on the farm interests of two great agricultural states, we are able to deliver a geographical concentration of prospects, a localized reader group, to our advertisers. In addition, our expertness and understanding of the farm market in Illinois and Wisconsin, our wealth of information, are placed at their disposal.

On these strong foundations I am building—making these publications of even greater interest and service to their readers—increasing their value to the advertiser. There will be definite progress—just as there will be on the farms in these great states themselves. I am confident I am building the greatest concentration of responsive farm dollars the publishing business has ever known.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Winning was merely incidental with the Cubs yesterday. Their big scheme appeared to be the gathering of base hits, and it worked so splendidly that they recorded an impressive assortment of 24, which with errors and other things permitted the champions to run the Phillies breathless by 21 to 8 in the series opener.

In as not to keep their foes in suspense, the Cubs revealed their intentions right at the start. They hammered in four runs in the first inning, three of these being due to Hack Wilson's twenty-second homer of the campaign. Then they rested for a couple innings before resuming work in a bigger and better way.

Davis Hits 2 Homers.

The resumption was marked by five more in the fourth and one in the fifth, the latter causing Claude Willoughby to quit. This brought Bystrom Speece, the submarine expert, into action. The champs nicked him for five in the sixth, five in the seventh, and one in the eighth.

Guy Bush looked after all of Chicago's pitching interests and while he wasn't a sensation he was good enough to avoid complications except from two hitters. One of these was O'Doul with three singles. The other was Giant Man Davis. The big fellow hit a homer for three runs that put his club back in the ball game in the second inning. Later he belted another circuit smash which was good for half of a four run rally in the sixth.

Where Bush did star was in attack. He took so kindly to Willoughby's curves that he reeled off three successive hits, the last being a triple which finished Claude in the fifth. Wilson, besides his homer, picked up a triple, a double, and two singles. Behind him was Stephenson with four baggers.

Pat Malone will work today if the Phillies show up.

Hack Hits No. 22.

Willoughby would have fared a bit better in round one if it hadn't been for wobbly fielding. Blair opened with a grounder to Friberg, who passed wild. A pass put English on base. Cuyler singled Blair home and the three others were hung up when Wilson poured No. 22 into the seats in right.

A double by Hartnett inaugurated the two run riot in the fourth. Singles by Beck, Bush, Blair, Wilson, Cuyler, and Stephenson followed. Luckily for Willoughby, a double play came after the salve. When Bush came up again in the fifth Beck had just walked. Guy nudged him around to the plate by bunting to right.

Friberg fumbled on Cuyler in the fifth and this started the Cubs on the second of their five run exhibition. Wilson tripled in the wake of the error and Cuyler scored. Hack registered on a hit by Stephenson. Grimm also singled. Hartnett fanned, but a pass to Beck loaded the bases. Three strikes ended Bush's hitting spree. Blair tuned in with a single, scoring Stephenson and Grimm and sending Beck to third. The latter scored the fifth run of the inning by working a double steal with Blair.

Phils Score Run.

The Phils wasted their time scoring once in the seventh on a double by Southern and single by O'Doul. The Cubs hit a bit better in their half. Starting with Cuyler they exploded for six hits in a row. That much scored four and left two on the bases. Then Bush grounded out but Hartnett scored. Blair died on a fly to center and the inning closed with English being called out on strikes.

Wilson and Stephenson had to have made by way of fun in the eighth and this it was necessary to register another run. Beck doubled and went home on Stephenson's single.

A'S SHOW SOX THEY'RE CHAMPS; WIN 2-1 AND 17-9

Grove Beats Faber in Hurling Duel.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 23.—Philadelphia customers this afternoon saw Lefty Grove and associate world champions win a great ball game from old Red Faber and the seventh place White Sox, 2 to 1. Then they stayed on to see their heroes conquer in a carnival of seven home runs, 17 to 9. The Chicago contribution to the four base business was two homers by Smead Jolley, each with two on.

The first game was Grove's tenth victory of the season, and old Red gave him plenty of anxiety before the thing was packed away. Grove struck out eleven, ten in the first five innings, and held the Sox to five hits, three of which were made by Bill Cissell. The Comiskeys got their run the first of the game, with none out in the fifth on Cissell's single and a triple by Clancy, after which Grove fanned the next three batters. The A's led the count in the sixth and won in the seventh.

Simmons Fattens Average.

As previously mentioned, the second game was mostly an exhibition of heavy socking. Aside from two great swats by our Mr. Jolley, which accounted for six of the Comiskeys' nine runs, other fence clearing blows were propelled by Simmons, who made two, Foxx, Haas, and Cochrane. In addition to his homers, Simmons made a double and two singles for a perfect showing in the second game and a total of seven hits for the afternoon. The A's made 20 hits in the second game for a total of 41 bases.

After Henry had been knocked out in the third, with the score 6 to 0 against him, Tommy Thomas obtained permission to give his ailing arm a tryout, preliminary to making a start in Boston later in the week. Tommy, who rejoined the team this morning, showed the effects of his long layoff, but his ailing arm did not hurt him.

There will be another double header tomorrow. Lyons will go after his eleventh victory in the first game and Pat Caraway will perform in the second. Earnshaw and Quinn will do their stuff for Connie Mack.

Grove Shows Up.

The first game was as nice a contest as you could hope to see, even if the Sox did lose, especially the first five innings which found the Sox leading 1 to 0. At this point Grove had struck out ten and the experts went scurrying to the records, where they made sure that the modern mark is 16. It was speedily computed that if Robert Mose could maintain his average of two strikeouts an inning he would have a total of 18. But Grove slowed up the rest of the way and contented himself with one more strikeout.

The Sox who specialized in whiffing were Hunnefield, Barnes, and Berg, who fanned their first two trips to the plate, and Faber, who struck out his second and third trips. Cissell and Reynolds were the only Sox players who didn't fan at least once.

Cissell Gets First Hit.

The Sox didn't make anything that looked like a hit until the fifth inning. Cissell then got the first of his three hits, a single, and came home on Clancy's triple to right center. It immediately occurred to Mr. Grove that this sort of thing never would do. So he left Clancy stranded on third by striking out Kamm, Berg, and Faber.

In the sixth the champions stepped out and tied the score. After Cisseh had thrown out Cochrane, Simmons doubled to center and came home on Foxx's single to left. Miller popped to Kamm, but Dykes singled to left, Foxx stopping at second. McNair then struck out.

MRS. MARSHALL AND MRS. ZECH TIE ON LINKS

Lead the Public Park Trials with 77's.

Mrs. Lillian M. Zech, state champion, and Mrs. Rose Marshall of Marquette yesterday led the qualifying round in the women's public parks tournament at Marquette park. Both shot a 77. They will play off the tie for medal honors later in the week.

A field of 75 teed off in the qualifying round, and it required 94 or better to get into the championship bracket. Mrs. Oscar Horn of Jackson park was runner-up with 78.

Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Zech were erratic on the greens, the former three-putting twice and going into the canal at the 18th. Mrs. Zech had three putts on four different greens and was none too good at approaching.

Mrs. Wallace Qualifies.

Mrs. Grace Leiferman of Marquette qualified with 38—42—80 after mussing up several putts and being wild off the tee.

Included in the championship brackets are Mrs. Edith Wallace, Cherry Hills, who won THE TRIBUNE public parks championship, and Mrs. Rose Long of Jackson THE TRIBUNE runner-up. Mrs. Wallace qualified with 82 and Mrs. Long with 89. Both have hard matches today. Mrs. Long meets Mrs. Horn, champion in 1927, and Mrs. Wallace plays Ann Conroy of Cherry Hills, who qualified with 91.

Drives 225 Yards.

Marge Roesslein and Mary Sager, both of Lincoln park, are others who qualified low and will bear watching. Miss Roesslein won the driving contest with 225 yards on the carry.

BROWN WISDOM DECIDES IT'S TIME TO WIN AND DOES

Muskoday Pays $121.28 to Take 2d Race.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Brown Wisdom, the great sprinter in the stable of the Reichert brothers of Illinois, won the Hubbard Woods handicap at Washington Park yesterday by three-quarters of a length, but that doesn't quite tell the story.

Brown Wisdom never was in the mood to run faster in his life and he was never in better condition to fly over the ground. Had he not been eased up by Jockey P. Garrity in the last eighth of a mile he probably would have gone on to beat the fleet band that trailed him by six lengths, and he no doubt would have cracked the track record.

Brown Wisdom is one of the most temperamental horses on the western turf. He has to crawl out of the straw just right of a morning, must have his oats and hay seasoned just right, the water he drinks must be just so cold or he will refuse to extend himself when he gets out on the race track in the afternoon.

Makes the Pace.

Everything must have been carried out as per Brown Wisdom's schedule yesterday for at the rise of the barrier he was away flying and they had not traveled a half furlong before he had romped into the lead. And when he stepped out to make the pace for T. S. Jordan he was heading one of the fastest breakers on the turf.

Once in front, Brown Wisdom never weakened. He was four lengths in the lead part of the time. He was always two lengths ahead of the others until in the final strides when Garrity pulled up almost completely. Paul Bunyan's late rush, which got the Chicago colt second money, never even threatened Brown Wisdom's advantage. Golden Prince, running an even race all the way was third with the Peabody entry of Martie Flynn and T. S. Jordan bringing up the rear.

Brown Wisdom's time was 1:12, but he could have easily bettered it by a second if he had been pushed at any stage of the stretch run. He was backed by most of those in the crowd of 7,500 and was the odds on favorite at post time, paying his backers $3.68 for each two dollars invested.

Apt Pays $14.26.

Apt, a little half sister to Brown Wisdom, both being out of the mare Prodigy, also showed plenty of speed and gameness in the mile and seventy yards sixth race when she was first home in a field of twelve.

Apt didn't fare so well in the early stages while Ripfield and Betty Ann were cutting out a dizzy early pace. She found her racing legs in the stretch and came so fast under Jockey J. Marcum's urging that she flew by one after another until she beat George Webre by three lengths with Ripfield hanging on stubbornly to take down third money.

In the betting Apt paid $14.26 to win, but scored her triumph just as handily as Brown Wisdom had rolled up his victory.

Another long shot came to the front in the Matteson purse for 2 year olds when Muskoday, owned by R. Jackson of Chicago, got home a neck in front of the heavily backed Portcodine with Dewet third. Muskoday was grouped in the field for the betting and when his number was hung out as the winner the long shot players yelled long and loud. In the mutuels Muskoday paid $121.28 to win, $19.76 to place and $10.88 to show. Brown Wisdom was the only favorite to win all afternoon.

NEGRO WINS 3 ROUNDS, TIRES, THEN HITS LOW

Schmeling, Tunney in 35,000 Crowd.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 23.—George Godfrey, an old minstrel Negro who has been fighting in the ring more than a dozen years, fetched in a low blow in the fifth round of his fight with Primo Carnera in the Phillies' ball park this evening, and the referee awarded the bout to Primo with the comment that the foul had been deliberate.

This was the fourth big heavyweight fight to end in a foul since last December, and the second in less than two weeks, Jack Sharkey having dealt Max Schmeling a low wallop in their fight for the heavyweight title on June 12.

Godfrey had given Carnera a beating in the first three rounds, but he seemed to be losing his gumption in the last two rounds. He either was anxious to be excused or acted under some private and confidential instructions from the white men who were exploiting him this evening in order to develop Carnera for an important transaction in New York later in the season.

Mr. Riley Calles It.

The referee who called the foul was Tommy Riley, the same red haired, freckled man who sloshed about the ring, ankle deep in rain water, the night Gene Tunney first met Jack Dempsey and beat him for the heavyweight championship.

Carnera had absorbed two other fouls, one in the third round and another in the fifth, just before the one that put him down, rolling and heaving like a stranded whale and powdered a cadaverous gray with the adherence of resin dust to his wet hide. In the third round when old George hit him low, Primo peeled the lips back from his big red rubber dental guard in a grin of horrible amiability and pardoned the offense without any appeal to the referee. Again in the fourth he thought he was fouled, and this time mentioned the matter to Riley, but this punch happened to be well above, inside the base lines, and Riley only motioned him back into the fight with a peremptory "get to work."

The first of the fouls in the fifth round was a low left and Primo had just overlooked this one, too, when the final left hand blow went driving in, following a low arc, and the big yellow glove hit Primo on his black tights.

Primo sank down, very convincingly, first on his side, then stretching out his legs and mountainous topography, to swell and writhe like the Sierras stirred by some world-shaking labor deep in the earth. His seconds held their places outside the ropes until Frank Weiner, the chairman of the Pennsylvania prize fight commission, summoned a little man with a small tuft of gray spinach on his chin, a red cross brassard on his left arm and big gold lodge emblem the size of a policemen's badge dangling from his watch chain.

Doctor Decides It's Foul.

The little man was Dr. J. Webb Baughm, by official appointment physician to the prize fighting commission. He looked over Carnera in apparent puzzlement as a veterinary with a practice among a clientele of pomeranians might gaze upon an elephant on a circus lot.

At the doctor's signal then Primo's seconds parted the ropes and leaped into the little ring, measuring only 20 feet each way as compared with the customary 24, to haul him home to his corner. This was something of an engineering job. Will Duffy, one of the principal stockholders in the Carnera property, grabbed Primo's huge feet and stood with them under his arms, the rest of the problem still remaining on the floor, still swelling and falling in the fast rhythm of the big man's breathing. Leon See, another manager, surveyed the job and picked out the left arm, while Good Time Charlie Freedman, still another manager, took Primo by the ears.

Then the announcer, a man in a dinner jacket, got down and grabbed a hold on some free territory over by the left shoulder and, with a couple of little fellows who had hopped into the ring, the crew of them managed to hoist Primo off the floor and ease him over to his chair with excited grunts and outcries.

Mr. Duffy Speaks.

They laid him almost horizontal, with his head lolling back on the second rope and some one reached into his great maw and brought out the big rubber horseshoe which he had been wearing to protect his lips from his tusks.

Mr. Duffy spoke to the referee and

Ruth Hits 24th Homer, Gehrig 19th.

New York, June 23.—(AP)—The Yankees lost ground in the American league pennant race today as they divided a double header with the St. Louis Browns, winning the first, 15 to 0, but losing the second, 10 to 6. The division dropped the Yanks to third place as the Senators won two games from the Indians.

The Yankees piled up a big lead in the first four innings of the opening game and coupled with four hit pitching by Henry Johnson coasted to victory. Babe Ruth led the attack with his twenty-fourth home run of the season.

Rip Collins held the New Yorkers in the second game while the Browns were getting away to an early lead on Gomez. Lou Gehrig helped the Yanks with his nineteenth homer while Harry Rice and Melillo also connected for four bases. Score:

Robins Hit 12 Times in Row; Beat Bucs, 19-6

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 23.—(AP)—Tieing two National league records while pounding out 28 hits of every description, the Brooklyn Robins today defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 19 to 6.

In the sixth inning the Robins tied the one inning consecutive hit record held pointly by the Cubs and Cardinals when they connected with ten consecutive hits.

Continuing in the seventh, the Robins hit safely twice more before a batsman was retired to run their consecutive hitting to 12, tieing the mark made by the Cardinals against the Braves on Sept. 17, 1920. The Cubs hung up their one inning hitting record against the Braves on Sept. 7 of last year, while the Cards made theirs against the Phillies, June 12, 1922.

TUFFY GRIFFITH TO MEET RISKO HERE JULY 2D

Johnny Risko, who ranks with Young Stribling as one of the better grade heavyweights, will meet Tuffy Griffith in a ten round bout at the Stadium, July 2. Risko's most recent conquest was Paulino, whom he defeated in Detroit. Vittorio Campolo and Risko have divided a pair of fights since the first of the year.

Griffith's last bout in his home town was a ten round fight with Jack Gagnon at the Stadium. Tuffy won and evened the score for his defeat by the sailor in Philadelphia.

Young Stribling may appear again on a Stadium card in August. He and his father left yesterday for Macon, Ga. Young Will has his left hand, injured in training for Von Porat and the same weapon which put the Norwegian down and out in the first round Friday night, in a cast. Pa Stribling has wired London asking for a postponement in the match with Phil Scott, July 28.

The final check by Stadium auditors gives Friday night's attendance as 20,862, setting a new record for an indoor professional boxing contest. The receipts were $77,333.49.

AMATEUR GOLF.

THE British golfing public, or at least a part of it, is concerned over the showing of the British Walker cup team, which won two of twelve matches against the Americans. Charges that birth is given precedence over prowess are among those hurled. That Bobby Jones won both open and amateur titles is accepted with less criticism, because Jones is recognized as a superlative golfer.

This old theme of amateurism probably never will be satisfactorily settled so long as amateur and pro classes exist. We have our troubles in this country. Under U. S. G. A. rules, a player must pay his own expenses to tourneys, and the club he represents is not allowed to do so. That, in theory, limits the number able to take long trips. In practice, it does not affect the situation materially. Those wanting to go usually find funds to do so.

Probably the amateur golf definition and restriction on expenses does diminish our amateur ranks. It is, however, intangible. There is no way of telling how many turn pro because they cannot afford to remain amateurs. Nor can one say how many drop out of tournament play because of the expense such play involves. Apparently few drop out after they have attained a golf reputation. Therefore such decisions no doubt come earlier, reducing the potential golf greats before they actually become golf greats.

Even Bobby Jones, of whose amateur spirit there never has been a question, derives a revenue from his syndicated newspaper articles on tourneys in which he plays. He frankly told the U. S. G. A. a year or so ago that he could not afford to do otherwise, since he was a married man with a family to support. That is the very thing that Big Bill Tilden was suspended for doing in tennis. He finally promised not to do so again and was reinstated. This amateur problem is too intricate for The Wake.

Our Cubs.

The Cubs are great. They seek the ball,
They field with skill, and that ain't all—
When I'm not there.
They spot the foe a dozen or more,
And rally late to tie the score—
When I'm not there.
The Rog, Ol' Hoss, Ki, Grimm, and Hack
With great gusto the hosshide smack—
When I'm not there.
And Osborn, Root, Malone, and Blake
Are sure the enemy to take—
When I'm not there.
But should I chance to be around,
In hope of seeing hits abound—
They know I'm there,
Because it's then they show their worst,
And play as if they're dubs accursed—
When I am there! B. B. P.

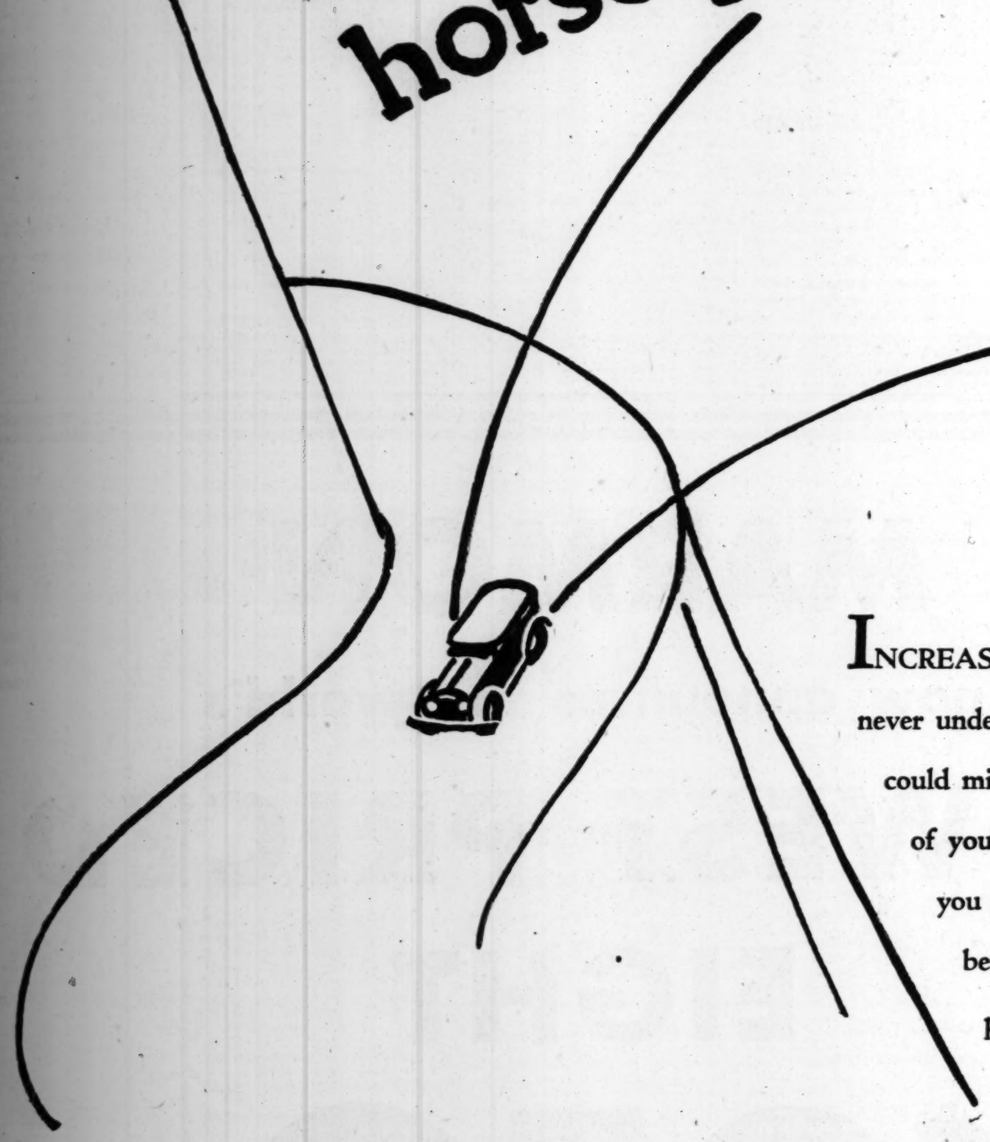
Oakmont,

"What do they mean by increased horse-power ratio?"



"Use H-C Gas and find out!"

INCREASED horse power ratio? An engineer could tell you in terms you might never understand—but Sinclair H-C Gasoline will show you in terms you never could mistake! Theoretically it means more power in proportion to the weight of your car. Practically it means more pleasure in proportion to the time you spend in driving. H-C increases your H. P. Sinclair H-C Gasoline gives better compression—permits your engine to operate at maximum compression—and stops knocks! Yet it's all gasoline—*nothing added. Look for the H-C pump!

Nothing Added!

WEETAMOE SAILS HOME FIRST IN DEFENSE SERIES

Newport, R. I., June 23.—(AP)—Weetamoe led the way home today in the first of a series of Eastern Yacht club races between the four new America's cup defense candidates and defense boats of ten years ago. Weetamoe's victory, if it be permitted to stand as such, was not entirely satisfactory, for the Morgan boat finished with the Little Enterprise, in the second place, flying a protest flag.

Yankee, the Boston contender, with Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy, at the wheel, finished third. Whirlwind was fourth and Vanitie, a 1920 defense candidate, fifth.

SMITTY—WALK A MILE

Carnera Wins from Godfrey on Foul in 5th

brightened happily. Leaping up with a grin of elation on his dark, sunburned countenance he waved to some one in the crowd beyond his corner.

Riley stepped back and began writing in a note book. The crowd had seen the foul, but the process of confirming their observations with an official ruling was a deliberate as though they had sent the case to the United States Supreme court. But at last the referee delivered his verdict, accompanied by the opinion, to the announcer and he, still brushing a film of resin dust from his satin lapels, threw back his head, opened his mouth wide and bawled the finding to the crowd, some $5,000 in number, sweltering in the little ball yard where the Phillies maintain a more or less nominal status as major leaguers.

Primo had taken a serious course of abuse for three rounds and the fight at least demonstrated that he can suffer and persevere. Godfrey, with his experience, had learned the routine tricks of head rolling and blocking and he was shuffling in his purple-black middle jiggling like a half-filled hot water bottle, to lay his wolly knob under Carnera's chin and pound him in the center. His left hand was driving in clean and then climbing up in hooks to the face but Primo, not yet skilled in the mysteries of infighting, was unable to deal them back.

George Blocks Punches.

Primo tried ripping up short rights to the jaw in the clinches, but George, with his great strength, laid his gloves on the Italian giant's arm and broke their force, so that it was only when they were fighting in the open that Primo could reach Godfrey with any real punches. He belted old George now and again with rights on the head but Godfrey was rolling downward and away from most and he wasn't hit square. Old George grew noticeably languid in the fourth and where before this he had been hammering Primo with solid lefts, he was only chafing him indolently.

This subsidence was noticeable in all the ringside rows and it was a matter of opinion and suspicion whether George was becoming fatigued or merely coming to the climax of a plot. At any rate, he was beginning to lose the fight in the fifth and the foul may have been merely his way of knocking off work or a gesture of much more sinister meaning.

Mr. Weiner, the prize fight commissioner, presently decided that neither of the boys should be paid any money until he had been able to meditate on the facts and suspicions of the case. And, whatever else he may decide, he decided at the ringside to fine Godfrey $5,000, or 50 per cent of his pay.

The gate receipts were estimated at various figures between $140,000 and $160,000, the greatest amassed at a fight in Philadelphia since Tunney and Dempsey drew more than $2,000,000 at the Sesquicentennial stadium in 1926.

Tunney, Schmeling Present.

Tunney and Max Schmeling were among the customers this evening. Schmeling reserved his opinion and Tunney, now a confirmed slummer, given to attending prize fights on great and trivial occasions, said he didn't see the punch.

Godfrey was not at all upset. He threw his old bathrobe over his frame went slowly down the steps at Carnera's corner and stopped at the microphone on his way out to say, "Folks, I fouled Carnera and I would like to have a return match."

CITIES SERVICE TO MAKE USE OF CHEAPER CREDIT

Plans $118,115,600 Debenture Offer.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Despite present quiet conditions in trade and industry, the great public utility organizations are forging ahead with expansion plans involving vast expenditures. There is a disposition to take advantage of current easy money rates, which may not exist when trade and industry turn upward again.

For example, the billion dollar Cities Service company, whose subsidiaries serve communities in twenty-five states and in Canada with population exceeding 4,000,000 persons, last night announced one of the largest pieces of financing in the history of the public utility industry. It will consist of a public offering later this week of the unsubscribed portion of an issue of $118,115,600 twenty year 5 per cent convertible debentures.

Used for Expansion.

More than $45,000,000 of the issue has been subscribed by about 140,000 common stockholders under rights recently offered by the company, while between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 of the debentures will be retained by banks and dealers comprising the original underwriting syndicate.

The entire proceeds of the issue will be applied to construction expenditures, additional investment, extensions and additions to the properties of the company and its subsidiaries and to reimbursement for advances already made for such purposes.

While it's anybody's guess just when business recovery will begin—and forecasts vary widely—still the last few days have fostered a more general disposition to regard the worst of depression as past. For instance, of several analyses appearing yesterday, a majority was optimistic.

Expectation of an early and substantial recovery in general business was voiced by the Harvard Economic Society and Dr. W. Randolph Burgess, deputy governor of the New York federal reserve bank, spoke optimistically before the New York State Bankers' association annual meeting.

"Pessimistic feeling and conflicting tendencies within business not infrequently mark the formative stage of recovery," the Harvard organization said. "Following business contraction there is often a stabilization interval of considerable length. During such an interval much of the business news consists of disheartening reports covering operations during the preceding period of liquidation. Business sentiment remains unduly pessimistic at the very time of the turn.

"We believe that business has for some time been in such a period of stabilization."

Viewpoint of Burgess.

"It is too early to perform an autopsy on the business recession, for the funeral has not yet taken place," Dr. Burgess said. "Business recession has not yet, at least, been as great as long extended as at many previous times. There is no clear evidence that it has come to an end. But consumption of the products of industry has been very little depressed and a continuous flow of goods to consumers gives assurance that the economic readjustment of this period will be carried out before many months have elapsed."

On the other hand, the Standard Statistics company sees little probability of a sustained improvement in business until the downward movement of commodity prices is reversed and prices definitely stabilized. It recalls the disinclination of industrial purchasers to make commitments on a falling market.

"Although the current decline has so far been much less precipitous than in the 1921-1922 depression," it concludes, "its world wide character tends to magnify the unfavorable effects on trade and purchasing power. The momentum thus established will undoubtedly consume a considerable length of time before it is finally dissipated."

Sears, Roebuck Announces Merchandise Agreement

Sears, Roebuck & Co., mail order and chain store firm, yesterday announced a merchandise purchasing agreement with the F. Feiblеman & Sons Department Stores of New Orleans and Shreveport, La. The agreement become effective June 30. David L. Cohn, vice president and general manager of the southern firm, announced no change would be made in the management.

Estimate Losses of Farm Board at Many Millions

BY SCRUTATOR.

One of our absorbing questions of the day is how much loss, on paper, the federal farm board or the corporations it has set up with government money would have to take if the commodities held are marketed at present prices.

Farm board members now and then talk in large round numbers about the dollars, the bushels of wheat and the bales of cotton that are being dealt in. They do not talk about the balance sheet of board or its created subsidiaries. Chairman Legge said yesterday that he was not at liberty to tell how much wheat the stabilization corporation was holding from the 1929 crop, "because speculators might take advantage of the information." He added that the board had about fifty million dollars in wheat at present.

It is pretty well established that since the creation of the board it has lent about 150 million dollars. Some thirty millions is believed to have been repaid. That the sale of the remainder of the wheat and cotton and other things now being held by farm board corporations would pay back the loans is not believed by any one in the grain or cotton trade. Estimates of the present losses and prospective ones if the holdings could be liquidated at present prices—manifestly not possible—run as high as forty million dollars.

Cites Policy of Secrecy.

Only the farm board itself could give the actual condition of its trading or stabilizing accounts. Because it has chosen not to make these public and has adopted secrecy as a policy to protect its borrowing clients as a bank does, such estimates are necessarily not based on complete fact. They are made by men who have information as it trickles in with individual trades and facilities for correlating this knowledge.

On the assumption that the government corporations now have fifty million bushels of wheat, the well informed believe that selling of it today would mean losses of three million dollars in Chicago; the same in Kansas City; five million dollars in Minneapolis; and two millions in the east. Another three millions might be added to cover storage charges, making a total of sixteen millions without counting interest.

As for cotton, the trade authorities estimate that the cotton stabilization corporation has, or will have in a short time, a million bales on which approximately 16 cents a pound has been lent, and for which 12¾ cents was the price yesterday. Twenty dollars a bale is the guess for the farm board loss at present levels.

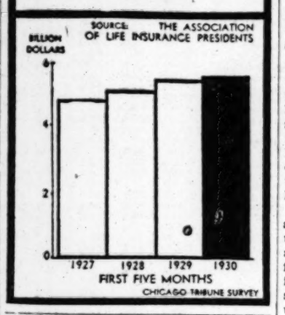
Importance of Storage.

In these two commidities there may, thus, be paper losses of thirty-six millions. The guesses may not be right. They are printed here as the best information that can be obtained, in lieu of a statement to the taxpayers from the farm board concerning the way in which the public money is being spent and guarded.

To get back even the governmental agencies undoubtedly will have to dispose of the commodities at a higher price level than prevails now. It costs money to store the goods. Seven dollars a bale a year is fair for cotton; a cent a month a bushel for wheat. Storage is important in view of the fact that the stabilization corporation is not trying to dispose of what it has.

Many people would like to know what price wheat and cotton would have to sell at a year or six months from now to make the 150 millions of loans that have been made worth the 150 million dollars.

LIFE INSURANCE SALES ARE GREATER THAN IN ANY PREVIOUS YEAR



WHEAT CO-OPERATIVES PROBABLY WILL HOLD 1930 CROP, SAYS LEGGE

Washington, D. C., June 23.—(AP)—Wheat cooperatives probably will voluntarily hold wheat of the 1930 crop so long as the price is low, Chairman Legge of the farm board said today in discussing the emergency created by the current market slump.

The board, Legge said, has made no definite plans for emergency stabilization of either the 1930 wheat crop or the 1930 cotton crop.

The Farmers' National Grain corporation, he said, expects to handle upwards of 300 million bushels of wheat this year without pegging the price. The Wheat Stabilization corporation will presumably continue to hold the 1929 surplus, he said, in the face of a declining market. He explained he was not at liberty to disclose the amount held by the latter because speculators might take advantage of the information.

Legge said the board had not contemplated asking congress for an additional $100,000,000, as has been reported. The Farmers' National Grain corporation, he added, would finance its operations largely through loans from private agencies and the intermediate credit banks. He said the burden should not be heavy, as plenty of money is available at low rates.

July Wheat Touches 89½c Before Rally Lifts Prices

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Eastern longs in July wheat started to liquidate their holdings yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade and sent values crashing 2½@3½ cents to a new low for the season and for any period since 1914-'15, July touching 89½c. The dollar mark was erased in all North American markets for a brief period, but shorts and commission houses came to the rescue, and a rally of 2⅝@3¼c from the low followed with the finish at the top, July closing ⅞c lower at 92@92½c, while the deferred futures were ⅝@⅞c higher, September being 95½@95⅝c.

It was said that between 5,000,000 and 8,000,000 bu July wheat believed to have been purchased around $1.10 a bushel was sold out during the day for an eastern syndicate which earlier in the season tried to corner rye and suffered immense losses. It was figured that there was a loss of around 20 cents per bu on the wheat sold out during the day, the bulk of the trading being between 90@91c.

Winnipeg Wheat Rallies.

Liquidation was in evidence in wheat at Winnipeg with December there off as much as 4c at the opening, but it rallied toward the last and the finish was ¼@⅝c. Kansas City showed independent strength and finished 1⅛@1¼c after July had touched 82c, the rally being in the face of receipts of around 1,100 cars of old and new grain at Enid, Okla.; Ft. Worth, Tex., and Hutchinson and Wichita, Kas. Liverpool dropped 2⅝@3d for the day.

Upturn in wheat from the low point was generally regarded as a natural rally in a bear market, as values here had dropped 17½@18c from the finish on June 9, and were off 23½c during the same period in Winnipeg. Strength in the stock market, and a statement from Chairman Legge of the farm board that the Farmers' National Grain corporation expected to handle 300,000,000 bu wheat during the 1930-'31 season had some effect on sentiment.

Routine news attracted little attention, although the visible supply decreased 2,694,000 bu for the week and the total is down to 109,641,000 bu against 92,148,000 bu last year.

Farmers in the southwest where harvesting of new winter wheat is on, marketed 1,100 cars at Enid, Okla.; Fort Worth, Tex., and Hutchison and Wichita, Kas. In some points of Kansas and Oklahoma, wheat was said to be selling at 57 cents to 60 cents at country loading stations. There were also advices that farmers would not continue to rush their grain to market at these levels which are considered below cost of production.

Corn Shows Strength.

Corn showed stubborn resistance to pressure, and while September sold at a new low for the season early, there was aggressive local buying and short covering, and the close was 1@1⅝c higher with July 76@76⅛c, and September 74⅞@75c, and December 70@70¼c, the latter leading the advance. A decrease of 976,000 bu in the visible supply made the total 8,543,000 bu against 12,058,000 bu last year. Country offerings were small while shipping sales here aggregated 140,000 bu.

There was a better class of buying in oats than of late with some apprehension expressed as to the outcome of the new crop due to extremely high temperatures. December was the only delivery to sell at a new low during the day while the finish was ⅜@½c higher, July being 35¾c, and September 36⅞c at the last.

Spreading operations furnished the bulk of the trade in rye, with some buying of that grain against sales of corn at around 30c difference compared with a normal of about 6c. Rye was bought and wheat sold at 45c difference and there was spreading between the various deliveries. Final trades were ⅜@⅝c higher, with July 47c and September 54⅜c.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 23.—Everything was set for another massacre of the innocents on the stock exchange today, but somebody monkeyed with the machinery and the show wound up with the bears standing in a corner with their faces to the wall. A lot of shorts got badly trimmed in the new deal.

The turnabout swung price values upward anywhere from 10 to 15 points from their lows of the day and gave the list a long string of net gains ranging up to 6 points or more. Before the rally got under way fresh selling, evidently emanating, the most of it, from the bear camp, had sunk more than 160 stocks to new lows for the year.

Various pivotals were included in the lot. United States Steel was one. It dropped to 152⅛ in the first hour of trading, but came back with a rush to close at 156½, up 1¾ points on the day. American Can was another, sinking to 109⅛, then rebounding to 116, up 5⅞. Other big league favorites to show strongly in the final record were American Telephone, up 5½; Bethlehem Steel up 2¼; General Electric, up 1⅜; Worthington Pump, up 4; International Nickel, up ⅝; Union Carbide, up 3½; Westinghouse, up 3⅞; J. I. Case, up 14; Consolidated Gas, up 3⅛; New York Central, up 3¼.

Business Outlook.

The recovery, obviously boomed by some good banking support thrown behind U. S. Steel and other kings of the line, was aided by two or three reassuring statements on the business outlook emanating from authoritative sources. One of these was an analysis of conditions by the Harvard Economic society, pointing to the conclusion that an early business recovery could be expected.

Prices moved ahead steadily and in some instances vigorously, and were generally at or near their best at the close. Observers agreed that the rally was one of the most impressive that had occurred since the decline began three weeks ago. There was a report, incidentally, that one particularly weak spot of the market had been cleaned up privately by an important banking group taking over something like a million shares from another institution which had been caught out on a limb. No particular class of stocks featured the comeback. It was

HOUSE COMMITTEE TO FAVOR I. C. C. STAND ON RAIL CONSOLIDATIONS

Washington, June 23.—(AP) — The house interstate commerce committee decided today to report favorably on its redraft of the senate resolution, proposing to prohibit railroad consolidations through holding companies unless approved by the interstate commerce commission.

The new measure was approved last week in the face of protests from representatives of northwestern states that it would not carry out the purpose of the senate resolution in blocking the proposed unification of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads.

Representative Huddleston [Dem., Ala.] announced his intention of filing a minority report urging adoption of the original Couzens' resolution. The Alabaman said he believed rail mergers should be suspended until congress has had an opportunity to make a study of the situation.

As passed by the senate the resolution aimed specifically at consolidation of the two northern lines would have suspended all merger negotiations until next March 4.

The house committee redraft, however, eliminated this provision and would simply forbid mergers through holding companies unless approved by the commission, and would give labor the right to intervene in consolidation proceedings. In addition it would require protection of interests of communities which have assumed financial obligations in exchange for railroad shops and other advantages.

United Gas Improvement Applies for Stock Listing

New York, June 23.—(AP)—United Gas Improvement company has applied to the New York Stock exchange for the listing of 523,314 additional common shares and 8,820 preferred which are to be exchanged for equity securities of the Atlantic City Gas company, Peoples Gas company of New Jersey, and Wilmington Gas company. The basis of the exchange of shares has not been announced, but U. G. I. plans to transfer the two New Jersey properties to Public Service corporation in which United Gas Improvement holds about a one-third interest.

STANDARD OF IND. RENEWS OFFER ON PAN-AMER.

Edward G. Seubert, president of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, stated yesterday that the exchange offer made by Standard to stockholders of Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company has been renewed for a period from July 1 to Aug. 15.

E. G. SEUBERT.

Mr. Seubert said that the action was taken because many Pan-American holders had been unable to exchange their shares during the previous period, which expired Nov. 30, 1929. Standard of Indiana now owns 93 per cent of the class A, 79 per cent of the class B, and 83 per cent of the common stock of Pan-American.

Standard also plans, he said, to retire the fractional shares of its stock, of which nearly 20,000 shares are outstanding. Such shares will be purchased at the rate of $56 a share. Should the holders desire to complete shares they may purchase fractions at the same rate.

DENIES PETITION TO INTERVENE IN ALTON R. R. CASE

Federal Judge Georg A. Carpenter yesterday denied a petition of Charles Clay Briggs and the Alton corporation, Bay St. Louis, Miss., stockholders of the Chicago and Alton railroad, to intervene in receivership proceedings of the railroad.

Contending that eastern bankers had profited to the extent of $40,000,000 from sale of Chicago and Alton bond issues since 1922, Briggs sought through intervention to have some of the bonds voided.

Judge Carpenter held that lapse of years between the beginning of the receivership in 1922 and today's petition was one reason for refusing the petition. Through his counsel, Benjamin Wham, Briggs announced he would take his plea to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

North American Co. Calls Stockholders Meeting

ILL. BANKERS OPEN ANNUAL MEET AT PEORIA

Peoria, Ill., June 23.—Six hundred bankers from all parts of the state gathered here today for the opening of the fortieth annual state convention of the Illinois Bankers association.

Definite shaping of the association's policy with reference to chain, group and branch banking will be one of the main items of convention business. Concerning this subject, the committee on economic policies, headed by Walter D. Head, president of the Foreman State Banks, favors a continuation of the association's present policy, which is interpreted as opposed to these methods of banking.

Its report says in part, "We are not satisfied that, whatever the possibilities of the future may be group banking has, as yet, stifled unit banking in any community. We believe that strong and resourceful unit bankers may continue to work out the common problem in their own way and that the best interest of both bankers and the public may be served by fair competition."

LIPTON'S AMONG UNITS NAMED IN BIG MERGER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 24.—[Tuesday.]—It was learned in London this morning that the merger of the International Tea Stores Co., Ltd., the Maypole Dairy company, the Meadow Dairy Co., Ltd., the Lipton Tea Co., Ltd., and the Home and Colonial stores was on the verge of completion, thus making one of the largest grocery units in the world.

Approximately 5,000 retail stores will be included in the group. The shareholders of all the companies concerned will be invited to exchange their shares into those of the new holding company. The present companies have a capital approximating $65,000,000. Their market valuation is approximately $200,000,000.

Archibald Roosevelt, son of former President Theodore Roosevelt, has been elected a director of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad, succeeding W. E. Bolton. His election marks his entrance into the railroad industry.

URGES BUILDING NOW; MATERIALS COSTS ARE LOW

Prices of building materials in Chicago today are lower than they were in 1923, according to E. M. Craig, the executive secretary of the Building Construction Employers association, who has mapped out a program to stimulate fall construction activities.

Mr. Craig says that prices of some building materials have been lowered 100 per cent, and urges commencement of construction now, pointing out that prospective builders can build more advantageously today than during the last decade. Labor costs, he says, have increased, but this expenditure has been offset with the increased efficiency of building tradesmen, developed largely by the large surplus of building labor.

Mr. Craig said extensions of the surface and elevated lines and the building of subways, as proposed by the new pending traction ordinance, will develop unsettled sections of the city and promote home building.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES GAIN AS SELLING EASES

Auburn Moves from New Low to 4 Point Gain.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Substantial recovery followed early weakness in stocks on the Chicago exchange yesterday. Encountering an accumulation of selling orders at the opening, values broke sharply on early trades. As the selling eased up, recovery set in all along the line, and final quotations in most instances represented moderate improvement over last week's closing prices.

Though not one of the active shares, Auburn was typical of the day's market. Moving with customary alacrity, the issue broke through 100 to a new low of 92 on early dealings, then faced about and passed Saturday's close on its way to a four point net gain. Less dramatic, but more significant, was the action of some of the more active stocks.

Narrow Utility Range.

Bendix recovered from a low of 28⅛ to close with a gain of a fraction, and Borg-Warner pursued a similar course. The trend among the utility stocks was the same, though the price range was not as wide. Easily the most active issue, Middle West Utilities dipped around a point on early trades, rallied to 27½, a net gain of a point.

The recovery was not as rapid among the industrial specialties as in the remainder of the list, but final prices were above the day's low level. Great Lakes Aircraft ranged moderately all day and finished at 6. Swift International, Castle, and Gleaner Combine each closed with a net loss of a point or so. Majestic, which sold down to 37, finished about unchanged.

Hear of Ford Contracts.

Zenith rallied from a low below 7 to finish with a gain of around a point, and Grigsby-Grunow, which had sold at 14½ during the day, wound up with a fractional gain.

Great Lakes Dredge, on sales of a bare 100 shares, dropped 9 points, then climbed 18, accompanied by reports that the firm has secured contracts totaling $750,000 for material and construction on the new Ford Motor company plant at Buffalo, N. Y.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—Cotton goods opened quiet today, with gray goods prices somewhat weaker following a further cotton decline. Rayon yarns quieted. Silk was unchanged at the opening with prices tending toward the low side. Sales of worsted dress goods for fall showed some gain. Burlaps were quiet and steady.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Old Bellwether.

United States Steel is close enough to its low of last November to make its performance from now on interesting. There were indications yesterday that the bears were attempting to test out the old leader's resistance point of 150. One authority on U. S. Steel said that he would be much surprised if the earnings of the corporation fell below $3 a share on the common for the second quarter. It earned $3.44 a share in the first quarter.

Nipissing Mines.

Dividend on one of the lowest priced issues in this market, Nipissing Mines, is being maintained by directors who have just declared the regular disbursement of 7½ cents quarterly, at the rate of 30 cents a year. This company reported that as of June 14, last, it had cash in banks, government securities, provincial, industrial and railroad bonds and investments amounting to $2,828,884.

Glen Alden Absorption.

The Glen Alden Coal company does not publish quarterly reports, so that it is difficult to estimate what margin above dividends is now being shown, if any. The stock at current levels is yielding more than 8 per cent. Substantial blocks were absorbed in the last week. Glen Alden has a conservative management which in the past has been farsighted in gauging industrial conditions.

ROBERT BEATTY BUYS HOLDING IN WORLD FAIR ZONE

Sells Six Story Myrtilus Apartment Hotel.

Robert S. Beatty yesterday sold the six story Myrtilus apartment hotel at 6435 Kimbark avenue to Elmer Toohey, taking in exchange a near south side holding capable of development in connection with the 1933 World's Fair. The Myrtilus contains forty-three furnished apartments and was erected about five years ago from plans by Edward George McClellan. It occupies a lot 50x165 feet and it was sold at a reported $265,000, subject to $147,000.

The holding obtained by Mr. Beatty is located at the northwest corner of Lake Park avenue and Pershing road. The lot, 100x180 feet, is improved with a three story building containing twenty-four flats. It is located just to the west of what will probably be the south entrance to the fair grounds and in acquiring it Mr. Beatty had in mind developing the property in connection with the fair should conditions warrant. He has no plan now. Joseph Young and Mrs. Margaret Long were brokers.

North Shore Trade.

John F. [illegible]hn, Inc., reports the closing of a north shore suburban exchange transaction in which five properties having an aggregate reported valuation of $400,00 were involved. In the transaction Henry Harfst sold his stone residence at 2467 North Deere Park drive, Highland Park, and the adjoining lot to Edward A. Lomas of Evanston. This property has a total frontage of 172 feet and it runs back 440 feet to the lake.

Mr. Lomas gave in exchange three Evanston properties. One is a six apartment building at 425-27 Greenwood boulevard, lot 74x100 feet. The second is an eight flat building at 1003-05 Hinman avenue, lot 100x100 feet. And the third is an apartment site, 90x131 feet, at 425 Lee street. Julie H. Born and Henning L. Hultman of John F. Hahn, Inc., were brokers.

Harmon Sells Land Interest.

Patrick T. ["Paddy"] Harmon yesterday conveyed his half interest in the property at the northwest corner of Warren avenue and Wood street, 286x124 feet, to Sidney N. Strotz, president of the Chicago Stadium corporation. Mr. Strotz has leased the property to Sam B. Rooney of the Union Station garage for ten years from June 12 for use as outdoor parking space. The garage man will pay an annual rental of $7,200. In January, 1929, it was announced that Harmon and Strotz contemplated erecting a hotel on the ground.

Joseph Schniedel has sold the eighteen apartment building at the southeast corner of 68th street and Harper avenue to Michael Ilg for a reported $100,000. Mr. Schniedel took in exchange the six apartment building at 7049 St. Lawrence avenue and the house at 8337 Morgan street. Carroll, Schendorf & Boenicke were brokers.

SHARP RALLY IN STOCK MARKET PUNISHES BEARS

rather a broad, general advance extending to every group and nearly every specialty of note. The volume was 3,836,440 shares, the largest seen in a rising market for several weeks.

The market had opened under a sweeping broadside of liquidation with prices off from 1 to 5 points. The pressure continued unabated throughout the first hour, with many of the highest-priced issues on the board dropping to new 1930 lows, among them Allied Chemical, American Can, American Smelting and Refining, American Telephone, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Columbia Gas and Electric, International Telephone, Johns-Manville, Kennecott, R. H. Macy, Radio corporation, Sears-Roebuck, Standard Oil of New York, Union Carbide, Woolworth and Westinghouse Electric.

Rail Issues Hit.

Rail issues also were especially hard hit, Missouri-Kansas-Texas, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, New Haven, Pennsylvania, Reading and Union Pacific and many other common and preferred all told going to new lows.

The initial burst of selling continued unchecked throughout the first hour. Then a rally got under way, but toward the end of the second hour liquidation was renewed. Shortly after noon the market definitely changed front, however, and from that hour until the close the main trend was definitely upward.

What little news there was had little effect—outside of the afternoon statements on the business outlook. Groups and specialties moved pretty much together, rising and falling en masse with the popular tide.

Credit conditions were no more a factor than they have been for weeks. Call money was unchanged at 2½ per cent but the demand continued scant.

LARD SHARPLY LOWER

Scattered selling of lard and bellies had a depressing influence on values of futures yesterday, carrying lard down 25c to 27½c, from which there was a rally of 20c on the July and September, with the finish at losses of 5c to 7½c. Clear bellies declined 75c to 85c and closed at the bottom with a moderate trade.

Lower prices for grains had a depressing influence early. Hog prices were steady early but closed 25c lower. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 3d lower, the latter on September. Exports of lard for the week were 8,973,000 lbs, against 11,129,000 lbs last year. Of bacon they were 4,662,000 lbs, against 5,663,000 lbs last year. Prices follow:

A GAIN Of 162,481 Lines

In Department Store Advertising

DURING the first five months of this year The Sun showed a substantial gain in Department Store Advertising—a gain of 162,481 lines. Of the linage gained in this classification by all the New York newspapers, The Sun's gain alone constituted 23.7 per cent.

And The Sun, as usual, led all the New York newspapers in volume of Department Store Advertising—exceeding the volume of the second newspaper by 581,575 lines. For years The Sun has published more Department Store Advertising than any other New York newspaper—seven-day morning as well as six-day evening.

The department stores know their New York. No other group of advertisers is more familiar with this market and its buying habits; no other group uses as much space in New York newspapers; no other group is better able to judge the newspapers' respective merits. Depending largely for their success, as they must, on quick response to their advertisements, the department stores seek the surest and shortest route to results. Selling an infinite variety of goods . . . whether it be soap or sugar, beds or boots, pearls or pianos, rugs or radios, or furs, frocks and fittings for the whole family . . . no other group has a more intimate daily check on the pulling power of the local newspapers.

The reliance placed in The Sun by the New York department stores to sell their many commodities is of paramount importance to all advertisers. The medium that is used most by those who know this market best can be depended upon as a most reliable producer of sales for all worthy products and services. . . . . .

SYNOPSIS.

Catherine West of Boston, on her way to Paris, meets Geoffrey Macadam. Catherine tells him that she is going to visit her cousin's widow, Mme. Belmont Bender. She is apprehensive about the coming visit, because she had received, just before sailing, a letter from Germaine Cushing, who tells her that Mme. Bender is far from well. Macadam is a friend of Mme. Bender and he tells Catherine that his firm handles Mme. Bender's affairs. He had heard that she was ill.

Catherine arrived at Mme. Bender's apartment. Catherine is treated coldly by the servants. Only Mme. Bender's maid, tells her that Mme. Bender attempted to commit suicide the day before. The next morning Catherine goes in to see Germaine, who is pathetically glad to see her. She tells Catherine how she had taken poison by mistake.

Geoffrey invites Catherine to dine with him and she tells him of her vague fears. The next morning Catherine calls on Miss Cushing, who takes her to her milliner. Later she sees a man she had noticed hanging around the Bender apartment. Back in the apartment she finds the gallery open for the first time and a number of pictures and statues missing. Jeanne says they were sold shortly before Mr. Bender's death. Catherine feels she is lying. She finds Jeanne is exerting a baneful influence on Mme. Bender.

Geoffrey again takes Catherine out to dinner and she unburdens herself to him. He already had an investigator on the case. He asks her to marry him, but she wants to be certain of her feelings. Catherine goes to visit Geoffrey's sister.

Geoffrey discovers Blom, the mysterious person seen around the Bender apartment, is being a possible heir to the Bender fortune. Shortly after this discovery Blom's engagement to Mme. Baron, Miss Cushing's milliner, a widow, whose maiden name is the same as that of Mme. Bender, is announced.

A fire breaks out in Mme. Bender's apartment early in the morning, and she is burned to death. Most of the building is saved. Catherine had returned suddenly to Paris the day before. The servants deny to Geoffrey that she came to the apartment. Geoffrey calls Edwards, the butler, to Blom's office. He sends for his investigator to watch the apartment and calls on the commissariat de police, who assigns Inspector Bazin to the case. Catherine did return to Mme. Bender's apartment. Before retiring she smells smoke and thinks it is coming from her cousin's room. The door is locked. She dashes to get the key and arouse Jeanne, who fights with her to prevent her from opening madame's door. Edwards the butler, carrying a heavy candlestick—and then a crashing blow on her skull from the butt of concierge's.

Geoffrey's sister Elspeth meets him at the Bender apartment. She looks over Catherine's belongings and finds a hat Catherine wore on her visit at Fontainebleau. Geoffrey receives a telegram signed by Catherine, stating she is well and would telephone him on the morrow. After the first shock of joy he becomes doubtful about the message. He calls the inspector to watch. From a room across the street, the Bender apartment building.

INSTALLMENT LXXIV.

A CONSTANT MEMORY.

The inspector stopped the car in a turning off the Avenue Henri. The glare of an arc light shone full on Geoffrey's face, revealing its ghastly pallor. "I suppose we can do nothing but watch?" he suggested, his tone expressionless with repression.

"Not for tonight. If nothing occurs, then tomorrow we shall have to take definite action, but so long as a bare hope remains of the young lady's being alive we must tread warily."

Leading the way, he turned into a narrow passage squeezed between high rows of buildings, passed through a doorway and began to ascend a winding stair, lit by a dim wall bracket.

"This is the rear entrance to the house we want, monsieur. It is better not to use the front way, for fear of being seen."

On the first floor he tapped upon a door, which was opened by a middle aged femme de chambre.

"Will you kindly inform M. le Commandant that Inspector Bazin is here?"

The woman nodded.

"If you will come this way, messieurs, I will conduct you to the room monsieur has placed at your disposal."

Following her along a passage they found themselves in a small study the walls of which, above compactly filled book shelves, were ornamented by a collection of arms arranged in a coruscating pattern—spears, poniards and daggers of an interesting variety.

When the servant withdrew, Bazin informed his companion that they

as the guests of M. le Commandant Jules Heller, well known as an authority on modern warfare.

The door opened to admit their host, a small, bald headed man, one armed and with a glass eye. His spare body was attired in a velvet jacket, the lapel of which bore the tiny red ribbon of the Legion d'Honneur.

"Good evening, messieurs!" The commandant bowed with exquisite courtesy, his lone eye beaming with welcome. "I trust this study is suitable for your purpose? It is near the corner and commands a view of both entrances opposite, although unfortunately the trees are in full leaf and may obstruct the vision."

The inspector declared the position excellent, adding that he trusted they were not causing inconvenience.

"Not in the least! I confess I would like nothing better than to share your watch, but alas, I am suffering from migraine, and my wife insists on my early retirement."

He seated himself, offered them liqueurs and cigars, and for a short time conversed with a charm and fluency which at another time would have delighted both listeners. As matters were, it was a relief to Geoffrey's nerves when at the stroke of nine he rose to bid them good night. In the doorway he paused, his manner suddenly altering.

"That maid across the way," he remarked with serious thoughtfulness, "I have watched her going about her duties for eleven years—respectful, discreet, but, messieurs, hard—as hard as those—" and he pointed a finger at the polished blades on the wall. "I know her accent; she is from the Vosges. Of butler I cannot place, he is probably of no nationality, but I know what I am saying when I tell you that there is bad blood there. If you wish to live, those two, messieurs, you will need to be like our friend the fly—all eyes, below, above and in the backs of your heads! Bon soir, messieurs—et bonne chance!"

"He is right," muttered the inspector shortly. "We shall want all our wits about us."

He turned off the lights, then cautiously drew aside the curtains. The room was saved from complete darkness by the street lights and the silver radiance of the moon, just risen above the housetops.

"Too much illumination. We must be careful not to show ourselves."

Seating himself in the shadow of the curtains, he offered a packet of matches to his companion, masking the lighted match with his hands.

During an interminable interval the two puffed in silence. Ever and anon Geoffrey's cigaret went out and had to be relit. His muscles twitched, his features in the tempered gloom showed blanched and drawn. The unseen clock struck ten. A groan escaped him. The night had barely begun!

A moment afterwards he stiffened and laid a hand on the inspector's arm. In the narrow balcony of the corner room Eduardo had appeared, his broad shoulders silhouetted against the glow within. He stood with his right hand resting against the railing, and Geoffrey saw that the sling had been discarded. Slowly, indifferently, it seemed, his bullet head turned, surveying the avenue in both directions, then, throwing back his chin, he stared up at the night sky. A cloud of pale smoke wafted out over the the chestnuts from the cigaret between his lips.

For several minutes he remained thus, then withdrew, closing the casement. All was quiet once more, though the light inside the room was still on.

Silence and another endless wait. Would nothing ever happen?

Then suddenly out of the soft night rose the thin notes of a violin. The air, charged with poignant associations, clutched at Geoffrey's heart. It was Valse Triste Tango.

He shut his eyes. Across velvet blackness swayed two white figures like long frost flowers, accented here and there with spots that were crimson drops of blood.

Then the vision melted kaleidoscopically into another and he sensed about him a different darkness, with the odor of lilies of the valley filling his nostrils. He could all but feel the pliant body close against him and the warm kiss of those lips which for two weeks had been a constant memory.

Acute anguish shot through him. His nails dug into his palms.

Catherine opened her eyes.

What was this red glow round her, sending forth waves of pulsing heat? Was she still dreaming?

The night had been one long jumble of phantasmas, sucking her back into nightmare whenever she seemed on the point of waking.

Incapable of analyzing her impressions, she lay surveying the crimson haze through eyelids drooping of their own weight. Meanwhile her languid brain recalled the visions sleep had conjured up to torment her, reviewing them laboriously, one by one.

A wizen face—whose was it? Tear stained and lit by tall white candles, which as she watched grew, lengthening into rockets which shot off through the roof. Then another face, sallow and hard, with round, close set eyes which stared steadily at her with venomous hatred. Curiously enough, this face appeared to be crossed and recrossed by an iron grille, as though it were seen through prison bars. Wherever she turned it was there, watching her, balefully. She could not get away from it. Indeed, she had been possessed by that familiar nightmare of paralysis, feeling herself bound, unable to move. Even in her dream she had made a sickening discovery. She was trapped in a spider web, legs and arms imprisoned by pitiless meshes which cut into her flesh when she turned and twisted to escape.

Good Morning!

A hand for Mr. Lowell Sherman, please! His distinguished performance makes worth seeing a picture that would be, without it, just another movie.

"He Knew Women" was once a play called "The Second Man." The story is of a third rate author, who, having no predilection for "the crushing grip of iron poverty" which would surely have descended on him had he attempted to live by his works—providing he worked—has contracted to marry the rich and generous Mrs. Frayne. She knows him for what he is but loves him just the same—and says it with checks.

This not wholly admirable Mr. Clarke is adored by a flyaway young person who is engaged to a noble, wealthy but slow young chemist. She pursues the author with determination. But—"he knew women"—as the finale proves.

Mr. Sherman has never had a rôle better suited than this one to his urban and urbane personality. His work has the smoothness and gloss of satin. Frances Dade as the damsel who pursues him gives the next best characterization. David Manners [you saw him as Raleigh in "Journey's End"] is all right as the chemist. Alice Joyce doesn't do so well as Mrs. Frayne. She gives a stilted performance and her voice is disappointing.

This is a "talky" film, and while much of the dialogue is clever, and that rendered by Mr. Sherman always entertaining, I feel that the piece would have been better if shorter.

See you soon.

Mary Clark Weds Nelson Rockefeller; Start World Trip

Bala, Pa., June 23.—[Special.]—Mary Todhunter Clark and Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller, second son of John D. Rockefeller Jr., were married today at St. Asaph's church before an altar banked with Cybodium ferns and Madonna lilies.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Benjamin N. Bird at 4:30 p. m., and immediately afterward a reception was held at the Cynmyd home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hamilton Clark.

Mrs. Rockefeller, a debutante of four years ago, who has shown great interest in social service work, wore a wedding gown of ivory duchess satin, made with high waistline, the skirt falling from a small yoke to the floor.

After the wedding reception, which was attended by several hundred persons prominent in society in Philadelphia, New York, and other eastern cities, Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller were to leave on a trip around the world. When they return they will live in a house that has been built for them on the Rockefeller estate at Pocantico Hills, N. Y.

Miss Clark's bridesmaids were the Misses Gwendolyn Roberts and Eleanor Clark, her cousins, of Philadelphia; Laura Wayne and Alice Lippincott, also of Philadelphia; Genevieve Bell of Pittsburgh, Catherine Clothier of Philadelphia, Mrs. David M. Milton, the former Abby Rockefeller of New York, and Mrs. Beverly Coleman of Washington.

Heat Wave Increases Suffering of the Poor; Call for Help Made

With the hottest June 23 on record pelting heat waves down upon already stuffy, sultry streets, suffering came to the tenements yesterday.

Down in loop offices and stores workers and shoppers sought a bit of lake breeze from well ventilated buildings and kept reasonably comfortable in electrically cooled rooms. But on the outskirts of the loop, within a mile's radius or more, the torrid wave penetrated the tiny tenement quarters. Mothers and children longed for the cool, green expanse of Camp Algonquin, or even a chip of ice from THE TRIBUNE'S free ice wagons.

Did you ever go down along Clark or Halsted street or the Haymarket district, or the little two block streets in the heart of the Ghetto, reader? Did you ever pass that way on a sweltering day, see whole families sitting out there upon the steps in mid-afternoon gasping for cooling breezes? Did you ever see the children from over the neighborhood gather for games to try to forget the heat, playing there on the burning pavement barefoot?

That is life in the back o' the yards on days like yesterday.

The hot weather's here, and that means only one thing to TRIBUNE readers as far as the Algonquin and free ice funds are concerned: Immediate relief for these underprivileged families. Sending families to the cool quiet of Camp Algonquin or sending the ice wagons round to tenement back doors, with their messages of health for tiny babies. There'll be plenty more heat and suffering. Will you help?

Since previous acknowledgment several gifts have come to both funds. Among them was $1.25 from six little girls who gave a play in Hinsdale for the Camp Algonquin fund. They were Dorothy Dehnert, Jean Ebert, Betty Hildebrand, Dorothy Keith, Virginia Knox, and Jackie Jefferson. Another camp gift came from a mother "as a tribute of thanks to God for being able to send my two boys to Camp Indianola, which they have been attending for several summers."

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

In your estimation what has been Chicago's greatest achievement in the last ten years?

The Answers.

V. J. Burns, 1850 North Mozart street, typemaker—I believe the building of the Chicago Civic Opera house is the greatest achievement in many years. Those who love good music, like myself, can realize what it means to the city.

Dorothy Smith, Waco, Tex., secretary.—I'm just a visitor, here on my vacation, and it's hard for me to name the greatest achievement. The way in which Chicago handles its traffic is wonderful. The stop and go lights in the loop and throughout the city are a great time saver.

Edward Sarna, 1738 North Whipple street, clerk.—The outer drive leading to the south side, I believe, rates high as one of the city's greatest achievements. It is a wonderful piece of work. Chicago has accomplished so much in the last ten years that it is not fair to single out one as its greatest.

Mrs. V. W. Lide, Bloomington, Ill., housewife. — This city is just full of great achievements. Upon each visit I see new things. The aquarium and the planetarium are fine pieces of work. I came to Chicago today just to see them.

Richard Kerowicz, 1732 North Whipple street, printer. — Wacker drive has been the greatest achievement in the last ten years. It is a different sight from the old market that used to occupy that valuable space. Those responsible for it have done much for the progress of Chicago.

100 Chicagoans to Attend Convention of B'nai B'rith

Chicago will send 100 delegates this week-end to Madison, Wis., to attend the 62d annual convention of the district grand lodge, No. 6, Independent Order of B'nai B'rith. Nine states will be represented. President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin will be the chief speaker at a banquet next Monday night.

Graduates from Public Schools Total 30,645

Record Number to Get Diplomas Thursday.

The largest class in the history of the Chicago public schools will be graduated Thursday night when 30,645 students will be given diplomas at exercises in the various schools. Supt. William J. Bogan announced that the number of graduates this year shows a marked increase over 1929, although a great deal of trouble has been experienced through the necessity of many students working full or part time to aid their parents.

"Chicago citizens may well take pride," President H. Wallace Caldwell of the board of education said, "in the record of students graduating from their schools. In the recent scholarship competitions at the University of Chicago, a majority of the scholarships were won by Chicago students. At the same time a majority of the grade students continue in high school, and the record of high school students who go to college is better than may other cities."

Exercises will be held at all of the schools and most of them will be open to the public. At a few schools the graduating class is so large it has been necessary to limit the attendance and issue tickets to the graduating body for the use of parents and friends. An endeavor is being made to provide each school with a well known speaker to deliver the graduating address.

Commenting on the year just past, Supt. Bogan said, "I feel that members of the Chicago schools are justified in a feeling of pride. The morale of the teaching staff has remained excellent despite postponed salary checks. It is hard for a teacher to give the best when financial worries are present, but that this has been done is shown by the record of our students."

School officials pointed with special pride to the record of the night classes and continuation schools for foreign born and pupils forced to work in the daytime. More than 200 students are receiving diplomas with credits from such classes.

The schools and graduates are: elementary, 15,800; junior high schools, 4,500; high schools, 6,350; special courses, prevocational and night schools, 3,180; Crane Junior college, 500; Chicago Normal college, 315.

A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE

FOLGER RICHES GO TO NATION THROUGH SHAKESPEARE FUND

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—Henry Clay Folger, former chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of New York, who died before realizing his ambition to establish a memorial home for his world famous Shakespearean collection for the use of students of Elizabethan drama, made provision in his will for its completion and maintenance, it was learned today.

His will, which will be filed later this week in Brooklyn Surrogate court, after making specific bequests of $200,000 to his sister, his nephew, and five nieces, and providing for a life annuity of $90,000 for his widow, sets aside the residuary estate as a gift to the nation for the promotion and diffusion of knowledge through the Folger Shakespeare memorial.

The gift consists of a building now being erected in Washington, near the library of congress, his world famous collection of folios, rare editions, and autographs, and a fund which is to be maintained in an amount not less than $10,000,000. The fund is to be administered by the trustees of Amherst college, Mr. Folger's alma mater.

Belgian King Sees Seven Americans Get Degrees in Brussels

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, June 23.—In the presence of King Albert and famous professors from nineteen countries dressed in gorgeous robes, seven Americans today received honoris causa degrees from Brussels university at the most brilliant international gathering that the university has witnessed since its founding in 1834.

These Americans formed the crib of the educational foundation which was the offspring of President Hoover's Belgium war relief committee, and they put a crowning touch to the festivities by donating another million francs, about $39,100, to build dormitories for Brussels university students.

The seven Americans honored are Ambassador Hugh Gibson, Edgar Rickard, California engineer; Miller King Shaler, of Brussels; William Hallam Turk, of Antwerp; John D. Rockefeller Jr., P. Galpin, of New York, and George E. Vincent, president of the Rockefeller foundation.

Ravinia Turns to Comedy and Entices Crowd

"Marouf" Triumphs with Chamlee and Gall.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

After a marvel of poetic music drama the night before, the Ravinia company arrived at a marvel of poetic comedy last night, Henri Rabaud's "Marouf," as enticing a bit of charm as ever the Ravinia company with its long record of achievements has come upon.

It is a fantastic bit of orientalism, and part of the orientalism is genuine. The story comes out of the Arabian nights, about the poor cobbler of Cairo who was beaten within an inch of his life after the accusations of his shrewish wife and then picked up and went out seeking and finding adventures of a highly colored nature. Part of the music is based on genuine oriental themes also, the same themes that one finds whined out on pipes and beaten out on drums today.

If both book and music speak with a decided French accent there is nothing derogatory in the fact. It is rather an improvement; only the lofty of brow are able to take their orientalism straight. The rest of us prefer it diluted, or at least worked into a rather more western manner. But there is no denying that between eastern sources or western development a masterpiece has been made, comic opera in its finest and most engaging sense.

Also it is a masterpiece of performance as they do it at Ravinia. Possibly some other tenor in the world may be up to doing the name part somewhere nearly as well as Mario Chamlee does it, but his name escapes me just at this time. Make no mistake, here is a great artist, one of the finest in the world today, a man of superb voice and a canny knowledge of how to use it, of expert sense of the stage and especially expert sense of comedy, who can touch the heart with his singing and amuse the soul with his comic acting at almost the same time.

And it would be another mistake ever to try to stage the piece unless Yvonne Gall was at hand to sing the part of the princess who became Marouf's final reward in his adventures. In this performance she was one of the loveliest objects on earth, another superb singer, a personage of the stage who used repose or high spirits with equal ability and equal effect.

With this pair to lead the cast it would be almost impossible to fail, but I wish there were time and space to dwell upon some of the other features, of the magnificent sultan by Leon Rothier, of the vizier, another wonderful piece of comedy by Vittorio Trevisan, of Julia Claussen's masterpiece in a virago wife, of the dance done by Ruth Page, Blake Scott, and the ballet, again derived from the orient and working out into a blaze of color and swirling movement, of at least a dozen smaller parts.

Most of all it would be necessary to dwell upon the sparkling, witty logic of the music as it danced and sang at the baton of Louis Hasselmans. If "Marouf" were a moving picture it would get the comment of four stars, and another if possible.

2 Chicago Writers Are Given Praise at Library Convention

Los Angeles, Cal., July 23.—[Special.]—Heads of public and private libraries from all over the country opened the fifty-second annual convention of American Library association today with kind words about the mounting public interest in and expanding taste for good literature.

Several recent works were singled out for approval. Forrest Spaulding, head of the Des Moines public library, said that biographies "such as Shelby Little's work on the life of Washington and Carl Sandburg on Lincoln," were outstanding developments.

Offer Plan for Permitting Chicago Texts in Schools

The administrative committee of the board of education yesterday unanimously adopted a resolution urging the board to permit textbooks written by Chicago teachers to be used in the public schools. No Room for Stout Gals Behind the Store Counter

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In case any of us get to taking too seriously the predictions that heavily padded frames will eventually return to popular favor, if they are not now viewed with less alarm than a year or two or three ago, hear the indictment of store employers with the problem before them of how to fit behind narrow counters a dozen girls who must walk, stoop and reach for merchandise.

"Between the counter and the shelves," Elizabeth Clark reports in a metropolitan daily, after interviewing a number of store executives, "there is no room for the fat girl."

"Floor" departments eliminate the feature of space and surplus poundage, in some cases, as in coat, dress and corset sections where it may be advantageous to have saleswomen of not too ethereal lines wait on customers of stylish stout proportions.

Generally speaking, however, the department store favors the girl who looks agile, does not take up too much room, and whose vitality suggests she could be in a dozen places at the same time without appreciably disturbing sectional co-workers. Miss Clark reports that good looks and personality are things that cannot be left out of any picture of department store employment. But for that matter, why pick on department store heads for "lookin' 'em over" before hiring. It is going on everywhere.

It is not as exacting as it sounds, however. The worker's good looks are fortunately the kind of appearance almost any girl of intelligence can accomplish. They are largely a matter of hygiene, grooming, neatness, and alertness.

It is not untimely here to pay tribute to those young women who serve in stores and whose appearance day after day is a lesson in good personal management. On nails and hair neatness alone they are a challenge to those of us who plead lack of time. On poise and control they are a further lesson, for Lord knows we shoppers must be a trial with our indecisions, our un-madeup minds—and regrettably, we must add, our brusqueness or crudity of manner.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

M. O'S.: RED, BLOTCHY RASHES on the face come from rapid eating. When we overtax the digestion skin disturbances are apt to result. Where there is imperfect mastication we are inclined to wash the food down with water. More food is taken than is necessary, consequently such persons overeat.

There's Always Two Sides to the Question of Love Grown Cold

BY DORIS BLAKE.

An opinion is asked of a young man attending medical school, to graduate in 1931, who got himself engaged to a girl five years his senior and is now willing, anxious rather, to call this affair of the heart a closed episode. The reason being another member of the fair sex upon whom his affections are now centered.

A friend of the discarded one calls the student all kinds of a rotter and cad for deserting the older girl who showered him with gifts, some of them money handouts.

Maybe the youth is all that he is accused of being. More probably he is not. He may simply be going through the emotional evolution of a young man. It is common for school boys to become attached to an older girl who shows them kindness, understanding and sympathy. Later, when they've grown up, as it were, they begin to see the charms of girls nearer their own age. While five years difference later on in life is not much of a stumbling block, if any at all, at student age there is a much more appreciable difference between a boy of 23, let us say, and a woman of 28.

The charge against the youth is that the first girl gave up her friends and good times because the boy did not have money and he was anxious to get through school.

Now, on the face of it, is it fair to take advantage of a youth's affection, shower him with gifts and expect loyalty? It is not fair to put him in the position of not being free to choose until he is through school, has money of his own and can act wholly on his own initiative. It is pretty poor sportsmanship to attempt to subsidize a youth's affections with gifts. The fact that the boy is now looking to another proves that he was restless under the old régime and has manhood enough to want to act the rôle of a man.

However, there may be a hint in the episode for other girls who put too much confidence in these young exhibitions of love acted by boy students. It is better to hold one's friends and one's good times and leave the happy ending, like any good gambler, to luck.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Refused His Invitation.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have asked a girl I like out, but she refused. Please advise. J. J. M."

If she gave a satisfactory explanation, try again. If she flatly refused the invitation, don't repeat.

Paris Conference May Bring Split in U. S. Movie Ranks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 23.—A sharp split in the American motion picture industry may be the indirect consequence of the conference meeting here to settle the talkie patent tangle in Germany, THE TRIBUNE understands. Although the movie producers and distributors are ostensibly working hand in glove to defend American interests in Europe, the truth is that the producers are restless under the yoke of the gigantic electric and other technical interests which have been dominating the field and are planning to break loose.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Albert O. Trostel of Milwaukee announced the engagement yesterday of their daughter, Elinor, to John K. Notz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Felix J. Notz of 521 Stratford place. Art Students' League Exhibiting Its Work at Art Institute

BY ELINOR JEWETT.

The annual exhibition by members of the Art Students' League of the Art institute is being held this year in the school lobby exhibition room on the ground floor of the museum. The exhibit includes water colors, wood block prints, paintings, etchings and pencil drawings. The work is entirely the result of time spent outside of school hours. The league has some 1,000 members, including the alumni of the school.

A number of prizes are given each year for the best work. The jury of selection and awards this year was made up of Paul Schulze, Willard G. Smythe, Mrs. Frances A. Barothy, Kenneth Ness, Sydney S. Lovitz, Frederick V. Poole and Catherine O'Brien.

The William O. Goodman prize of $50 was awarded to Rudolph Franze for his group of book designs; the William O. Goodman prize of $25 to Emanuel Jacobson, for a creative composition; the William O. Goodman prize of $15 to William Galpin for his group of water colors, pencil and wood block prints, and the William O. Goodman prize of $10 to Catherine O'Brien, for water color.

The Municipal Art league awards were distributed in this way: to Michael Gamboney for the most outstanding composition, $25; to Antonio Garcia, for oil painting, $15; to Betty Resnik, for group of murals, $10. The Art institute alumni prize of $25 was awarded to Aaron Lebedinsky for a composition in oil.

Plans are on foot to extend the activities of the Art Students' league outside the Art institute. To this end communications are solicited from colleges, clubs and associations having rooms for exhibition purposes, so that the officials of the league may make arrangements to show the work of its members. It is planned later to send an exhibition of selective work on tour to neighboring cities. Inquiries for these exhibitions, eminently worth while, should be addressed to Sydney Lovitz, chairman of the exhibition committee, 681 East Main street, Benton Harbor, Mich.

Laura van Pappelendam, instructor in painting in the school of the Art institute, is having an exhibition of twenty-nine of her paintings in the National Museum gallery, Madison, Wis. The paintings deal with Mexico, where she painted last summer, and to which she intends to return this summer for another sketching tour at the close of the Art institute school term.

Hurry, Children, for Sally's First Party; Write Letters Today

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

If you've never been to White City you must be filled with a huge desire to go and see for yourself just what there is about the place that every one likes so well. And if you have been there before you most likely are filled with hankering to return just as soon as possible. Well, for those of you who know all about the park and you who are anxious to know about it, I am putting such an opportunity right in your path.

As you read in yesterday's and Sunday's TRIBUNE, Herbert A. Byfield has asked me to bring 100 boys and girls to White City on July 3, a week from Thursday, for a rollicking party. He is opening the entire park for our amusement and is even planning some extra features for us.

Now, all you have to do to receive an invitation to this thrilling affair is write me the kind of a letter that will make me sure you are anxious to attend. You see, I'd like to take the children who would most enjoy this party and this is the only way I have of knowing. I've told you some of the things we will be able to do and about some of the rides out there so with these in mind your letter writing will not be much of a task at all.

However, I haven't told you that in addition to the dipping, curving rides, the trip through the canals of Venice, the Ferris wheel and merry-go-round, there will be a circus which is a complete show in itself.

I could go on for columns with stories about this park where you can't possibly have anything except a marvelous time but I know you want to start your letter if you haven't already sent it. Every letter must reach my office by Thursday morning, the day after tomorrow, because it is on that day that I shall make the selections. The names of the winners will appear in next Sunday's paper. In your letter, do not forget to tell me your name, address and age—these are important things to remember. You can address it to Sally Joy Brown, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Food Talk

Do your neighbors know when you cook cabbage?

There is no excuse for any one knowing that you are serving cabbage until you announce your meal. Furthermore, there is no use producing unwelcome odors in your kitchen. Cabbage is too attractive and too valuable a food to have developed its uncomplementary reputation. It is as pretty a vegetable as there is.

Color is not the only good feature of cabbage. It has a delightfully sweet taste, a pleasing texture, and there are so many interesting ways in which it can be served. Considering its nutrients, we find few vegetables that are more important and useful in the diet. And it is always available and cheap.

We ought to be thankful for cabbage. It is a year round vegetable. In the spring and summer we have on the market what is known as the domestic or early market variety. There is no better way to serve it than just plain boiled and buttered. Since it is a green vegetable, it is cooked just like spinach, green beans, and peas, which we have already discussed, in an open kettle, of course, and in enough boiling salted water to cover. Cooking should continue until vegetable is tender, but no longer. If cabbage is cut up quite fine it should cook tender in 7 to 10 minutes. Test with a fork. Cabbage cooked in this way is sweet in flavor, attractive in color and easily digested. Long cooking of cabbage in a covered kettle always results in a pink colored mushy mass with an unpleasant odor. It is the cabbage cooked in this way that produces indigestion.

Open kettle cooking of green vegetables is not a novelty. It produces cabbage so delicious that it is unusual. Corned beef and cabbage—that good old standby—will take on a new role once you cook cabbage this way. Cook corned beef until tender, then add cabbage and cook until it is tender.

Two-in-One Trick Hat Takes Care of 24 Hours

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Paris dressmakers have a passion for turning out trick clothes this summer and now the milliners are going in for the same thing. If a dress can have a skirt that turns out to be a cape, too, why can't a hat have a bandeau that turns out to be a bonnet? Newest hot weather hats from Agnes have just this, and, girls, they're a knockout. Wonderful for women whose hair won't behave prettily in torrid weather, or for girls-in-a-hurry who can't spare a minute to go home and dress between parties.

This duplex millinery is composed of a wide brimmed, summery looking hat that you can wear all day, and the cunningest of little bonnets for anything that happens from 5 p. m. to the same time a. m. The latest and smartest thing that Agnes has made on these lines is sketched in the two lower circles herewith. In the center you see the hat and bonnet paired. The hat is made of black straw, tilted high on the left side, so that a good bit of the bonnet under it is visible as a bandeau. There's a cluster of field flowers over the left ear and another on top of the brim. The big hat may be removed on a second's notice to leave you bonneted in black straw lace for the evening, and it conceals recalcitrant hair, framing the face enchantingly, so you look nice whether you're coiffed or not.

At the top of the sketch is the smartest thing in tailored millinery for summer—the tricorne. This Patou hat is made of semi-transparent straw that is so supple you can roll it into a ball without getting it out of shape.

Shalimar powder by GUERLAIN

Supreme among perfumers . . . Guerlain has produced a precious powder. It is perfumed with Shalimar . . . that rare odeur that holds the adoration and admiration of Paris and New York alike.

DROP OF WATER IS LITTLE NIAGARA, SAYS SCIENTIST

World Power Conference Told of Hidden Energy.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 23.—"There is enough energy in a drop of water to furnish 200 horsepower for a year," Sir Arthur Stanley Eddington, British astronomer, told the second world power conference here this afternoon, pointing out that the study of the stars gives proof of the subatomic theory.

"As soon as man has found the key to subatomic energy," he continued, "a cup of water will be sufficient fuel to run a monster engine for a year. Thanks to Prof. Albert Einstein we now know how to calculate this subatomic energy—that is to say, the amount of energy stored away in matter."

Summarizes Learned Speech.

In a resumé of his highly learned but humorous speech given by Sir Arthur himself to THE TRIBUNE the astronomer explains:

"By all ordinary rules, the stellar universe, which we see blazing with light, should have been long since dead and cold; none of the sources of power which the present conference is exploring could have kept it going for more than a small fraction of the time it has existed. In the stars 'the cup of water' method of maintenance is actually in operation, or at least there is some partial adaptation of it. The astronomer studies the laws of its release as manifested in the stars. To engineers the sub-atomic energy is a dream for idle moments but to the astronomer it is a matter of everyday observation.

"We have two possible kinds of release of sub-atomic energy. The most drastic method is the complete release of all energy stored in the matter, the matter suffering annihilation by this process. The second method is by conversion of the simplest matter, such as hydrogen, into more complex elements.

Tells Sun's Age.

The second method releases only one-hundredth as much energy as the first but this would be sufficient to maintain the sun and stars for as long a time as required. The more drastic hypothesis leads to the view that the stars in the course of their lifetime diminish in mass by consuming their own matter, thus the heavy stars gradually turn into light stars and the bright stars into faint stars. On this theory the age of the sun is about 15,000,000,000 years at the present rate of consumption.

"The second hypothesis leads to a more restricted time scale, allowing little scope for stellar evolution.

"Astrophysical research shows that the great majority of these stars have the same central temperature, about 40,000,000 degrees centigrade.

"For physical reasons it seems impossible. At the Cavendish laboratory Dr. Kapitza produces momentary magnetic fields in which the concentration of energy corresponds to 1,000,000 degrees. Should he be able to raise this to 40,000,000 degrees—I do not think sub-atomic energy will come pouring out but I shall take care not to be too near the laboratory when he tries this experiment.

"The possibility of the matter of the universe slowly dissolving into radiation raises the question of a counter-process. The radiation traversing the world may reassemble and form itself anew into protons and electrons.

"Unless we can circumvent the second law of themodynamics, which is as much as to say that unless we can make time run backwards, the universe must ultimately come to a state of uniform changelessness."

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Where the Road Forks

GIRL SAYS SHE WAS SLASHED IN EXTORTION PLOT

Brother Discovers Her Bound in Swamp.

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 23.—(AP)—Declaring she had been held by three men who threatened members of her family with death if she failed to give them $30,000, Viola Holt, 18, was found gagged and bound and her body slashed, in a slough today.

Miss Holt was in a Pelican Rapids hospital tonight, recovering, while authorities checked her story and sought her assailants. She said she had received a series of notes from the men threatening her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Arne Holt, wealthy Ottertail county farmers, and her younger brother.

Although she did not have the money, she decided to meet the men at the slough last night and when she told them she did not have the sum they demanded, she said they attacked her, one slashing her cheeks with a pen knife after another had bound her.

A note which she had given a girl friend last night in church led her brother to the spot and he brought her to the hospital.

KNIGHT, ADMIRAL AND MAJOR UP IN COURT FOR BRAWL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EPSOM, England, June 23.—A magistrate today dismissed an assault case in which a British knight, a major and an admiral were involved.

According to the evidence, Maj. Victor Beaufort obscured the view of other occupants on top of a stationary bus at the Derby by taking up a position in the middle of the aisle in the front of the bus. Admiral Sir Henry Bruce protested, but to no avail. At the end of the race Maj. Beaufort stood on a seat and either fell or was pushed off. He asked the admiral what the idea was in pushing him.

Sir Basil Clarke suddenly entered the affair by handing Maj. Beaufort a blow that "cut the inside of his mouth against his false teeth and blackened his eye for a week." The major seized Sir Basil's head and held it under his arm "until there was no more fight left in him." The major denied he had tried to twist off the knight's ear. The judge dismissed Maj. Beaufort's complaint of assault against Sir Basil.

Mrs. Edith Wilmans Born, former member of the Texas legislature, yesterday filed her second bill for separate maintenance against Henry A. Born, president of the Born Refrigerator company. Two hours earlier, Superior Judge Sabath dismissed her first bill, filed last January, when Attorney Alexander Kleinman, representing Mrs. Born, admitted the couple had become reconciled since that date and had lived together a short time.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

says The Indiana State Board of Health

Why? Isn't the common house fly harmless? Just about as harmless as a loaded revolver. "Flies carry typhoid fever, tuberculosis, diarrheal diseases, diphtheria, and scarlet fever" this health board says. When someone comes down sick in your home, the cause may be the fly you saw last week buzzing in your kitchen, or crawling on your dining room table. What can you do about it?

Be comfortable and safe. Keep your home insect-free. Spray Flit, which is guaranteed (or money back) to be quick death to flies, mosquitoes, moths, roaches, bed bugs and other household insects. Yet its clean-smelling vapor is harmless to humans.

Flit kills quicker if you use the special inexpensive Flit Sprayer. Insist on Flit and don't accept a substitute. Get yours today!

Certain Playthings Promote the Active Forms of Amusement

Gladys Bevans Washington

If you want to enjoy nature with the children, write to Mrs. Bevans for a list of books on the outdoor play which will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The toys which will supply the need all children have—that for play.

It is scarcely necessary to mention the balls, hoops, kiddie velocipedes and skates and that of playthings. We know they please, and furnish a variety of play. Also that a wagon is a wonderful toy with countless possibilities for play.

There are another plaything to the imagination. There are so many to choose from that one needs to take a careful survey of those on sale before selecting, in order to get a solid, workable outfit.

Little children are the only ones for whom we need to make special suggestions. For the nursery even a flat wooden train is best at first as it has no wheels and can't run over. Fine larger trains with are also made of wood, are to be had and are strong and often hand-painted. The train supply for boys of all ages is splendid.

To change the subject, one company has put out a chair unit which comes in a set with wheels, rods, etc., so that wagons and other vehicles and kinds of endless variety can be made by children themselves. These are made large enough for the child to get into.

Not a word about bean bags and quoits and then we'll have finished with the active play. Bean bags do get soiled so when you make them have a suitable cover that fastens with snaps so it can be taken off and washed.

Balls, generally speaking, the larger the child the larger the ball he needs—usually because of the way he throws it, which involves the large muscles—quite different from the deft hand and finger work used by older children.

A set of miniature football game players or a big bare indoor space to be played by the late kindergarten and first primary children. An eight or ten inch rubber ball is best for this, as it is easy to catch and kicking. (Big rubber balls are hard to stand it—remember how the children ruined your beach ball that way?)

Your names and addresses will be needed for some of these supplies, they will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Getting the Groceries Home.

During our big surprise snowstorm I had just come in after a trip to the food shops, and was attempting to nonchalantly carry a sack of groceries to my hotel room. I had reached the center of the lobby, which was usually crowded with men, when without warning the bottom of the damp sack gave way and canned goods, soap—in fact, everything but eggs—flew every which way with a bang. The fact that the weather had given my face a rosy color did not prevent it from changing to a deeper hue.

Lost Chance to Impress.

Soon after I met the boy whom I found I loved better than all the world, I was invited by his mother to their home and asked to bring my saxophone which I played quite well. Delighted at the opportunity to make an impression not only upon the boy himself but also upon his family, I gladly accepted.

When the time came for me to play, I tuned my instrument and began. The piano was so competely out of tune it was impossible to attempt to play. The boy's sister, who was to accompany me, said she couldn't imagine what was the matter as she was positive it couldn't be the piano. I put the saxophone away mumbling something about "You never can tell what a saxophone will do."

O, yes, I got the boy anyway, but I gave up the saxophone. A. J. T.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.
Clothing Needed.

"Since last October my husband has worked only two or three days a week and I have had to go to work to keep food on the table for my three children. My sister living in Michigan has offered to let the children and me stay with her until my husband gets steady work, and I would like to get some clothing before we leave. The boy is 12 years old and the girls are 10 and 8. I weigh only 96 pounds, so wear a small size.

MRS. M. H."

Presentable clothing will be a big help in getting this family ready for the journey they are contemplating. And they should thrive in their new surroundings with so many of the worries and much of the burden lifted from the shoulders of the mother. Have you any wearing apparel to give them?

Home But No Furniture.

"I am a widow with three children. My sister and I have just moved into a four room flat and cannot buy all the furniture we need for it. Can you help us get a dining room set and a dresser? If I had a sewing machine, too, it would be a help to me in making the children's clothing. My little girl needs a pair of shoes, size 5½, and I would be most grateful if you could get those for me, too.

"Mrs. G. B."

After a long siege of hardship and misfortune this woman is finally able to provide a home for her three small children. If we can get the furniture she needs to complete it, I think she will be fairly comfortable. Help her, won't you?
